Jack Falstaff, and the State. of these Kentucky has a representative who shows the best living.

Of the members of the House, eighty-five are accompanied by their wives; twenty five by their wives and daughters, and five by their daughters alone. About one fourth of the members are single men, and of these one balf are confirmed old bachelors, and the remainder want to get married whenever they can. There are probably about two dozen "handsome men," in the opinion of ladies, in the House, and about the same number who are, in the opinion of the same judges, "hideous,"

There are five members who speak on every question which comes up, and participate on all the legislation done, both public and private. Three always speak for the ladies in the gallery, and are never happy unless some "bright eves" are gazing at them. About one-half the House are talking men, and these may be divided into even classes, as follows: 1st. Etoquent and i gical orators; 2d. Logical and eloquence 3d. Sound reasoners; the sections, on the soil of this portion of our 4th. Good talkers: 5 h. Buncombe speakers; common country. As this Free-State body 6th. Vitmerative decouncers, and 7th.
