How to be Miserable.

Sit at the window and look over the way at your neighbor's excellent man-ion, which be has recently built and paid for, and sigh out, "Oh, that I was a rich man !" Get angry with your neighbor, and think you have not got a friend in the world. Shed a tear or two, take a walk in the burial ground continually saying to yourself, ' when shall I be buried light I' Sign a note for you friend and never forget your kindness; and every hour in the day whisper to yourself, 'I wonder if he will pay that note.' Think everybody means to cheat you. Closely examine every bill you take, and doubt its being genuine, till you have put the owner to a great deal of trouble. - Believe every shilling passed to you is but's sixpence crossed, and express your doubts about getting rid of ataf you should take it. Put confidence in nobody, and believe every man you trade with to be a sogne. Never accommodate if you can possibly help it. Never visit the sick or afflicted, and never give a farthing to the poor. Buy as cheap as you can, and ecrew down the lowest mill. Grin 1 the faces and hearts of the unfortunate. Brood over your misfortune, your lack of talents, and beliefe at no distant day von will come to tice. want. Let the workhouse be ever in your mind, with all the horrors of distress and poverty. Then you will be miserable to gair hearts content, (if we may so speak,) sick at heart and at variance with all the Suspenders, Threads, Fancy Goods, you : nothing wil throw a gleam of sup- lery, Fishing Tackle, Cigars, &c. &c. shine of a ray of warshin into your heart.— Merchauts and All will be as dark and cheerless as the WM. HAYDEN.

Last night a person employed by one of Graduate of the Allopathic and Homeo-the Railroad companies here exchanged 'con Graduate of Medicine, is now pertinuations' with an unknown gentleman under the following, circumstances. He went to his home at midnight, and popped into bed with his wife; in the morning when he prose he commenced dressing, but when he had insinuated his lower limbs into the pantaloons which he found upon a chair at the, head of his bed, he discovered that the garment did not fit bim. After Camining them, he saw that the bifurcated raiment was not the same for which he had paid the tai Tor a few days before. He searched the Dockets and found therein a pocket book containing $125 and some papers which be-longed to a person who had no right to leave his trainers in his wife's bedroom. He then W. A.
