BIID.

In the township of Springville, in this County, year of her age, Mrs. EUNICE PARKE, widow of Col. Thomas Parke, deceased.

The consistent life and character, the long and patient continuance in well doing, the calm, resigned and peaceful end of an aged follower of Christ, should be recorded. Not however as an enlogy upon the flead, which is perhaps too common, but as an incentive to those who survive, to Normal School, will again open in the Acadeemulate their virtues. "The memory of the past | ux Buildings at Montrose on is blessed," and should be cherished. Mrs. Parke was the daughter of William Champlin of Newport, Rhode Island; born in the year 1768, married to Cot. Parke in 1890, and came to the farm on which she died, (Parkevilla) in 1801, when the whole country north of the portunity offers rare inducements. Wyoming Valley was a wilderness. As her war, separated for more than two years from her father and a portion of his family, who were prisoners in Newport, while it was garrisoned by the British; so the indure part of her life was spent in rearing a numerous family, amid the privations of a new country. She saw the birth, infincey and manhood of this Nation; passed through three generations, and lived until her children's grand children arose to call her blessed. Though her sight was courly gone, her pupils only will be admitted. health was generally good; her mind to the last unimpaired, and her recollection, especially of the scenes and events of her early life, perfectly clear and accurate. Though the change from her New England home and its refined society, to a log cabin in the forest, almost without society, was to one of her age very great, yet believing that her path was marked out, and her lot in life cast by Him who cannot err; who has joined our truest and most endearing pleasure with the conscientions performance of our duty, the whole tenur of her life was active, selfdenying, lowly and single minded,—spent in the zealous and faithful discharge of her duty in that state of life into which it had pleased God to call her, so that not only her family, but all who knew her, testified that she was an affectionate, kind and faithful wife, mother, friend and neighbor, Mrs. Parke had in early life been trained in the faith of the founder of Rhode Island-Roger Williams—but when she made a public profession of religion, she, with her husband, joined the Episcopal Church; of which she remained a member until her decease. Her christian life was quiet, unobtrusive, steady and peaceful. Her heart was an altar open which the incense of love and gratitude, kindness and affection, were continually burning, white her For her, Death had no terrors. For several of her last years, she had quietly and peacefully, though with cheerfulness and resignation, awaitoften said, "I cannot be mistaken, He will keep me in safety." Her last end was belitting her life and her trant; caim, trangil and posceful Like the Sun actling gently in his gilded couch, her life passed away waway the taper quietly burned out!
