You have probably told your readers of the explosion of the Acton Powder Mills. It exceeds in its terrific effects any previous one. But two lives were lost. One man was torn into fragments. The second was thrown to a great distance, and stripped of everything but his India rubber shoes. Poor fellow! he had been at the dangerous work but one day. The mill that first exploded was running with no one in it at the moment. When this went off, the air was filled with flying, blazing timber, which in an instant communicated to two others. In one of these were the two unfortunate men who were killed. Theother mill-the dry house-had but little powder in it, which blew off the roof. It then took fire, and was consumed. A fourth mill had two hundred kegs of powder inside, saich was not ignited, although the entire see the fragments flying in all directions. It implied by the foregoing. took fire. XXXIVth Congress-Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1, 1856. SEXATE. All the members of the Senate were present, with the exception of Messrs. Bell, of New Hampshire, Bell of Tennessee Bigg, Butler, Douglas, Houston, Johnson, Toombs, Weller and Wright.

The usual committee was appointed to wait on the President, and inform him that a quorum of each House had assembled, and were ready to receive any communication he might be pleased to make.

A similar committee of the House acted in conjunction with that of the Senate, and in each branch a report was made that the President would communicate his annual message to-morrow to Congress about noon. The Senate then adjourned.

House.-About two hundred members were present.

NEW MEMBERS QUALIFIED. Mr. Hodges, of Vermont, and Messrs. Allen and Morrison, of Illinois, to fill vacancies, were qualified by taking the oath to support the Constitution. Mr. Phelps, (dem.) of Mo., presented the redentials of Mr. Whitfield, and moved that he be sworn in as delegate from Kausas.

The credentials were read, Gov. Geary certifying to the fact that Mr. Whitfield was elected as the delegate from Kansas on the first Monday of October.

Mr. Phelps asked that the usual course be pursued. 📜

Mr. Grow objected, when a discussion of Whitfield's right to represent Kausas followed ; Grow arguing that the laws under which | Monday, Dec. 22d, and continue three days. A the election was held were invalid and oppressive, and therefore the choice of the people of Kansas, as expressed under the sanction of cordially invited to join in the Convention. those laws, ought not to be respected. Mr. Phelps referred to the fact that no person but Whitfield claimed a seat as delegate from Kansas, and insisted that as the people of the ly five Jury cases tried this week, but all Territory were entitled to a delegate and they closely contested.
