OLD JOHN BROWN DEIFIED; AN ABOLITION FARCE.

Persons Represented. Chief PUGLISIAN, Rev. A. L. Post. Chaplain, Rev. John F. Deans. Prophet, Rev. J. C. Boomer. Collector, Rev. Wm. Nelson, colored.

The "Old Brown" Meeting. Curiosity led us to attend the meeting on Friday evening last, at the Baptist Church, in this village, at which Rev. A. L. Post was advertised to lecture on "Old John Brown." The attendance was pretty large in spite of the storm.

The address was written out, and was a studied and elaborate attempt to prove that Brown was an entirely innocent man, and that he died a martyr in a just cause, but that his present deification, like the deification at Lexington, Concord, and Bunker Hill, but the introduction of a strife that should not end until victory perched upon the banner of the rebellious party. After the address was concluded, F. B. Chandler moved that copies be presented to the editor for publication.

Prophet. Who says we clergy must not speak? We will be heard; the world shall live, and tyrants tremble! That editor who on the morrow dares to write that deeds of blood, such as we teach, are wrong, shall be accused, by youth, in years to come; but he who condescends to puff us up, he shall be blessed. The car of Abolition's God is mighty; 'twill crush the South beneath its wheel. Get out! Get out! Get out the way! Out rush the audience into the dark, dismal night, where

The furious tempest howled without, while furies rattled within. Brown's interview with his wife. Old John Brown had a late interview with his wife, in the parlor of Capt. Aris the day before his execution. They spent four hours together. He was free from manacles. As it was feared he might furnish him a weapon of poison, for self-destruction, she was searched by the jailor's wife, previously. The interview was a business one. He bequeathed fifty dollars, and some presents to each of his children, and three other persons; and the balance of his property to his wife. She owns a farm at North Elba, N. Y., where he desired her to remain. He suggested that his body, with those of his sons, should be buried upon a pile of pine logs, and the ashes taken to their graves, as a better, and less expensive way. He shook hands with his wife at parting, when she went to Harper's Ferry to await the delivery of his body, and he rarely for two or three years.

He visited each of his fellow prisoners the next morning, except Hazlett. He gave each a quarter dollar, cautioning them against betraying their friends.

Old Brown's Execution. John Brown was hung at quarter past eleven o'clock, on Friday, Dec. 2d, at Charles-town, Virginia. The military assembled at 9 o'clock, and were posted on the field leading to the place of execution, and also at various points, as laid down in the general orders. Everything was conducted under strict military discipline. Mounted scouts were stationed in the woods to the left of the scaffold, and picket guards were stationed out towards the Shenandoah Mountains, in the rear. The military on the field formed two hollow squares. Within the inner one was the scaffold, and between the inner and outer lines citizens were admitted. At eleven o'clock the prisoner was brought out of the jail, accompanied by Sheriff Campbell and Assistant and Capt. Aris, the jailor. A small wagon, containing a white pine coffin, was driven up, on which they took a seat. Six companies of infantry, a rifle company, a company of horse, and the General and his staff, (numbering 25 officers) headed the procession and marched towards the place of execution.

COSMOPOLITAN ART JOURNAL.

This well known and generally admired Magazine of Art presents to its subscribers an excellent quarterly issue for December. The Art Journal is one of the foremost of its class and should be liberally sustained by the American public. All the articles which we have read from the pages of this periodical are interesting and valuable, and a correct appreciation of the beautiful and admirable in art. The style in which the Cosmopolitan Art Journal is gotten up is unexceptionable. Its very typographical appearance is artistic.

The Speakers of Congress.

The following is a list of the men who have been Speakers of the Congress since its first organization.

The Speaker of the first American Congress was Pennsylvania—Frederick A. Muhlenberg—and he was re-elected to that post in the second Congress. He was succeeded by Jonathan Dayton of New Jersey, the ancestor of the present Hon. William L. Dayton, of that State, who remained in the chair for four years. Then came George Dent, of Maryland, in the fifth; Theodore Sedgwick, of Massachusetts, in the sixth; Nathaniel Macon, of North Carolina, in the seventh, eighth and ninth; Joseph V. Varnum, of Pennsylvania, in the tenth and eleventh; and then Henry Clay, Mr. Clay was a model Speaker of the House. He began in that capacity when just thirty-four years of age, and served in all about ten years. He occupied the chair (except during part of the Thirtieth Congress—when Langdon Cheves was chosen to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Clay's resignation on his appointment to act as one of the commissioners to arrange the treaty at Ghent, and during his absence in the second session of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Congress—until March 3d, 1825. After Mr. Clay, came John W. Taylor, of New York, in the Nineteenth Congress, and Andrew Stevenson, of Virginia, in the Twentieth, Twenty-First, Twenty-Second and part of the Twenty-Third. John Bell of Tennessee, in the Twenty-Fourth, and James K. Polk, of the same State, in the Twenty-Fifth and Twenty-Sixth. Mr. Polk was regarded as only second to Mr. Clay.

His promptitude and integrity, his impartiality and courage, endeared him to men of all parties, and during the most excited period in which he acted, and no doubt, made him prominent for the Presidency, which position he attained in a year after his retirement from Congress. He was succeeded in the Twenty-Seventh Congress, by Robert M. T. Hunter, of Virginia, who was elected after a severe struggle, as a Whig Following Mr. Hunter, came John White, of Kentucky, in the Twenty-Eighth Congress, and in an extraordinary which ensued, John W. Jones, of Virginia, John W. Davis, Indiana, and James K. Polk, of the same State, in the Twenty-Ninth Congress, Robert C. Winthrop, of Massachusetts, over the Third; Howell Cobb, of Georgia, over the Third; John W. Caldwell, of Kentucky, over the Third; and James Buchanan, over the Third; and James E. Orr, of South Carolina, over the Third.

The new Remedy for Consumption. The Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, discovered by Dr. Chrethul of Paris, is rapidly becoming popular and deservedly so. The use of the genuine Hypophosphites has been attended with such unexampled success, that we feel not only justified in recommending them, but also in warmly recommending the operation and certain in correcting all irregularities, whether from cold or otherwise, headache, pain in the side, palpitation of the heart, disturbed sleep, which arise from either of these causes.

Important to females.—Dr. Chrethul's Pills. The combination of ingredients in these Pills are the result of a long and extensive practice, in the treatment of all operations and certain in correcting all irregularities, whether from cold or otherwise, headache, pain in the side, palpitation of the heart, disturbed sleep, which arise from either of these causes.

General Agency for the United States, to whom all Wholesale orders should be addressed. Dr. J. W. LAMAR, Tanhannock, and ABEL TURELL, Montrose, Pa. Jan 10 1859.

Notice.—The high and eminent medical celebrity which this eminent medicine has acquired for its cures, has made it the basis of a dishonest and wicked scheme in which Dr. Burleigh, Wilson and Barham were engaged a few years ago. It appears that Dr. Burleigh promised Barham and Wilson that if Burleigh would advance certain sum of money to keep alive Barham's organ, the Boston Dispensary would give to Barham the right to sell the medicine, but Burleigh advanced the cash, and Barham, knowing him at the time to be totally unworthy of the office, gave him the appointment. Burham, as State liquor agent, has made a very handsome sum by "extending" (distilling) the liquor he had on sale. He is now in prison.
