IS PUBLISHED THURSDAYS, BY A.J. Gerritson.

OFFICE ON PUBLIC AVENUE. THREE DOORS ABOVE SEARLE'S HOTEL.

Terms.—$1,50 per annum in Advance; otherwise $3 will be charged—and fifty cents per annum added to arrearages, at the option of the Publisher, to pay expense of collection, etc. Advance payment preferred.

ADVERTISEMENTS will be inserted at the rate of $1 per square, of ten lines or less, for the first three weeks, and 25 cents for each additional week—pay down. Merchants, and others, who advertise by the year, will be charged at the following rates, viz.; No credit given except to those of known responsibility.

MONTROSE DEMOCRAT.

WE JOIN THE PARTY THAT CARRIES THE FLAG, AND KEEPS STEP TO THE MUSIC OF THE UNION.

VOL. 17.

MONTROSE, PA., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1860.

TO GARIBALDI.

BY S. W. T. Hail, Garibaldit hall, thou warrior brave! On whom the free Jehovah's blessing crave; Whom despots hate, but hate no less than fear, And long to stay thee in thy proud career. liefore thy arm puissant, fetters break, And heary empires to their center shake. And neary empires to their center state.
With sore dismay oppression reads its doom.
As rolls o'er hill and plain thy cannon's boom;
As main-haled squadrons, late enslaved by wrong.
With exultation round thy standard throng,

To crush their masters with relentless heel." On thee, great Chief, the wond'ring nations gas As when some comet, with resplendent blaze, Unlooked for wheels its fiery course on high. course on high, becuring lesser orbs that fill the sky. How should remembrance of the mighty dead, Who for their country and their firesides bled,

Thy noble soul with lofty aims inspire, And warm thy breast with ancient Roman fire! As onward sweeps thy firm, embattled hosts. Methinks I almost see the sheeted ghosts Of heroes long entombed, with beck ning glance And war-like mien imploring thy advan corn the death that but the body kills. And plant thy eagles on the "Seven Hills." Immortal Chief! ordained by God to smite, With vengeful sword, the focs of Truth and Hight,

When freedom's blood-stained banners proudly shir On snowy Alp-on blooming Appenine; When fair Italia'shall, at last, be free And Error's gloomy night her borders flee; When rocking thrones shall crumble into dust, And, side by side, the sword and scepter rust; When o'er all Europe's populous domain No tyrant dares to forge the clanking chain, Or necks of men with galling yoke oppress, And, demon-like, gloat over their distress:

When all-mankind throughout the earth shall si "Man's disenthralled !- God is our only king! The night is past, the night of bondage sore; 'And 'equal rights' prevail from shore to shore;— Should no misdeeds impair thy well-carned fame, By hosts unborn thy praises will be sung, Thy virtues give employ to ev'ry tongue; Thon wilt be ranked with Hampden, Cromwell, Tell And thousands more, who bravely fought and fell

For Independence, not the world's applause. The Felon's Daughter.

BY MISS M. REMICK

the west of England. Distinguished among grounds, rose the dwelling of Mr. Lee, mers. From the crimson roses twining my child by love and care." around the white porch, and the starry jessamine clustering over the narrrow casement, to the neatly-trimmed hawthorn hedge and well-pruned orchard, everything denoted the guiding of a busy mind, blending a love of the beautiful with the Deservedly popular was Mr. Lee with his fellow-townsmen for his public spirit, family were stirring, she rose from her his benevolence, and his cordial warm- sleepless couch, and gathering writing maheartedness, and scarcely less popular in terials, seated herself at her little table. her sphere was his amiable helpmeet. Of after beginning and casting aside several a large family, only two had lived to attain maturity, and it is with the eldest of a A painful discovery renders it my discovery renders it tain maturity, and it is with the eldest of . " A painful discovery renders it my du-tor of the parish, the elder son of a poor but aristocratic family, who had consented, not without some demur and unwillinguess, to his contracting an alliance with an humble farmer's daughter. The marriage was to take place in the early May. But scarcely had the first few weeks of the spring glided away, ere all this peace and satisfaction were changed to anxiety and grief by a sudden and plainly approaching dispensation. Without any appreent cause, Mrs. Lee's health suddenly failed, betokening a rapid decline.

With constant and unwearied care, Emily watched beside her pillow, and with even more than ordinary longing the sick woman looked forward to recovery. Convinced at last of the impossibility of this, her mind seemed to wander in distracting anxieties to the future, which her faithful nurse sought vainly to soothe. At length the cause of these anxieties was fully ex- again her heart saddened. plained. To her amazement. Emily learned from the dying woman that she had no legitimate claim to the name and position she bore; that "only by adoption and to suffer it now to be made public. Their love," as Mrs. Lee said, was she the daugh- marriage should take place as soon as her ter of the honest farmer and the woman year of mourning had expired. So they she had hitherto called mother. It was a parted, mutually relieved. With a lightshort and painful history. Ofi, how unut-terably painful to the noble and high-spir-ited sight and a cheek whose ashy pale-ness had given place to the soft glow of ited girl! who questioned bitterly in her anguish the wisdom and kindness of this make known the result of their interview. late disclosure. Mysterious too, and involved in uncertainties. They were tenants on a small farm in the north of England, when they were sentfor to visit a sick lady, who for some months past had been staying at lodgings who, with country rusticity, sat wondering what the lady could desire of them, and she shrank from leaving her little child alone and unprotected. She had no of which she named. Poor, and at that period burdened with a large family, only one of whom, hower- gracious message which the young rector for her throbbing temple, when a low was too advantageous to be declined. A New Year's festivities, that his mother and a servant, presenting a card, said a brief consultation ended with its ready acceptance. Only one question Mr. Lee asked, and that was answered in a manner servery shrank from the acceptance, she which separed to forbid for the first time alone, that ing the grain, and the presumption is a diley were for the first time alone, that ing the grain, and the presumption is a diley were for the first time alone, that ing the grain and the grain will be tharvested, her house in London; and much as Emily shrank from the acceptance, she with her.

Secretly shrank from the acceptance, she with a beninger of the first time alone, that ing the grain, and the presumption is and a servant, presenting a card, said a they were for the first time alone, that ing the grain and the presumption is and a servant, presenting a card, said a they were for the first time alone, that ing the grain and the presumption is and a servant, presenting a card, said a they were for the first time alone, that ing the grain and the grain and the presumption is and a servant, presenting a card, said a they were for the first time alone, that ing the grain and the presumption is and a servant, presenting a card, said a they were for the first time alone, that ing the grain and the presumption is and a servant presenting a card, said a they were for the first time alone, that ing the grain and the presumption is and a servant presenting a card, said a they were for the first time alone, that ing the grain and the presumption in the decline and a card, said a they were for the first time alone, the grain and t which seemed to forbid further inquiries. saw no sufficient reason for declining. "Mr. Howard," and smoothing back her The child's father was living, but not in a She was anxious, too, to conciliate her disordered hair, descended with a languid situation to be of any service to her at any lover's family, whose opposition to the step to receive her unknown visitor. period in the future—on the contrary, and match in the commencement had given But a glance at his countenance as he this last clause seemed to assert a legal her much pain.

weeks after this interview. Directly at the great metropolis. ter, they removed with their charge to the home they now occupied, it having been greeting which the widowed Mrs. Alliston in strict ignorance of her real parentage, at least until she had reached womanhood.

"I have always loved you as my own," be idle, and only fantasies of sickness."

fore," prayed Emily, "How can I enter that proud family in such entire ignorance ber. of my real parentage-debased-illegitias if to shut out the last agonizing fear. "Richard must know all. Oh, God be-And I so innocent of all blame."

Calmly, almost apathetically, in her deep stupor of suffering, Emily passed through at the opera that the painful discovery the painful scenes of the three following which the reader may have anticipated, ays, their mournful round of duties, till the last solemn services were over.

Then the little group at evening met round the longly hearth in the stillness of sorrow, and when the early hours had passed, as they withdrew to their chambers, the kind-hearted farmer seized an opportunity of saying to the lonely girl, CHAPTER I. "Don't grieve over what my poor wife told you, Emily. Many's the time we've thanked the kind Providence that sent you the many farm houses by the superior air to take the place of the little ones that of taste and neatness which pervaded its were taken from us. Let it be. What's the use of speaking to the rector about it? one of the most thriving and opulent far- You have been, and always will be, truly

> "He must know all," she answered, mournfully. "But I do thank and bless you for all your kindness," she added, with fervent emotion.

The long hours of that night were spent troduced her as simple Miss Lee of Wiltin devising the means of breaking her painful intelligence. At length she decided to commit it to paper, and as soon as the and promises. In the last days of her life tate her thus? She stole another side The opening of the year 1827 found this Mrs. Lee made known to me, for the first glance at the now averted face. It was little family in the enjoyment of unalloyed time, that I am her daughter only by adopprosperity and happiness. All, or even tion, and that my parentage is involved more, than Mrs. Lee's ambition for her in obscurity and uncertainty. It becomes, daughter, also, seemed about to be grati-therefore my duty to release you from our ified by her engagement to the young recongagement, and pray that you may be happy with another.

> She dispatched this at once by her broth- thoughts. er, and then entered the kitchen to assist

A few hours brought the young rector in person, and with a trembling heart she and for a moment found herself, to her entered the humble parlor to meet him.-In his countenance she-read at once bewas no change in his usual affectionate greeting. Side by side they sat down on the sofa, and an earnest conversation followed.

In answer to his inquiries, she narrated to him fully all that Mrs. Lee had made known to her; and then she listened with and taken the arm of her new protector, glad surprise to his warm refusal to be released from their engagement. But should she take advantage of his generosity? And

But his persuasion conquered. Let the secret still remain buried in Mr. Lee's bosom. It would be both idle and painful hope, Emily sought her adopted father, to CHAPTER II. The summer wore away, and the golden autumn, and the white shows of Christmas began to float-down upon the green earth. The passing weeks softened down the in the village, attracted thither for the first anguish of bereavement, and the banbenefit of the salubrious air, she stated to ished smile came back to Emily's lips .- ed in this stupor she knew not, but when her landlord, but the curious villagers sur- Through those long months they were to- she roused herself as conciousness returnmised some weightier reason. She felt gether, the betrothed, whether visiting ed, the gray light of morning was filling that her long illness was approaching its the cottage of the poor and sick, driving the narrow court. close, she said, to the bewildered pair, or rambling amidst the levely vales of Illsrelatives and no near friends to whom she ed against the windows and swept along whom I never knew?" could intrust her. In one of her rambles the sky. The gray old rectory, too, was through the village she had formed some about being refitted for the reception of the family at the breakfast table, and her acquaintance with Mrs. Lee, and had been the bride, and many were the consulta paleness, while it was kindly noticed by struck by her superior intelligence and tions and the pleasant improvements Mrs. Alliston, was imputed to late hours. amiability. The inquiries she had made which Emily's graceful taste suggested .having confirmed her judgment of both Those long winter evenings, those somber join that morning in a shopping excursion wife and husband, ishe desired them at her December days, which mutual affection and with a felling of relief heard the cardemise to adopt the child as their own, brightened with the sunshine and roses riage roll away, for she longed to be promising they should receive with it an of June, who could have foreseen in their alone ample pecuniary recompense, the amount fulness of happiness the clouds that were rising in the distance.

marriage, while it intimated worthlessness Her preparations for her visit were cade to her heart with a sudden chillor crime on the part of the husband and soon completed, and with a heavy heart, Controlling her agitation, she said, with father. But no marriage certificate could for it was her first absence from home, she difficulty

he found among her papers by Mrs. Lee, | bade good-bye to the kind-hearted farmer, | at her death, which took place but a few and under the rector's escort set out for circumstance I am indebted for this call stipulated that she should be brought up bestowed upon her, and all her presentithis emotion my child!" ments of home-sickness revived as she enat least until she had reached womanhood. Itered the spacious and comfortless draw. Itered the spacious and confortless draw. Itered the spacious and confortless draw. Itered the spacious draw in the spacious draw in the first property. Itered the spacious draw in the first property draw in the first property. Itered the spacious draw in the first property draw tered the spacious and comfortless drawwelcome that met her from Richard Allisconcluded Mrs. Lee, "and felt a mother's ton's sister, a tall, majestic woman, still pride in your prospects. I intended nev- levely, though past the bloom of youth. er to undeceive you. But within these The sumptuous tea service, sumptuous to few days I have begun to feel it in the light of a duty. We know not what may take place, or what your true connections the waiting servants, and the grave cerereally are. Still I fear that my fears must moniousness of the entertainers, all tended to be wilder and embarrass, and she was "Would this knowledge had come be- glad when her hostess, surmising her fatigue, suggested her retiring to her cham-

The next day but one, Alliston returned mate?" She buried her face in her hands, to his parish, and she was left to the hospitalities of her future mother and sister. A few drives in- the park, an evening at merciful to me! How can I give him up? the opera, and a few drawing-room calls at which she chanced to be present, com-In the stillness of her own little room prised most of her impressions of the she tried to compose her thoughts, and great London world; for her deep mournresign herself to the painful duty, before ing would have precluded her attendance her, but she was soon summoned back to at the gay round of New-Year balls which the bedside of her adopted mother, who had not yet closed, and to many of which was rapidly growing worse. Two days Miss Alliston received cards, though, in and nights of incessant and painful suffer consequence of their reduced fortunes, ings, and the weary eyes were closed in not now moving much in the higher cir-

> It was upon her second and last evening at the opera that the painful discovery was brought about.

In a box nearly opposite to that occupied by her party sat a gentleman who early attracted her observation by his intent and almost rude scrutiny of herself. His countenance seemed to her singularly familiar, yet when or where she had met it she found it impossible to recall. As if at length made conscious of the anoyance his gaze produced, he turned suddenly to the green curtain which was rising slowly upon the second scene, and she hoped that his rudeness had remained unnoticed by her companions. She had already learned to dread her chaperon's cold glances: It ill suited that haughty lady that the fresh, simple beauty of her brother's country wife that was to be, should attract admiring eyes, and her cold check always flushed when she in-

And this incident, trifling as it seemed, disarranged Emily's pleasure for the evening, and she sat unconcious of almost all that was passing before her. That un-known face had aroused a world of paincounter with a stranger, a rude gaze, agibearing traces of elegance and high breeding, but marred, even to her unpractised eye, by dissipations. Her returning eves met those of Miss Alliston; she felt that her emotion was becoming too visible, and strove to compose the hurry of her Glad was she when the curtain fell for the housemaid in preparing the morning the last time, amidst the cheers of the pit. In the hurry and confusion of the crowd, she became separated from her company, alarm, alone. A gentleman, who had evidently been following close behind her, wilderment, anxiety and distress, but there and whom she knew at a glance as the mysterious stranger, drew near, and observing her air of anxiety, with a graceful apology, proffered his sevices. Bewilderknowing what to do. But scarcely had met in his exit on her sudden return. she named Mr. Landsdowne's carriage. when she distinguished the former endeavoring to force his way towards them, having discovered her absence and returned in quest of her. After a brief word of explanation, she hurriedly bowed her thanks and adieu to her chanced escort, but not without noticing Mr.Landsdowne's involuntary expression of surprise.

Miss Alliston rallied her on her silence and preoccupation on the drive home. On reaching her room, she threw off her bonnet and furred pelisse; as she paused before the mirror an involuntary exclamation escaped her, and every remaining trace of color quitted her pale cheek. In her own face she solved the mystery which had so perplexed her. The inexplicable likeness was to herself. The mys erious stranger was her father! With this thrilling conviction forced upon her, she sank back white and breathless in her chair. How long she remain-

With the light of day, hope and resolu-

With her usual composed air she joined tually cold and unfavorable, he kept his On the plea of fatigue, she declined to

But hardly had she thrown herself upon her couch, and buried her face in the It was somewhat formally worded, yet pillows in a vain endeavor to seek repose

Mr. Howard," and smoothing back her swered kindly and frankly-rose at her entrance, made the blood re-

"Permit me to inquire, sir, to what from a stranger?"

me, tell me-she was a wife!"

"Far from it," she answered, harriedly.

me to the gaming-table, and I fell into money and whining. tion. My inquiries easily satisfied me of

He paused; but Emily's rigid and in the reach of all. But, abjure camphene deathlike face evinced no share in his emo- and other burning fluids, as you would as my own," he said, struck by her strange silence. "Rumor has already told me of your engagement to a country parson. It is well enough for a farmer's daughter but Miss Howard can indulge in higher ambitions."

These words, and the almost contemptnous tone in which they were spoken, at once strengthened her fluttering heart.

I will not talk of duty.

retreating form.

ment she heard a carriage drive up to the and useless except for the compost-heap. steps, and a moment after, Mrs. Alliston's In the latticed corn-house a close box voice in the hall. They had met face to stove can be profitably used for kiln-dryface, her unwelcome visitant and her state- ing the corn, an experiment we have known performed without a license. The happy ly mother-in-law!

ed and alarmed, she accepted them, not as to sher morning visitor, whom she had "Where-did Mr. Howard procure an introduction to you, my dear? I thought will much hasten the process of drying, you were wholly unacquainted in Lon- and prevent mouldiness.

"I was separated from my company last evening, madam, when we were leaving the hall, and as a stranger, he kindly offered me his services to seek out my car-

Mrs. Alliston's slightly elevated evebrows expressed surprise mingled with however made."

"The name is that of a distingished family," said Emily, with an effort. "Yes," said Miss Alliston "but he has long been discarded by his relatives.-Years ago, he perpetrated a forgery, which has banished him from good society, and which, but for the enormous sum paid to compromise, would have sent him to Newgate.'

Emily asked no more. Her pale cheek flushed to a permanent crimson. next day was gladly welcomed. She seized with avidity the opportunity of shortening her visit. If the young rector felt that the impressions arrive or less demonstrated and during the winter months. felt that the impressions made between or not well rotted down, when carried his betrothed and his family had been mudisappointment in his own breast.

The evening before her departure, Emed an opportunity of perusing alone. my home and heart are open to you."

er, lived to approach maturity, this offer bore to his betrothed near the close of the knock at the door compelled her to rise, mal leavetaking has been uttered, and tivator and harrow to prepare it for sow-painful discovery was ever made." [CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK.]

| rail road .- 'Oscar.

THE FARMER.

PREPARING FOR WINTER.—"Chill No-"Does not your own heart tell you, vember's surly blasts make fields and for-Emily?" he returned; "this agitation— ests bare, and old Winter with his frosty Involuntarily repulsing his movment to Northern and Western States, winter is embrace her, she sank down into a seat, not a myth, but a substantial reality, that and broken, it is much the better way to man and animals; and it is the part of a good grazing on the uncovered rocks, it wisdom, in the farmer and all others, to is no killing affair—it is better to shoe completely in ignorance, he said, sadly, seating himself beside her. "Be composed, my poor child—your parentage is pure ed, my poor child—your parentage is pure even noble, tarnished only by your father's faults. I can well agreement for the inmates of the house."

"Is no possione you nave been kept so be prepared to meet it, and as far as possible to guard against its severity upon the inmates of the barn as well as those of the house.

"Is no killing hffair—it is better to shoe how as Electrotype andmany others whose sleds than to break paths through three feet snows, and crowd the team over or through five-feet snow drifts.

Most farmers are now aware of the im-er's faults. I can well account for your shrinking from me," he added, stifling a banked up if necessary, so as to prevent the cold from entering the cellar and frosting the potatoes and other vegeta-I know nothing of the past, of all that bles stored therein. From neglect in mak-I long to learn! Tell me of my mother, ing their cellars frost-proof, we have known Why did she die alone, among strangers? many farmers to lose large quantities of What is this disgrace which hangs over potatoes in their cellars, by freezing, and me?" "Your mother was an orphan and an to purchase; (and sometimes at a high heiress. I was the younger son of a no-price too,) potatoes for planting and for ble family. My father was not burdened table use. A few hours of well directed with wealth, and my allowance fell much labor early in November, in fixing up their short of my expenditures. My wants led cellars, would have saved their potatoes, other dissipations only too common to Broken windows should be attended young men in London society. It was to; glass and putty are cheap, to what then limet your mother for the first time, they were half a century ago, and there is no longer any excuse for filling the labeled they were half a century ago, and there is no longer any excuse for filling the labeled they were half a century ago, and there is no longer any excuse for filling the labeled they were half a century ago, and there is no longer any excuse for filling the labeled they were half a century ago, and there is no longer any excuse for filling the labeled to give the temperature of labeled they wind the labeled they were half a century ago, and there is no longer any excuse for filling the labeled they will be a controlled to the stock; but if a proper notice of disease which might otherwise escape attention, till too late to be remeted to the temperature of late to be remeted to the weather—whether very cold or mode neglected. Headaches may be classified claimed me. Her guardian refused his broken windows with old-hats, cast-off consent to our marriage, and it was de-layed intil she became of age. Could I was so frequently the case in the "good have foresworn the gaming-table, all would old times" we occasionally hear of. Evehave been well, but I could not resist its rything connected with the house should fascinations, and became involved in debts be made snug and comfortable, both inof honor. In an evil hour, when my senses side and out. The principal living room were drugged with wine, I forged a check —Discovery followed! My poor wife forsook me with her child: It was long, very long before I found a clue to the to the cold, dark, north side of the place in which she had sought to bury her house, where the sun scarcely peers in anguish and shame. Then it was to stand upon the inmates from November to by her grove, and to learn that my child April, is poor economy indeed, and still had been conveyed away, none knew poorer to stint the children, who wish to whither. When I saw you last night at read or study, to the feeble light of a the opera, the striking resemblance to small-sized, greasy tallow candle. Good your mother at once attracted my atten- oils of various kinds, for illuminating purposes, with lamps to match, are now everywhere obtainable, and at prices withthe fangs of the deadly serpent. Furnish the sons and daughters of farmers with suitable books, agricultural and other papers and periodicals, and good lights of their fleeing from the parental roof, and nous tone in which they were spoken, at once strengthened her fluttering heart.

"I thank you," she said, "for your kind purposes, but my ambition is fully satisfied. Nay, hear more, and oh, forgive me! a large amount of water. When the contains in the meanting, we will suggest that index. fied. Nay, hear more, and oh, forgive me! a large amount of water. When the corn from this to the first of December, will be The proud family I am about to enter is stored in cribs, or in latticed corn houses, a good time to make all needful arrangethat of a man past the early prime of life, might not receive me, even now, as readi-that of a man past the early prime of life, ments for the most economical way of unreasonable. I gave you only existence. of 1857. The corn was harvested and be violated with impunity. Country Gencribbed as usual, and near the close of tleman. "Stay!" She exclaimed, struggling November of that year, a few days of exwith conflicting feelings; but her prayer treme cold occurred which froze the juicy was unheeded as the door closed upon his cobs, and when the weather became mild enough to thaw, most of the corn was As ill-fortune directed, at that very mo- found nearly worthless, becoming slimy y mother-in-law! to have been successfully tried on several pair were accompanied by a sister of the It was after lunch was over that Mrs. occasions. When the corn is spread upon girl—a tall, gaunt, sharp featured female the leaving of the "old folks at home," in their downhill of life.

A few days since we saw some newlyharvested corn, which had been thinly spread upon a garret floor. The owner over, and in fair weather the windows should be kept open for the purpose of.

ed with large bows of evergreens, will parel. composition will in, a greater or less de-gree be carried on during the winter newly-wedded pair, and that her sister this month, clayey and other stiff soils. ily received a note, which she eagerly seiz The furrow slices as left by the plow, are generally in a much better condition to fully said the newly-married man, soften "I did not leave you so abruptly in un-kindness," it ran. "It may be that your and atmospherical agencies, than if they be operated upon by the winter's frost, lot is chosen wisely. But should a change were harrowed fine and then rolled. Corn take place in your views, remember that and other stubble ground, intended for wheat, barley or oats, the coming spring, She pressed it thankfully to her lips according to the experience of some good with a great sense of relief.

It was on her way home, when the forin the fall. Such land needs only the culfarmers, should be well and deeply plowed that can be, towards spring's work. A "In the sins of others, you can have no scarcity of hay, and wet, backward shard, my Emily. Let us forget that this springs, sometimes put the farmer so far in the background that he can scarcely "catch up" through the whole seasonmuch of which might have been avoided Name for a conductor on a horse by having a portion of his spring's work done in the previous autumn.

If not already attended to, the dark, drizzly days of November afford the farmer a favorable time to repair and put in order his sleds, chains, axes, and handests bare, and old Winter with his frosty spikes, for getting up the year's supply of beard," will soon be upon us; and in the fire-wood, timber, mill-logs, &c. Where > portant fact, that warmth and shelter for farm stock, to a certain extent, is equivalent to an extra amount of food, or, in other words, cattle, &c., kept in good, warm, well-ventilated hovels, stables, sheds, &c., require a much less amount of food to keep up or increase their growth, than the same stock would if exposed to the out-door cold and storm of our northern and western winters for months together, as is too often the improvident and cruel practice of farmers in some secquire less hay than it allowed their liber-ty to range far and near. Others think For the treatment of either class of

ROUGH BEGINNING OF THE HONEYMOON On last Friday morning an athlethic young farmer, in the town of Wanesburg, took a fair girl, "all bathed in blushes," from her parents, and started for the first town across the Pennsylvania line to be married, where the ceremony could be crossed the line, were married and returned to Wellsville to pass the night. party stopped observed that they conmanner. The husband would take his one corner of the parlor and talk earnestly to her, gesticulating wildly the while. thought when harvested, that it was well Then the tall female would "put her foot ripened and dry, but upon examination a down" and talk in an angry and excited few days afterwards, the underside of a manner. Then the husband would take large portion of the ears was mouldy his fair, young bride into a corner, but he Such corn will not make good sweet bread, no sooner commenced talking to her, nor do well for seed. The raising of the than the gaunt sister would rush in beonsappropation.

'An acquaintance founded upon such a trifle is presumptions! And in fact, Mr. Howard is a gentleman whose acquaintance can hardly be considered an honor, herear made."

In the property of the rake in the mouldiness. This is a matter worth attending to, as is also that of picking over the property of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the mouldiness. This is a matter worth attending to, as is also that of picking over the property of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in between them and angrily join in the convergence of the rake in the gaunt sister would rush in the gaunt sister would tending to, as is also that of picking over and assorting the potatoes stored in the cellar, if there is much appearance of rot. The good economy of carting out ma- culine "swear" startled the people at the nure, and depositing it in conical or ridge- hotel, and they rushed to the spot. The like heaps, in the autumn, near where gaunt female was pressing and kicking wanted for next year's crops is well unagainst the door of the room, and the derstood by all who have practiced it. If newly-married man, mostly undressed there is danger of the heaps freezing badly, was barring her out with all his might and not thawing in the spring as soon as Occasionally she would kick the door far wanted, a good covering of brakes, leaves, onough open to disclose the stalwart husor something of the kind, and this cover-band in his gentleman Greek Slave ap-

It appeared that the tall female insisted was favorably disposed to the arrange ment, and that the husband had agree to it before the wedding took place, and It is also good economy to plow during was now indignantly repudiating the con-

Won't you go away, now, Susan, peace

"No," said she, "I won't-so there "Don't you budge an inch!" cried the married sister within the room. "Now, now, Maria," said the young man to his wife, in a piteous tone, "don't go to cuttin' up in this way; now don't!" "I'll cut up's much's I wanter!" she sharply replied.

"Well!" roared the desperate man, throwing the door wide open and stalking out among the crowd, "well, jest you two wimin put on your duds and go right a hundred; bring 'em all here, and I'll marry the whole d-d caboodle of 'em, and we'll all sleep together!" The difficulty was finally adjusted by the tall female taking a room slone. Wellsville is enjoying itself over the sensation.

home, and bring the old man and woman and your grandfather, who is nigh on to

JOB PRINTING of ALL KINDS. DONE AT THE OFFICE OF THE DEMOCRAT

MEATLY AND PROMPTLY. REATLY AND PROMPTLY, AND AT "LIVE AND LET LIVE" PRICES.

THE office of the Montrose Democrat has recently been supplied with a new and choice variety of type, etc., and we are now prepared to print pamphlets circulars, etc., etc., in the best style, on show notice. Handbills, Posters, Programmes, and her kinds of work in this line, done according to order. Business, Wedding, and Ball Caros, Tickets, etc., printed with neatness and despatch Justices' and Constables' Blanks, Notes, Deeds, and all other Blanks, on hand, or printed to order 127 Job work and Blanks, to be paid for on delivery.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE AMALGAMATION OF LANGUAGES. There is a growing tendency in this age to appropriate the most expressive words of other languages, and after a while to incorporate them into our own; thus the word Cephalic, which is from the Greek, signifying "for the head," is now becoming popularized in connection with Mr. Spalding's great Headache remedy, but it will soon be used in a more general way, and the word Cephalic will become as com-

'ardly Realized.

Hi 'ad 'n 'orrible 'cadache this hafternoon, hand I stepped into the hapothecaries hand says hi to the man, "Can you hease me of an 'cadache?" "Does it hache 'ard," says 'e. Hexceedingly," says hi, hand upon that 'e gave me a Cephalic Pill, hand pon me 'onor it cured me so quick that I ardly realized I 'ad 'ad an 'cadache.

THE HEADACHE is the favorite sign by tions of our county. Where large numbers which nature makes known any deviation bers of horses and cattle are kept in the whatever from the natural state of the stable or hovel, there may be some danger brain, and viewed in this light it may be of having the hovels too close and warm looked on as a safeguard intended to give for the health of the stock; but if a proper notice of disease which might otherwise the weather-whether very cold or mod-neglected. Headaches may be classified erate, or quite warm—little fear need under two names, viz: Symptomatic and there be of having the hovels too warm. Idiopathic. Symptomatic Headache is In very cold weather but little fresh is exceedingly common and is the preneeded, in addition to that which will cursor of a great variety of diseases, force its way into the hovel through the among which are Apoplexy, Gout, Rheu"cracks and crevices;" in milder weather matism and all febrile diseases. In its more air should be admitted; in warm enervous form it is sympathetic of disease weather the doors and windows should be of the stomach constituting sick headache, kept open. To manage these matters of hepatic disease constituting billious aright, requires attention and judgment on headache, of worms, constipation and other the part of those having charge of the disorders of the bowels, as well as renal farm during winter. Farmers differ some- and uterine affections. Diseases of the what in their management of sheep and heart are very frequently attended with young cattle. Some prefer keeping their | Headaces; Anamia and plethora are also sheep mostly in the barn, where they affections which frequently occasion head-have suitable feeding racks; others give ache. Idiopathic Headache is also very their flock the choice of sleeping in the common, being usually distinguished by barn or out-doors. For the best health the name of nervous headache, sometimes of the sheep, whether they lodge out-doors coming on suddenly in a state of appaor under cover, they should be well litter- rently sound health and prostrating at ed with straw, refuse hay, or dry leaves, once the mental and physical energies, Some farmers, of late years, "tie up." all and in other instances it comes on slowly, their cattle, old and young, giving them the range of the barn-yard for an hour or ty of temper. In most instances the pain two each day through the winter, if not is in the front part of the head, over one too cold or stormy. It is thought by such or both eyes, and sometimes provoking and pleasant rooms, and we shall hear less farmers that their cattle do better and re- vomiting; under this class may also be over large sections of the country, the their liberty in the yard, or under sheds, found a sure and safe remedy, relieving

Constipation or Costiveness.

there is danger of it becoming moundy, and they would the poor farmer's daughter."

This check flushed angrily. He rose, and in the control of the control of the ease with tens of thousands of bushels of corn in the western States, in the autumn tions, for the laws of animal life cannot habits; it is regarded as a slight disorder of too little consequence to excite anxiety. No one of the "many ills flesh is heir to?" of too little consequence to excite anxiety. while in reality it is the precursor and companion of many of the most fatal and --dangerous diseases, and unless early eradicated it will bring the sufferer to an untimely grave. Among the lighter evils of which costiveness is the usual attendant are Headache, Colic, Rheumatism, Foul Breath, Piles and others of like nature, while 'a long train of frightful diseases such as Malignant Fevers, Abcesses, Dysentary, Diarrhea, Dyspepsia, Apoplexy, It was after lunch was over that Mrs. occasions. When the corn is spread upon distance and property of some thirty-seven summers. The pair driasis, Melancholy and Insanity, first indicate their presence in the system by this alarming symptom. Not unfequentkeeping up a free circulation of air, which People at the hotel where the wedding ly the diseases named originate in Constipation, but take on an independent ducted themselves in rather a singular existence unless the cause is eradicated in an early stage. From all these considersister-in-law, the tall female aforesaid, into ations it follows that the disorder should receive immediate attention whenever it occurs, and no person should neglect to get a box of Cephalic Pills on the first appearance of the complaint, as their timely use will expel the insidious approaches of disease and destroy this dangerous foe to human life.

CURE CURE CURE NervousHeadache Headache.

or Sick Headache may be prevented; and if taken at the commencement of an attack, immediate relief from pain and sickness will be obtained: -

They seldom fail in removing the Nausca and Headacks to which females are so subject.
They act gently upon the bowels,—removing Conferences, For Literary Men. Students. Delicate Females, and all persons of sedentary habits, they are valuable as a lazarire, improving the appetite, giving tone and vigor to the diges-tive organs, and restoring the natural classicity and strength of the whole system.

The CEPHALIC PILLS are the result of long investigation and carefully conducted experiments, having been in use many years, during which time they have prevented and relieved a vast amount of pain, and suffering from Headache, whether originating in the assume system or from a deranged state of the stomach.

They are entirely vegetable in their composition, and may be taken at all times with perfect safety without making any change of diet, and the absence of any disagr taste renders il easy to administer them to children. * Beware of Counterfeits.

The genuine have five signatures of Henry C. Spalding Sold by Druggists and other Dealers in Medicines

A box will be sent by mail prepaid on receipt of the All orders should be addressed to HENBY C. SPALDING. novin y 3ch 48 Codar street, New York.