And in truth, this was the case; and as they sat together, on the first evening they had spent together in their new home, they in ght well be pardoned if their thoughts went back sadly to that which they had left. Spacious rooms, costly furniture, luxurious appointments, flowers, perfumes and music were but the fit surroundings for such as they. It was not strange that their girlish philosophy did not serve to make them indifferent to their new discomforts, or content with bare walls and narrow rooms, or the noise of strange feet in the uncarpeted passages without, or all the thousand things which to them bespoke their fallen fortunes. Yet one. at least, was strong enough for the struggle before her; the strife for daily bread, and the poor but sufficient needs of their altered

Lapland Reindeer Travel.

Bayard Taylor, in his lecture on Lapland, thus speaks of reindeer travel. "A more bleak, and dismal region than the greater part of Lapland could not be imagined, except when the noonday sky of winter covers it with a mantle of grimson and gold. Here, however, God has made the home of one animal, without which human life would be impossible.—What the camel is to the Arab, the reindeer is to the Lap. He was created especially for service in the snow, as the camel was for journeys over the sand. He is not much bigger than a large Newfoundland dog, and a strong man Manch of IMPROVEMENT.
