

Agricultural.

Cultivate the Farmer, as well as the Poet.

Horses Versus Oxen.

Which is the most profitable team for the farmer, horse or oxen? The question has been variously debated, but we have seen no better statement of both sides of the case than that given by Thayer, in his "Principles of Agriculture." He (in substance) says: "Horses are capable of all kinds of farm labor; they adopt themselves to every road and every degree of temperature. When horses are kept, there is no occasion to select their particular kind of labor; they may be employed in any work, and be attached to any vehicle or implement of the farm. Horses perform all kinds of work expeditiously as well as continuously, thus keeping those who labor with them more fully employed than is the case in working with oxen. Horses, though less steady at heavy draught than oxen, have the advantage of being quick in motion, enabling them to overcome all obstacles of short duration and such as would frequently stop oxen. Oxen, on the contrary, can perform many kinds of farm labor equally as well as the horse, and when well fed are capable of enduring nearly as much fatigue. Many persons consider them better than horses for ploughing. Oxen are kept much less expensively—their first cost is far below that of a horse—their harness is also much less costly, and their food of a cheaper character. Oxen, when well fed and not overworked, frequently increase in value, thus almost paying the interest on the original cost; horses on the contrary, decrease in value with their age, and finally become a dead loss to their owners. Oxen are less liable to accident and disease, and produce a greater amount of valuable manure than horses. Another writer goes into a lengthened comparison of the cost of the same work when executed by oxen or horses, and states the ratio of the first to the second as being 4 to 100. In almost all cases, almost one-fourth advantage in the use of horses. This we think altogether too large—and that the economy in either case depends upon the work to be done and the plentifulness or scarcity of appropriate food and work upon the farm.—Country Cult.

Grafting.

Out your apple and pear sections for grafting any time between now and the last of February; do not leave it till spring, for when they begin to flow it is too late. Keep them in a cold dry place. The best way is to pick them in dry sand and put them in the cellar. Lay them on the cellar floor or wall away from the mice and they will keep pretty well; but if they are allowed to become warm they will sprout; and if kept too damp they will rot. Look at them occasionally. They should not be sprinkled and dry when wanted in the spring, but should be green in bark when cut. In this condition they are alive and hungry for sap which they will absorb rapidly from the stock on which they are grafted and grow without fail. If they are plump, and look fresh when grafted they will dry up and die. The time for grafting is in the late afternoon, the stock is just setting. Some do it earlier and succeed, and some wait till the berries are as large as squirrel's ears. The best methods for the performance of the work, and the composition of the wax to be used can be learned from any work on horticulture, and most of our readers are probably familiar enough with these points, but more than half of the failures are caused by mismanagement of the joints.

To Keep Butter Fresh.

The Farm Journal, a German paper, published at Allentown, Pa., says butter will remain fresh and sweet for six months, or even longer, if prepared in the following manner: "Take the butter as it comes from the churn, and wash the lumps thoroughly with cold water, and then dry the lumps on a piece of clean cloth, break into small pieces and pack in a crock. The air must be evenly expelled. Set the crock in a kettle half filled with water, then place the kettle over a fire until the water boils. While boiling remove from the fire and let the crock remain in the water until cold, then place the crock in a cool place. The object in boiling is to purify the butter and precipitate the milk, which remains in it, previous to the boiling, to the bottom of the crock.

A North Carolina Avenger.—Gov. S. was a splendid lawyer, and could talk a jury out of their seven senses. He was especially noted for his success in criminal cases, and almost always clearing his client. He was once counsel for a man accused of horse stealing. He made a long, eloquent and touching speech. The jury retired but returned in a few moments and said to him in their own words, "The man is not guilty." An old acquaintance stepped up to the prisoner and said: "Jim, the danger is past; and now, honor bright, didn't you steal that horse?" To which Jim replied: "Well, Tom, I've all along thought I took that horse, but since I've heard the Governor's speech, I don't believe I did!"

Curiosities of the Earth.—At the city of Modena, in Italy, and about four miles around it, wherever the earth is dug, when the workmen arrive at the distance of thirty-three feet they come to a bed of chalk, which they bore with an auger five feet deep. They then withdraw from the pit before the auger is removed, and upon the extraction, the water bursts up through the aperture with great violence, and quickly fills this newly made well, which continues full, and is affected neither by rains nor draughts. But what is most remarkable in this operation is the level of water as demanded. At the depth of fourteen feet are found the remains of an ancient city—paved streets, houses, floors, and different pieces of mosaic work. Under this is found a soft, oozy earth, made up of vegetables; and at twenty-six feet deep, large trees entire, such as walnut trees, with the walnuts still sticking to the stem; and the leaves and branches in a perfect state of preservation. At twenty-eight feet, deep, a soft chalk is found, mixed with a vast quantity of shells, and this bed is eleven feet thick. Under this, vegetation is found again.

Things I have Seen.—I have seen the most worthless and lazy fellows dress the most fashionably. I have seen men who boasted much of their wealth, and who were not able to pay their taxes. I have seen men who made much noise about their bravery and daring exploits, and who were not able to stand up to a goose. I have seen men run in debt without any probability of being able to make good.

I have seen a man urging another to become a candidate for office, and I have seen the same fellow vote against him at the election. I have seen parents urge their children to marry against their inclinations; and I have seen a lovely young girl marry a rich old bachelor, merely for his wealth; and I have seen the young and beautiful, the talented, marry a dishing, brainless fellow, because he, too, was rich; and I have seen them ever drag out a wretched, miserable existence. During a recent trial at Abbeville, the following occurred to vary the monotony of the proceedings: Among the witnesses was one, an verdant specimen of humanity as one would wish to meet with. After a severe cross examination, the counsel for the government passed, and then putting on a look of severity, and an ominous shake of the head, exclaimed: "Mr. Witness, has not an effort been made to induce you to tell a different story?" "A different story from what I have told, your honor?" "That is what I mean." "Yes, sir; several persons have tried to get me to tell a different story from what I have told; but they couldn't." "Now, sir, upon your oath, I wish to know who those persons are?" "Well, your honor, you've tried 'bout as hard as any of 'em." The witness was dismissed, while the judge, jury and spectators indulged in a hearty laugh.

AMERICAN MONTHLY. A MAGAZINE for Ladies and Gentlemen, which will embrace all the popular features of the late Graham's Magazine. The New Magazine will combine all the most popular features of the best periodicals, while as regards pictorial embellishments it will far exceed any other periodical now published. Every number contains one or more of splendid Steel Engravings engraved by the best artists, from the most popular designs; also Colored Steel Fashion engravings in the very best style of art, expressly for this Magazine. For the accommodation of our readers, the Literary Department will embrace a judicious and unvarnished selection of Historical Sketches, Tales of Society, Sketches of Travel, Translations, Poetical Gems, &c. &c. Translations, Poetical Gems, &c. &c. Two copies, 1 year, $3. Four copies, 1 year, $6. Specimens furnished to all who wish to subscribe or make up a club. All Postmasters constituted Agents, but any person may get up a copy of this Magazine one year and compare with all others. Its superiority will be apparent at once. The January number will have Two Fine Steel Plates, one entitled "Papa's New Year's Treason," (which is beautifully colored) and the other "Satan's Night," a fine work of art. Address, post paid, HENRY WHITE, dec. 23, 1858. No. 7, Beckman St., N. Y.

KEYSTONE HOTEL, Montrose, Pa. Wm. H. Hatch, Proprietor. THIS new and commodious Hotel situated on Public Avenue, near the Court House, and nearly in the center of the business portion of Montrose, is now fully completed and furnished, and will be opened on Monday, the 27th day of the present month, for the accommodation of the traveling public. The Proprietor feels confident that he is now prepared to entertain guests in a manner that cannot fail to give complete satisfaction. The Hotel and Furniture are new, and no expense has been spared to render it equal, if not superior to any similar establishment in this part of the State. It is well supplied with all the recent improvements and comforts, and obliging waiters will always be ready to respond to the calls of customers. The Stables connected with this House are new and convenient. The Proprietor respectfully solicits the patronage of his old friends, and the public generally. Wm. H. HATCH, Montrose, Sept. 21st, 1858.
