A Swindled Gambler.

HOW A GREEN 'UN FOUGHT THE TIGER. Some years ago, I was in a gambling house in Cinciunati, a silent looker on at the game of faro. In those days such operations were carried on rather openly, and almost underthe eyes of our authorities, with unbarred doors, so that any one could walk in either in the capacity of a better or a mere spectator. In the latter capacity I found myself near midnight, when the door of the denopened. Just then the game began to flag, not a sound was heard but the click of the checks and the rattle of some dishes a darkey was placing on the table, and in walked a tall, raw-boned, country looking chap, in a grey sati-nett coat and coon-skin cap. He walked up to the only yacant place at the table, and drawing from his side pocket an enormous calf-skin wallet, which looked as if it might contain at least a thousand in fives and tens, he addressed the dealer: "Look here, Mister, I'm going to fight this Tiger up to the mines! Understand me, I always fight to the death; that is, until I break you or you break me." "Very good," said the dealer, "you are one of those we like to deal for." And his eyes fairly glistened at the certainty of depleting the plethoric looking pocket-book.

"But understand-me," continued the rough looking customer, "there is one thing you must do, and that is if you break me, you must give me enough to carry me home." "I'll do it," said the "leg."

"Yes, yes, yes," responded the entire party Here a darkey announced supper, and the keeper of the "Tiger" announced a recess for half an hour. The crowd went into the good things prepared, and Rough was not a whit behind the rest. He dived into the venison, the oyster pie and the "chicken fixens," until he could eat no more with any degree of the United States service. safety to himself-not forgetting to wash

brandt. Refreshments over, labor bid fair to commence in right good earnest. The dealer took off his coat, rolled up his sleeves, and seated off his coat, rolled up his sleeves, and seated himself. Rough squared himself at the table, of the United States five years, Provided his and again drew the ponderous wallet. All resignation after such term of service be duly eyes were now turned upon him; for specia- accepted, or he be otherwise honorably dis tors, patrons of the establishment, and even charged.

After scutinizing it a moment, the dealer tossed it into the drawer and passed over a stack of ten chips to Rough. He next gave the cards sundry scientific flirts, placed them in a box, and announced: "All ready." Rough placed his ten chips on the ace, and the deal went on. Some eight or ten were drawn out, when an ace came to view on the top of the box, and the dealer "staked down" the entire pile. He then waited a few moments in expectation that Rough would open the pocketbook again, but that individual continued resting his chin on the palm of his hand, and gazing abstractedly on the ace. "Well," said the "leg," "ain't you going to bet any more?".

"Narry red; I'm broke-flat!" said Rough, The "leg" laid back in his chair, and in a tone of most profound astonisment, said: "The deuce you are! And I ple ged myself to give you money enough to carry you home, in case you got broke?" "You did that, old hoss!"

"Where do you live?" . "Brownsville, up the river."

"What will it cost to take you there!" "At the present stage of water, I think can get up for about fourteen dollars." Such a shout as went up at this junctu counted out the fourteen dollars. "My friend," said he to Rough, "it is not every day one meets with a patron like you.

Go and help yourself to another drink of brandy and water, and a cigar. Whenever to occanize a military Volunteer Company

"I say," said he, as he held the door ajar, "I wish you better luck with the next green looking customer that comes along; but be the ages of eighteen and twenty-one, in which fore you make such a bargain with him, just case the Collector shall collect the said fine or ascertain where he lives, and the size of his tax of the father, master or guardian, or out of pile!" and so saying, he disappeared amid the guffaws of the crowd, in which the dealer heartily joined.

MAC'S FIRST AND LAST SPEECH .- Some where in the great State of New York resides a gentleman, whom, both for brevity and disguise, we will call "Mac." Mac is a fellow of clever parts and scholarly acquirements; tells a story with admirable grace and effect, and talks as fluently as a French inn-keeper; yet-if we may take Mac's word for it-with all his talents he is no orator, as Everett is; though he once made an experiment to find out whether he was likely to succeed in that line or not. This is the afory of that occasion, as nearly as we can roport it:

"You see," said Mac, "there was to be a great 'Republican' meeting in the town of _____, and the orator, who had been advertized to do the eloquence, having given no-tice that he should not be able to appear, they sent down here for a substitute-and, in regular desperation, selected me as the man. - Considering myself equal to anything that might reasonably be demanded of a gentleman or a scholar, I accepted the invitation and went. I was warmly received by the andience, who were gathered in one of the rural districts, and were mostly farmers and mechanics. It is my opinion that I made a pretty good speech. I sulegized Fremont, abused Fillmore, and gave Buchanan ' Jessie.' I was logical, theological, and sanguinary.-I tapped Kansas in the jugular vein, and drew the claret at every word, in the most approved style of oratorical plebotomy.-When I imd concluded my speech, it occurred to me to say (quite as much by way of triumph as apology) that this was my first aticmpt at public speaking. A moment's si-lence, and then— "There," shouted an old farmer, in the voice and manner of one old farmer, in the voice and manner of one who had made a discovery or solved a difficult problem, 'By thunder I thought so!' I have my suspicion that that man was a Damhaye my suspicion that that man

"Why, William! I can't bear Joseph, he denied his mistress." He who marries for beauty only, is like the buyer of cheap furniture—the varnish that caught the eye will not endure the fireside blaze.

The green-wood echo, the rainbow gay, . And woman's beauty, soon pass away.

POTATOES-LARGE SEED AND SMALL-About the first week in May last, I planted a small patch of potatoes; the seed for about half of which was taken from the refuse of a bin where potatoes had been kept through the winter. They were the smallest kind of 'small potatoes," very few exceeding a quails egg in size, and extensively sprouted at that. The other portion of the plot was planted with large of the same variety. (White Mercers) uncut. Neither had any advantage form-and both sections were treated alike throughout The potatoes when dug were all very large and fine. No difference was observable, except that the hill from which the very largest were taken happened to be from the small seed. Now, I have for years been the advocate of large seed but the above experience suggests the query as to whether soil, season and culture has not quite as much to do in giving us a large crop as the size of the stock of JEV

IMPORTANT TO TOBACCO CHEWERS. DR. GUSTAV LINNARD'S Taste Restorative Troches,—The Great Substitute for l'obacco. It is a well known and incontrovertible fact that the use of tobacco is the promoting ause of many of the most severe

MENTAL AND PHYSICAL DISORDERS o which the race of man is subject; as careful analysis and long and painful experience have learly proven that it contains certain narcotic & poisonous proporties most dangerous in their ef-lects, which by entering the blood derange the functions and operations of the heart, causing nany to suppose that organ to be diseased. TOBACCO affects also the entire nervous system, manifesting itself—as all who have ever used the weed will testify—in lassitude, nervous irratibility, water brash, dispepsis, and many other disorders of a similar character. The are designed to counteract these baneful influences, and have proved completely successful in a multitude of cases, and wherever used. Being harmless in themselves they exert a beneficial effect upon the entire system, restoring the taste which has become vitiated or destroyed by great. sindulgence, completely removing the irritation and accompanying tickling sensation of the throat —which are always consequent upon abstaining from the use of tobacco, and by giving a healthy tone to the stomach, invigorate the whole system. JOY TO THE AFFLICTED!!! It cures nervous and debilitated sufferers, and removes all the symptoms, among which will be found indisposition to exertion, loss of power, loss found indisposition to exertion, loss of power, loss of memory, difficulty of breathing, general weakness, horror of disease, weak nerves, trembling, dreadful horror of death, night sweats, cold feet, wakefulness, dimness of vision, languor, universal lassitude of the muscular system, often enormous appetite, with dyspeptic symptoms, hot hands, finshing of the body, dryness of the skin, pallid countenance and eruptions on the face, pain in the back, heaviness of the eyelids, frequently black spots flying before the eyes, with a temporary aufusion and loss of sight; want of attention, great mobility, restlessness, with horror of seciety .--

Nothing is more desirable to such patients than solitude, and nothing they more dread for fear of themselves; no repose of manner, no carnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one restion to another. These symptoms, if allowed to go on-which this medicine invariably removes - soon follows loss of power, fatuity and epileptic fits-in one of which the patient may expire. Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases—insanity and consumption? The records of the insane asylums, and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear am ple witness to the truth of these assertions. In lunatic asylums the most melancholy exhibition appears. The countenance is actually sodden & uite destitute-neither mirth or grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur, it is rarely articulate. "With woeful measures wan despair Low sullen sounds his grief beguiled." Debility is the most terrible! and has broug! t ousands to untimely graves, thus blasting the mbition of many noble youths. It can be cured by the use of this INFALLIBLE REMEAN.
