hourt, led to the withdrawal of the electoral ticket, is written in a different temper, and will command very general approbation, except from the Black Republicans, who will abuse him quite as freely as they have hitherto lavished encomiums upon him. We hasten to lay the letter before our readers ; Sr. Lovis, August 10, 1856.

To Thomas L. Price, Esq: DEAR SIR : I was disappointed in the result of your election, as the signs in the district as I went through it, encouraged me in the belief that you would succeeed. I was also disappointed in my own, but do not regret having made the canvass; nor de I consider as lost the labor in traveling and speaking which it cost me. The exercise, though severe, has been good for me, and even necessary after my long studious and sedentary course of life I feel greatly invigorated by it. The intercourse with the people has been most gratifying. They came to see me in masses, and with cordiality, along the whole line of travel, and nowhere more numerously or cordially than in the border counties, where some people had supposed I was to have had an unwelcome recoption. My only regret was that I could not have remained longer at each place. Personally, the canvass has been most agreeable to me, and politically, I think it has been good for the State, in helping to revive the sentiment of nationality, and contributing to allay the feeling of sectional antagonism now too strong for the safety of the Union, and which every patriotic consideration requires to be calmed. There is a design here on the part of some. to put up an electoral ticket for Fremont about which no one speaks to me, as I have character enough to keep at a distance all that class of persons, who, dishonorable to honrable proposition. But my sentiments are known, and that I should consider such a step as injurious under every aspect -mortilying to Fremont himself from the small Vote which the ticket would receive - andinjurious to the public, by aggravating the sectional feeling which now arrays each half of the Union against the other. I was opposing the bringing out of Fremont for nearly half a year before those who charge me with are cases where public duty rises above personal consideration, though there are a great but falsehood and treachery. Incapable triotic, they believe others equally so, and attack with base motives, all the actions which are above the comprehension of their political morality. The full result of the Governors election is not yet known here, but enough is known to determine the condition on which our electoral ticket is to be withdrawn. The othor side would not agree to our proposition; but this refusal to do what was right, makes ry him over the State-pretending to be for Bridgewater.
