41-7 "WEARE ALL EQUAL BEFORE GDD AND THE CONSTITUTION."-James Buchanan. Montrose. Susquehanna County, Jenn'a, Thursday Morning, February 18, 1858 Volume 15, Humber 7. Gerritson, Proprietor. A. A. head. A purse was raised, and the offered LOVE AT THE WOOD-PILE; vour boy intellect any suggestion to offer! you, for a consideration, but I guess as how If not will you hear and obey your affection- it's of no use, for Eddy could swim like a Just in timeto relieve him of the dilemma, "Poor Lyman!" I murmured to myself. They were in the breast pocket of my coat, reward put with it, and tendered to me. I Uncle Tim but forth into one of his great, "So young-so hopeful-with so many friends which pockets had been made on purpose it's of no use, for Eddy could swim-like a "BORN FOR BETTER THINGS." duck, and as for the well, he was'nt no fool grand, house saking laughs, that rattled the and fond relatives in his far-off home and for them, and I could reach them at any intook simply the reward from the generous ate sister ?" "Dear lady, you are kind and good, I will do whatsoever you command. Now I am but a poor weak lad, and no one cares for to jump right down into it heels over head; very china in te pantry, and rocked the four taken down to die in a strange land." I told stant. Another hour passed away, and by citizens, while the remainder I directed should guess it's better to be casy, Massa Collins .- tall sperm cadles on the mantle piece; at the man I would set out on my return as that time I had become assured that the rob- be distributed among those who had suffered BY E. A. W. H. I'll send my Bill to fetch your critters night least it so seered to the guests, who caught quick as possible. He ate some breakfast and ber would make no attempt upon me until most from the Wabash robber's depredation. A tall boy of fifteen, with a pale, high forethe contagion istanter, and if the china and resumed his journey, being bound as far up after nightfall. He said that it would be I found Kemp sick and miserable. He was me, no one loves me, but if ever I grow up and mornin', and saw wood, for a considerahead, large hazle eyes and lustrous brown hair. candles only apeared to rattle and rock, the as the Pottawattomie border. illusion was thresult of their own personal I settled my bill, and ther sent for my convenient that we were together, for we burning with fever, and the doctors had shut to be a man, and you in turn should need tion.' may be seen in the kitchen yard of a respecta-And Ben touched the flanks of his brown could run all night, as one could steer the him up in a room where a well man must a friend, I will go to the ends of the earth to and fro with the motion of a wood saw. His scarce more than baby hand looked sadly "Spoken like a true knight, and ble farm house, his slight figure swaying to vibrations. "Uncle Tims rheumatism was greatly mollified by the enjoyment of that old fash-ioned "home buging," and in a few weeks step upon it. Had the road been good, I should have been tempted to try him; but I "Oh, you'll meet him never fear," said my soon have suffocated. mule, and walked on beside his fish wagon. "Water--water ! In God's name, give me "Spoken like a true knight, and noble "It's no use to look after him any more, water l" he gasped. man as you are now, for such as you know said neighbors one, two and three, "he's run out of place encircling that huge brown handle, and the knee that rested upon the "Haven't you had any !" I asked. away likely, and just at this busy season; pity neighbor Collins," and so they returned to their homes, and the half-a-day's wonder was no childhood save in physical dimensions. He told me no. I threw open the windows, sent for a pail of ice-water, and was on the will remember, dear brother, for doubtless tough hickory stick trembled in its attempt Uncle Tim as never induced to visit New | knew that in some places the mud would be companion. Ah! he spoke that with a meaning. I understood it well. I know what that sly tone, and that strange gleaming of the eye and told me it would kill the sick man. But my life-path will lose its sunshine, sorrows to steady it properly as he toiled bravely York, for he hs a horror of all cities, but his deep. I went to the host and asked him if he niece spent may weeks at his house every could lend or sell me a horse. He could do ome to all. over. "Frog Pond," sang out the conductor at a "But hear me. To-morrow I shall leave But a pleased expression rested upon bis little wayside depot, and Miss Mary McClure and Eddy Hale stepped out upon an unshelsummer, and Ir husband rode out often dur- neither. His only spare horse had been shot the farm." meant. He meant that he would put me on I forced him back and Kemp drank the gratefine countenance; fon directly opposite, upon "So soon !" ing her stay. Is seemed to yearn for their by the Wabash robber. There , was not a another log, sat a fair, young girl, who smiled pop.him sweetly as he worked, and at every tered platform. A stage was there which passed the house of "Uncle Tim," and a " Yes, darling, but you are to go with pause of the saw cheered him with pleasant ride of three miles landed them safely at his " Me ! walk with any degree of ease. I could not for the expression of his face was so heartless, and the fever was turned. In eight days he words. pensively at the parting moments. 'Yes, sir, you." The white muslin swept the ground, her door. so icy-and then his eyes had such a wicked sat in his saddle by my side, and started for A hale, brown skinned man, in a clean blue use him. I was in despair. One cold Mch morning a letter arrived ane while musin swept the ground, her etraw gipsey lay rocking to and fro upon a pile of newly liewn thips, while her light brown curls floated gracefully over polished temple and ivory neck. Just now her large, liquid, blue eyes swam in tears, which tallied "How can that be, without money or look-that the most unpracticed physiogno Little River. At Walton's settlement I found mist could not have failed to detect the vil- my horse wholly recovered, and when I offerclothes, and am I not bound to Mr. Collins ?" ""Never mind that. Just fifty miles from at their city has, subscribed by the old house "Look'e," said mine host, as I began to trowsers, nankeen vest, and cotton shirt, without plait or stitching on the bosom came forth-from the low, old fashioned building, folded the young girl to his heart and imprinted a despond, "can't you manage a canoe." ed to pay for his keeping the host would take this farm upon another quite as good, though occupied by a less aristocratic fami-"Yes-very well," I told him. lian at once. During the rest of the afternoon we con-versed some, but not so freely as before. I river leached there ahead of me, and this "Then that's your best way. The current They set outfor his residence immediately is strong this morning, and without a stroke and only arrive to receive his last look of of the paddle, 'twould take you along as fast ly, I shall set my city foot at three o'clock tokiss upon her lips. not with the sweet smile upon her lips, and could see that the villain's eyes were not so was the landlord's gratitude. "Mary dear, you have come just in time to help Unple Tim make hay, and run after bermorrow. her clear, musical voice assumed a soft, low From the New York Mercury. frankly bent upon mine as he spoke, and then love and see thlight of intelligence fade out a horse could walk through the mud. You "I shall say to my aunt Sophia at breakundertone, as it continuously addressed the from that benjunt countenance. shall have one of my canoes for just what it he seemed inclined to avoid my direct glances. fast, that I have decided to curtail my visit ries; and who is this, your companion I you young laborer at each succession of the ever-These movements ou his part were not stud- THE TERRIBLE SACRIFICE: "I have lovesim even more than a father," is worth, and ye can sell it again at Loganswith her and go to my uncle Tim's, lest he are welcome my boy, walk right in-glad to may think hard of me for not hastening to see you both," and Uncle Tim chattered away lasting, discordant saw. cried Mary, in wild burst of grief, bowing port for as much." ied, or even intentional; but they were in OR A DAUGHTER'S DEVOTION. "I say, Eddy," she said soothingly, as his stinctive; as though his very nature led him see him, as well as herself, and now that I while the trunk was duly deposited upon the her head upon e bosom whose heat of life I caught the proposition instantly, for I slight chest rose and fell with the quickened thus. At length night came on. We ate saw it was a good one. -BY LIEUT. LITTLE. am become an accomplished young lady, low vine wreathed portico. was gone. our supper, and then smoked our pipes, and finally my companion proposed that I should sleep before he did. At first I thought of objecting, but a few minutes reflection told respiration occasioned by over action, "you "And I, whoad no other earthly parent, "If you daren't shoot the rapids," added the with my college diploma in my pocket-Eddy looked at his simple brown frock and landlord, "ye can easily shoulder the canoe, and back it around. Tisn't far." hem ! and she knows that I am fitful and uncoarse shoes, and then at the plainly dressed were not always what you seem to others, not me, to be now. There is a something in steady, and always take my own way when I farmer before him, and felt he was now in the your face and form that tells of genteel birth, cannot get it otherwise ; and she will not obof early intellectual training. Look here, Eddy, I am two years your senior: the world iect. calls me 'a young lady;' I am what she is pleased to call educated and accomplished; James, the overseer, will have to drive me out; and you cannot go in the same carriage, of the daughter of a New York aristocrat, Paul course. But you know old black Ben, who drives the little brown mule to the truck McClure, Esq., with sundry other titles stitchwagon, and brings fish, fruit, and all kinds of footsteps went tramping over the floor. Tears summer commodities to our country folks; rolled over the cheek of the sensitive listener ed upon his coat. I am here visiting my aunt Sophia, his respected country sister, who is not a whit the less aristocratic for being accidentally settled upon the finest farm in the the right side of Ben, so that he would not country; but I profess to have common sense; refuse me a favor, if anywhere in the bounds sounds. Uncle Tim was in extasies, and Mato know nature's noblemen when I meet them; of reason, and I will step over to his house ry, almost provoked at his levity, was neverto appreciate moral worth under the brown to-night to inquire after his sick mother; theless at intervals constrained to add her freck, and to detect the fire of genius under poor old Hannah, I have watched with her treble to his astounding bass. many an hour-and then I will call Ben to "You are right, Mary," he said at last, dethe ashes of poverty. But, now saw on, since it must be so for the present, for I see my the door and stell him the whole story, and most 'proper' aunty is peering over he specask him to take you there twenty mintacles through the window, wondering no utes in advance, and stow you, away slave of Hisam Collins, and my august sister · doubt, that her lady neice should prefer the doubt, that her lady neice should prefer the woodpile to the clean, cool parlor, and Godey's last; whistle at the farm.

And the young lady rested her head upon her hand, and waited for another cessation of bachelor, living all alone with a housekeeper my only child and heiress, dear Mary, but shausted strength, then proceeded and heiress, dear Mary, but "And I Eddy, have been sent to this said and one servant; I will go in a few steps in p. r. isince it is your will, I will take this litexhausted strength, then proceeded-

"And I. Eddy, have been sent to this said Collins farm, by the Ruler of all destinies, to see and feel for you; to speak west ward in a consider your to your young, tried heart; to consider your condition, and devise some plan for your es-steps in your behalf as will greatly amelior. "I here it is your will, I will take this lit-to your young, tried heart; to consider your to your young, tried heart; to consider your es-steps in your behalf as will greatly amelior. "I here it Eddy. "I knew it Eddy. I told you he was kind and good, my own blessed Uncle Tim," said out, wi three pack-horses to carry our lug-Mary, clasping both hands of his in her own, and then transferring his to her nucle's gage, d I soon found I lost nothing by ate your condition. "Now, Eddy, you start with the cows at and then transferring his to ber uncle's. "And I will be your uncle, too, my dear waitingfor my companions were agreeable the usual time, and, if you do not see old "And I will be your uncle, too, my dear and ertaining. They were going to St. boy, from this day forth forever, so help me Josephyhere they had lands already locatblack Ben before you reach the meadow, you may set me down in your dictionary as no plotter. "There, now run for the cows, and toorphan to his bosom. Edwin Hale had found a second father .---morrow Uncle Collins will whistle for his the sean. cows'and boy too, I opine; if I change my Various emotions, joy, hope, giatitude, and a arrangements I will notify you after I see old strange subdued sorrow swelled his heart almost to bursting now, and he wept. That feeling was contagious, Uncle Tim Ben.

presence of a true man who would not under-

Shouts of merry laughter rang out upon the still air, and every now and then heavy some way connected with those unusual murely," the first glance I had of that boy's face I knew that he was not born to be the

One week from that date Edwin Hale, with

into the parlor.

have loved him oh, how intensely. I never knew the depth! my attachment to him un-I found the boat to be a-well fashioned til this sad momt."

Inte him on account of his poverty. Mary whispered to Eddy, and he sat down upon the porch, while she followed Uncle Tim again. "dugout," large enough to bear four men with And the stronman kissed the pale lips of his silent benefaor, and wept-a very child ten dollars-and then had my luggage brought

"Wha world were this, How unendurables weight, if they Whom death hatlundered did not meet again.

The Robb of the Wabash. Adatter myself I have succeeded in getting upon the porch, for he felt that he was in A THRILING ADVENTURE.

riding on horseback. The banks of the river were thickly covered with large trees, and I In the summ of 1832, I was engaged saw game in plenty, and more than once I Then I moved my bedy so that my right arm with a young in named Lyman Kemp in locating landsts along the Wabash, in Indiana. I had ge out partly for my health at the boldest of the "varmints," but I had no firmly, with my finger on the guard, I drew time, so I kept on. Only one thing seemed and partly to acmodate one -who had ever wanting, and that was a companion, but been a noble frie to me, who had purchased a great deal of gernment land. At Davenmy dinner of bread and cold meat, when I yet the beams fell upon Karl, and I could port he was take sick, and after watching him a week, i hpes that he would soon re-cover, I foun but he had a settled fever; rupt bend to the right, and a little further on and, as the bysican said he would not be I came to an abrupt basin where the current able to moven under a month, I determined formed a perfect whirlpool. I did not notice call him in-I love him already. You were to push oralore. So I obtained a good it until my canoe got into it, and found mynurse, and laving sees that my friend would have everything necessary to his comfort, self going round instead of going ahead. I plied my wood paddle with all my power, which more could procure. I left him. As goo tortane would have it I found a party of men bound on the very route the low sandy sholloing in the effort had fat goes that I wygoing, and waited one day for the ma not a little, and as I found myself thus sake ofheir company. At length we set

In a neat, tasteful dwelling on the banks of the Hudson, lived the Widow Gray, with her only daughter - a young lady of seventeen -and her son, a small boy about six years me that I had better behave as though he ease, and at once paid the owner the price- were an honest men; so I agreed to his pro- of age. position. He took my seat at the stern, and

In the year 1830, about five years prior to down. I gave directions about the treatment of my horse, and then put off. The current was quite rapid—say four or five miles an been sitting, I spread my cloak in the bot-lying a short distance from the house, with hour-but not at all turbulent, and I soon tom of the cance, and then having placed my the marks of violence upon it. The murder made up my mind that it was far better than values for a pillow, I lay down. As soon as of Mr. Gray, who was a well known merchant possible I drew out one of my pistols, and of the city, produced a great deal of exciteunder the cover of a cough, I cocked it .-- | ment, and several persons in the neighborhood were arrested on suspicion of having comwould be at liberty, and grasping my weapon mitted the deed. They were, however, soon discharged, when an old gipsey woman living in that vicinity appeared and made the fol-lowing statement, to this effect :

That while sitting under the shade of an old tree, on the night of the murder, she observed a man leave the house of Dr. B.----, whom she recognized as the deceased. After leaving the house she observed him leisurely approach the spot where she sat. On casting her eyes towards the house at the same moment, she saw another figure stealthily leave . the premises, and swiftly and quietly follow the foctsteps of Mr. Gray; and, when within "Good night-and pleasant dreams.- Pill a few yards of him, crouch down hehind some ave von further on your way than you think bushes skirting the path. All at once she have you further on your way than you think the next moment a man rushed by her with a pistol in his haud-that man she could take cape from the burthens which should be borne br stouter Dacks. Eddy, this evening I shall take my usual stroll alone, away down by the brook, where the willows meet over the water, and the one plank forms a frail foot bridge, when I see you coming as usual for the cows, I will meet you and walk with you, and who knows the result. Your consent, my brave boy ?"

Ile answered with a low, "I thank you," and a gush of tears, and lifting her gipsey from the chips at her feet, she arose and walked slowly to the garden.

A, new light kindled in the eve of Edwin Hale, glimmering like sunshine through the rain drops, the light of hope settling in rainbow tints upon the clouds of sorrow which had long hung darkly over his young life, unbroken by a single golden thread. "She is very beautiful," he said musingly to limself, "but what can she mean by 'considering my condition,' and 'devising some way of escape for me;' sh ! probably she expects to be married, and have a great house soon, and she will give me a home in it as a kind of genteel servant, and make my work light, and give me books to read. Ah, me! it would be pleasant to serve her only; but her husband. I fear I should hate him, and my heart would swell almost to bursting when I met his proud scornful looks. Would to God that I had died long, long ago, that I were quietly sleeping besides my dear mother, for no matter how kind the master, or how beautiful and good the mistress, it is still hard to be a slave. What did sho say about 'the fire of genius under the ashes of poverty !" Yes, yes, I know that I am talented; some. unseen power continually whispers in my ear, 'you were born for better things; those who rule over you now, making your life bitterness are not your equals; courage, courage; none but the craven soul despairs. Edwin Hale, your name shall live after you.'

"My father laid his white hand upon my head, hot with that last fatal fever, and blessed his poet child; and my own beatiful mother prayed with her dying lips 'that God would preserve her darling boy from the shafts of malicious envy; that his highly in-tellectual gifts might be the especial care of Him who loves the orphan.' Yes, I know that I am talented, but what avails this knowledge 1

"What avails it !" he repeated aloud, "everything! It shall shall avail !" and he flung away the saw indignantly, his task new nuished, and strode away with the air of a prince. "A few hours later found him in a happier mood, with the clear light of hope-in his eye, and a sweet smile upon his lips, wending his way towards the meadow where the willows interlaced each other over the brook, and the one plank formed a rude foot bridge, and dy Hale." while yet many a rod away, he caught a glimpse of her white muslin moving about under the trees, and her straw gipsey swinging upon a branch.

With a bounding pulse and a quickened pace he went forward, and in another minute she met him with both hands extended, reassuring him by her sweet sisterly welcome. "And now Eddy, sit down," she said, "right here upon the turf beside me, for I model aunty of mine might imagine me now; you will excuse me if I talk too fast was left without a cent, and so he had to be her mischievous face with her fan, and then led at once to the name, and he then informed for dignity. You are misplaced, ill treated, put out to work. " But he allers had perspirin there was an embarrassing silence of several me that Lyman Kemp could not live, and that

Mary McClure, say it, and now how shall Massa Colline, if you want the brook dragged called out to address an audience composed this be done? What say you, Eddy? has or the well dove down into, I can do it for of thousands,

And home she went; that city heiress, with her heart full of love and good will to-Mary and the housekeeper who had entered wards the poor orphan boy. unobserved, her errand to summon them to tea, all sobbed like children; and poor Eddy

"What-out to late, dear! the dew is falling, and besides it is hardly proper for a smothered his emotions as soon as he could young lady to walk out so often alone-refor the sake of the dear friends around him. marks might be made."

"Well the depot is three miles off, and old

"Uncle Tim loves me. He is an old

"Dear me, Aunty, I would not outrage a large handsome trunk full of new, well fitting your views of propriety for the world, but clothes, was set down at the door of a respectable Institute for boys, and " the new scholar" such a thing as a beau proper doesn't vegetate on Collin's farm, and I hardly think Uncle, with his gouty foot would be willing soon became the pride of the teachers and the tell by emanner in which he lifted it from favorite of the students. to gallant me; but-will you pardon the Ten years later there was a social party at hole truth-I had an escort a part of the way in the person of Master Eddy, who was stately bride was there, and a tall, noble man on his way to the cow pasture."

"Eddy-the cow pasture, ha! ha! ha! gazed down lovingly into her upturned eyes, country a tht time. saying, "Mary, all that I am, all that I hope well, niece, I cannot scold you now for laughing. A young lady, just graduated at for, has been the result of your own unselfish and just as I was falling into a grateful one of the first institutions in America, taking kindness. Next to your own sweet self, I drowse, I wastartled by the shouts of men for, has been the result of your own unselfish honor and admire dear, generous Uncle and barking f dogs, directly under my wina romantic stroll to the cow pasture, ha! ha! ha! allow me to take your hat, madame !" Tim. And aunty Sophia enjoyed the thing im-"And I, oh successful attorney, brilliant menselv. At four o'clock next day all was confusion priceless treasure of your love." ind consternation at. the farm. Eddy Hale, the bound boy had not been seen since early in the morning. The family had arisen some walk this way," said Uncle Tim in a loud Karl, perhap?" what earlier than usual, that Miss McClure voice, for he was a privileged character, might breakfast and arrive at the depot in having been settled permanently in his chair heard of him!--the most reckles, daring and, heard of him!--the most reckles, daring and, in the morning. The family had arisen sometime. And James had driven her out in no for the last year, in consequence of an obsti- murderous nuler that ever cursed the counvery-gracious mood, "Tor," as he said, " it nate attack of rheumatism. "And you too, brother Paul McClure. and was just the busiest season of the whole year.

and he couldn't spare the time, no how." ister Sarab," and they obeyed. "Now, sister Sophia and brother Paul. you Ed ly had partaken of his second table repast and started away with the cows, and that are both as aristocratic as if you had been was the last of him for that day. He had born with royal blood in your veins, and you certainly met. with some accident, or some are both as proud of the new accession to mischievous person had decoyed him away. your family as if you had become related to and there became out on the bank, fired at

"A nice handy boy, and no harm at all in all the foreign sovereigns of the world. him," said Uncle Collins to a neighbor who offered to aid in the search, "I did think at "Know then, that yonder tall, intellectual personage, who is just now gazing down so | but they losthim." times, that he was a little uneasy and flighty fondly into the eyes of the very sweetest wo-in his notions, and once or twice Mrs. Collins man who ever wore white bridal slippers, was | said. ten years ago the little overworked, bound found some silly poetry in his rooms, composed by himself, (he went to school steadily so long as his mother lived, and then he was'nt very strong, but he was quick at his chores, and honest, and. could buy an assortment of groceries and settle for them like a man .-ed to hide a beart under a rough jacket .---pon the whole I believe I would rather have And now, brother Paul and sister Sophia, I said old black Ben, elevating his exchores, of my niece. You will be happy to hear, no Lord love ye he's quick as lightning, and till his forehead was but a narrow belt of doubt that Edwin P. Hale, Esq. has been his ere's got fire in it.—He dresses in all wrinkles, "very curious indeed Massa Collins, educated and maintained, until recently, by sorts of shapes, but generally like a common I'm sure I see'd him goin' away early with plain old Tim; and if he continues to walk hunter. Oho! he's the very devil, I do bethe cows, and he hollered out as he allers uprightly until Tim lies down to rest in that does, so pleasant like, 'good mornin' Benja- | curtained chamber which will only be opened min.' Well it's 'markable sartain. He was to let in the light of the morning of the resura purty lad, and everybody liked him, 'spec-ially them that know'd his father and mother sum of fifty thousand dollars. Ho! Eddy,my have much to say, and but little time to say afore him. His father was a good man, a boy, dome up to Uncle Tim's old arm chair, it in , and if I should be long away, that turney at law by trade, but he was kind to and tell us how it happened that you did'at the poor and guy away so much that he soon | turn the cows into the pasture of a certain Mr.

ost one of my best horses than that same Ed-"It's wonderful strange where he's gone to,"

run through with all he had. And his moth - Collins, of Collins farm, on the morning of the guilty of an impropriety, the thousand forms run information and the name of which she understands so well, and send er, well she seemed more like an angel than third of August, ten years ago?" Katy, the maid, after me in hot haste. "Well, Eldy, I have begun in earnest she of the long consumption, and the child "aliened," Mr. Hale smiled, his bride covered in was to inquire for me. I answer-crushed by your position, and you shall be notions like, and read all the criterions and moments; for Edwin was more puzzled to know he wished to see me as soon as possible. removed into a more congenial sphere. I, lectricity books that come in his way. Well what to say than if he had been auddenly life long enough to see you."

often.

lieve."

suddenly moored, I resolved to minutes.

was tempted to fire the contents of my pistols

It was shortly after noon, and J had esten came to a place where the river made an ab-was destined to find one soon enough.

I had been in this position some ten min close by me, and on looking up I saw a man notice of me; but at the end of that time I at the side of my boat. He was a voung seemed to be a hunter.- He wore a wolf-skin drawn breath, and on the instant the villain intendi to get out lumber the remainder of shirt, leggins of red leather, and a cap of bear-

On 3 third day from Logansport we skin. reached alton's Settlement, on Little River "Which way are you bound, stranger ?" he -havirleft the Wabash on the morning of asked in a pleasing tone.

that day It was well on into the evening "Down the river to Logansport," I rewhen weached that little log built inn of plied. the settment, and we were glad enough of

"That's fortunate. I wish to go there mythe shelt, for, ere we were fairly under the self." the stranger resumed. ("What say you cover, thrain commenced to fall in great to my taking the other paddle and keeping you company." "I should like it," [told him frankly; "I've drops, al thickly, too. And more still I had to Ithackful, for my horse began to been wanting company." "So have I," stid the hunter. "And I've show a heners in one of his hind legs, and when I hped from the saddle, I found that his footained hum very much, as I could than those worn out legs through the deep

"Come on," I said; and as I spoke, he left shoulder, and when he brought back his blesome creditor. "Eagled into the cance, and having disposited his rife in the bow, he took one of the paddles could see the plade gleam in the gale moon-vere blow to Mrs. G the groud. I ordered the ostler to bathe it with col water, und then went into the Uncle Tim's farm house. A beautiful and house, were we found a good substantial supper, nd comfortable quarters for the with dark lustrous eyes and sombre locks, night-that i, comfortable quarters for that we pushed off, and were soon clear of the

About en 'clock, just after I had retired. whirlpool. and just as I was falling into a grateful out on a hunting and exploring expedition lessly the foul wretch proceeded to approach spared no means in the bringing up of her that his father lived at Columbus. He was dow. As thmoise continued, I arose, threw on my cloth; and went down. "What is with some companions, who had gone on to me. Oh! his step would not have awakened orator, and famous poet, am fully repaid for it i? I asked of the landlord, who stood in all my early solicitude in your behalf by the the entry-wa: horse into the bargain. He said that he had teeth as he nerved himself for the stroke. "Ah ! don you know, stranger ?" said the a great sum of money about his person, and "Sister Sophia McClure Collins, please to host, returng "You've heard of Gustus that was one reason why he disliked to travel in the forest. Thus he opened his affairs to me, and I handkerchief all wadded up. That was to stop my mouth with. Every nerve in my heart still as ted that I had some money, and told him my try. I told the host that I had heard of him busifiess, and by a most unpresuming course "Well," he securied; "the infernal villain of remark, he drew from me the fact that was here onlythis afternoon, and murdered I had money enough to purchase forty full and robbed a nan just on the river. We've lots.

Finally the conversation lagged, and I bebeen out afte him, but he's gin us the slip. gan to give my companion a closer scrunity. We tracked lim as far as the upper creek. I sat in the stern of the cance, and he was was of a light, flaxen hue, and hang in long thought that the weapon might miss fire, about midships, and facing me .- His bair us, and kille one of our horses, and then drove into the woods. We set the dogs on, and handsome; and his complexion, very as I sprang up and backed, I heard a fierce curls about his neck; his features were regular "And you've come back horseless ?" light. But the color of his face was not what yell, and at the same time the robber fell one would call fair. It was a cold, bloodless forward, his head striking my knee as it came "Yes," the landlord growled. "But," he color, like pale marble. And for the first down.

boy of one Hiram Collins, of Collins farm, and that sweet angel at his side ran away with "he can't runclear much longer. The country time, too, I now looked particularly at his eves. They were gray in color, and had the tip of the canoe brought me to my senses, brilliancy of glazing ice. Their light was and I went off and took the paddle. As soon intense, but cold and glittering like a snake's. as the boat's head was once more right, I him, and brought him out here to her Uncle is in arms, and he'll either leave these huntins McClure, the plain old bachelor, who happen-ed to hide a heart under a rough jacket.-- "What soit of a man is he !" I asked. "The very last man in the world you would have invited you to meet here, that we may take for GusKarl. He is small-not a bit for not much over thirty. Suddenly a sharp, cold shudder ran through a slight spasmodic movement—and then all bave a pleasant merry making at the old home- over five feet six; with light curly hair, a my frame, and my heart leaped with a wild was still. stead upon the occasion of the late marriage smooth while face, but not very stout. But tbrill. As sure as fate-I knew it-there could be no doubt-I had taken into my confidence, Gustus Karl, the Wabash Robber. For a few moments I feared my emotions would betray me. I looked carefully over his catch me off my guard, and then shoot me. person again, and I knew I was not mistaken. But the night passed slowly and drearily. After the tub full of whiskey and water which the host had provided, was all drank, could look back now and see how cunning. Ty he had let me on to a confession of my circumstances-how he had made me tell the crowd began to disperse, and shortly afterwards I went up again to bed; and this my affairs, and reveal the state of my fallen with his knife true to its aim, for it finances. What a fool I had been! But it struck very near the spot where my heart time I slept uninterrupted till morning. "I had just eaten my breakfast, and had was too late to think of the past. I had must have been, and the point was driven so enough to do to look out for what was evi- far into the solid wood that I had to work gone out the front door, when a horseman came dashing up to the place, himself and animal all covered with mud. It had been dently to come.

I at length managed to overcome all my ing madness about the handle. outward emotions, and then I began to watch they poured out a thousand thanks upon my

"Perhaps so," thought I to myour, no owered my head, and pretended to lower myself to sleep. For half an hour my companion steered the utes when I was startled by hearing a footfall canoe very well, and seemed to take Dutslittle up my mantle, slouched my had, and then settled down for my watch.

Fortunately for me the moon was up, and though the forest threw a shadow upon me, see his every movement. We were well into the Wabash, having entered it about three

"You will call me at midnight," I said o'clock.

drowsily.

"Yes," he returned.

"Good night,"

her oath was Dr. B. This was the gipsey woman's statement, and it appeared the more plausible, as Dr. B---- had disappeared from. could see that he became more uneasy. I the premises in a mysterious manner, and had God," and good Uncle Tim clasped the poor ed, anwhere they had mills upon the river looking person, not over two-and-thirty, and commenced to snore with a long, regularly- not as yet been heard of. The servants were drawn breath, and on the instant the triand questioned, but they could give he started as starts the hunter when he hears the their master's whereabouts. A vigorous search was made by the authorities, which, tread of game in the woods. however, proved finitless; no trace of the But hark ! Aha-there was before one lingering fear in my mind that I might shoot the murderer could be found. Dr. B-, at the time of his disappearance. wrong man; but it was gone now. As the fellow stopped the motion of the paddle, I was a young man of twenty-five, and single.

He had already obtained considerable celebridistinctly heard him mutter : "O ho, my dear sheep-you little dreamed ity in his profession, and was known to be re-that Gus Karl was your companion. But markably skillful in the cure of fevers. It he'll do you a good turn .-- If your friend is was known that he had led a very extravagant life, and had borrowed large sums of dead, you shall follow him, and take your traps to pay your passage to heaven."

money from Mr. Gray, which the latter, a few "So have I," stid the hunter. "And I've I think these were the very words. At weeks before his decease, had often called been wanting some better mode of conveyance any rate, they were their drift. As he thus upon him to pay. It was, therefore, generalspoke he noiselessly drew in the paddle and rose to his feet. I saw him reach over his murdered him, in order to get rid of a trou-

The death of her husband had been a severe blow to Mrs. Gray, and it was thought and told me he was ready when I was. So light, and I saw Karl run his thumb along at that time that she would become insane; the edge, and then feel the point ! My heart but she finally recovered from the dreadful beat fearfully, and my breathing was hard. delirinm which had at first threatened her It was with the utmost exertion that I could life. Her whole affections were then centered For an nour we conversed neery. the it was with the difference character and the do in the offspring of the unfortunate man; and stranger told me his name was Adams, and continue my snoring, but I managed to do in the offspring of the unfortunate man; and it without interruption. Slowly and noise- as he had left her comparatively wealthy, she two children.

As I previously remarked, Ellen was now As I previously remarked, linker was now seventeen; and little Willie, her brother, six years of age. Ellen was kind and affection-ate in manners, and as beauting as she was good. It is not to be supposed that so fair a flower could long escape the prying eves of The villain was by my side, and measured the distance from his hand to my heart with his eye. In his left hadd he held a thick those brainless fops who go about in search of treasures of this description. But Ellen body was now strung, and my heart still as looked upon all these miserible specimens of death. Of course my snoring ceased, and at meh with the utmost contempt, and had at-that instant the huge knife was raised above tained the ago of sixteen without experiencmy bosom ! Quick as thought I brought my ing, in the slightest degree, the heavenly inspiration of love.

pistol up-the muzzle was within one foot of the robbers heart :-- he uttered a quick cry-This state of things, however, was destined not to last much longer. There at length I saw the bright blade quiver in the moon light, but it came not upon me. I pulled the came one whom Ellen loved with all the aftrigger, and the last fear was past. I had fection of her young and trustful heart. This individual was a young physician named Charles Reynolds, who was rapidly attaining but it did not. There was a sharp report, and celebrity in his profession. In personal ap pearance, he was very preposessing, at least to Ellen. Not above the medium height, his figure was graceful and firm ; his limbs well rounded, and his frame compact; his forebead was broad and high, and his large grey eyes Weak and faint I sank back, but a sudden continually gleaming with the restless fire of a powerful intellect. To Ellen he confided When I thought of his age I sat him down turned my eyes upon the form in the bottom all the inspirations and hopes of the honorable ambition which fired his soul; and she listenof the cance, and then I saw it quiver-only ed to him with pleasure and interest. One day, as they were both slowly walking tow-

All that night I sat there at my watch and ards the house, they met a tall, dark looking steered my little bark. I had my second stranger, who, as they passed him, looked pistol ready, for I knew not surely that the keenly at Ellen.

inquired Reynolds, after they had passed these premises for no good !": answered Reynolds.

When Ellen and Reynolds entered the house hard to puil it out, and harder still to unclasp they found that little Willie had been taken the marble fingers that were closed with dysuddenly sick with a high fever. Reynolds instantly prescribed such remedies as he thought would be most likely to check its Swiftly flowed the tide, and ere the sun a-My pistols were both handy, and I knew they gain sank to rest I had reached Logansport course, and then bidding them adieu, took were in order, for I had examined them both The authorities knew the face of Gustus Karl his departure. Little Willie, however, grew gain sank to rest I had reached Logansport course, and then bidding them adieu, took "The doctor says he must die," said the were in order, for 1 had examined them both in the forenoon, when I thought of firing at at once, and when I had told them my story, worse and worse, each day his breathing but in the forenoon, when I thought of firing at the thoused out a thousend thenks upon my

"Did you ever see that gentleman before ?" wretch was dead. He might be waiting to "No, I don't recollect that I ever did." away, and when the morning broke the form had not moved. Then I stepped forward and answered Ellen. "There is something evil found that Gustus Karl was dead! He had looking in his eye." "Depend upon it, he is hanging about fallen with his knife true to its aim, for it