Louk away! look away! look away!

Happy Land!

If faithful here to every duty.

Mine shall be that land of beauty;

Look away! look away! lookaway! Happy Land. Then sing of the land so happy,

All bright! all bright! For the happy land I'll take my stand,

And strive for a crown in glory.

There's a joyous HOME beyond death's river,

Where bright angels dwell forever.
Look away! blook away! look away!

Pain, nor grief, nor storm nor winter

Look away! look away! look away!

Then come to that home so levely.

That leads to home and heaver

By prayer and faith come seek the path

There's a joyful mist for the worn and weary,

Then turn from this world of sorrow, All dark! all drear!
To that brighter land and joyour home,

And endless rest in glory.

Away, away, away, above in glory

Away, away, away, above in glory.

Away, away, away above in heaven

Away, away, away above in heaven.

Wanderers o'er this desert dreary— Up above; up above! up above! peaceful rest And if our hearts to Christ are given,

We may claim that rest in heaven—
Up above! up above! endless rest.

Blessed home! In that fair home no death shall enter,

Blessed home!

DR. H. SMITH & SON,

it might be of some use as an index to the present to specific soft public sentiment on a question of the very highest importance. In times like these, men's opinions are moulded principally by events, and it is a matter of interest to ascertain how far, if at all, the course of the war has, developed and weaken the loyal, and, by interest of the war has, developed and and revolutionary designs. The speech, to which we have several times referred, has certainly doing as much as lay within the compass of one man's powers to inspire this suspicion; to district and weaken the loyal, and, by interest to a secretain how far, if at all, the course of the war has, developed and a tendency in the public mind to make the emancipation of the slaves an instruloyal states, whose hearty and united support of the war is the one indispensable condition of its success. The report of the committee to investi-gate the frauds alleged to have been committed by contractors and others upon the State for clothing, &c., for the three months' volunteers, has just been made. A majority of the committee were Republicans, and it is a noticeable fact that although the report states that it was made up in August, it was not made public till four days after the election! August 7th it is dated: now why was it thus held back? Obviously for no other reason than the fear that it would operate on the election to the detriment of the Republican party. And yet those people tell us we must have no party now! All is sunk in patriotism; but for fear that the people would not vote patriotically, they must not know how the State had been plundered and the soldiers robbed till after the election! Away with such patriotism-away with such pretences. It is a downright sham -an imposition on the people of the State. On the subject of the blankets for the soldiers, the report says, "Some of them were bought for $1,50 per pair, and sold to the State for $3,50." This price, however, was subsequently reduced to $3,17 per pair; and they add that such conduct from beginning to end will not commend itself to the honest convictions of our lellow citizens." They also say we must "condemn the self-interest which, in the hour of national peril, forgetting all pa-

The Volunteer's Farewell-The reveille is sounding, love, It calls me from thine arms; it bids me leave my peaceful hor To share in war's alarms. Yet though the cheek be pale, dear love And pearly tear drops fall,— I know thou wouldst not have me stay, Nor shrink from duty's call.
Then once more fare thee well, my love! Nay, check those falling tears! On our good swords this day depend The hopes of future years— On heaven we'll rest our confidence Who blessed our early love ; And faithful shall our hearts remain-Fixed as the stars above. If in the conflict falling, love, A blessing will descend Upon the grave of him who dies His country to defend. Though thou bewail my loss, dear love

One loy is surely thine. Which shall assuage the present grief, And solace life's decline. For long as summer's pleasant gale : Ripple the sea's blue wave, A nation's love shall hallow The humblest patriot's grave; And dear to every faithful heart Our names shall ever be .. While floats beneath the vault of heaven, The banner of the free.

No langer can I linger, love! Our flag is now unfurled; Upon its course is fixed this day The gaze of all the world; Our country's name and thine, dear My battle cry shall be, And long as life will I remain, Faithful to it and thee.

and Palm, and we make a couple of striking extracts from it. Speaking of the dead Parker, Wendell says: "He belonged to that class which without office, has been able by simple weight of character and thought to revolutionize this country. He died just at the day-break of the success of those efforts, and to-day the nation reels under the blows of his mighty right hand. I thank God for it! For us who sympathize with him, We may lift up our heads; for the day of our deliverance has come. The sky is all bright, from the centre to the circumference, with gleams of hope. God has broken up the foundation of the Union and he will not renew it!"

Here we have the distinct avowal of the purposes of Abolitionists-"to revolutionize this country." To-day the nation reels under the blows received from Abolitionists, and Wendell thanks. God for it! They may now lift up their heads; for the day of their, deliverance (the destruction of the country) is come. Whilst patriots are mourning in desponder cy over the sad prospects of the country, to them.
"the sky is all bright." They can impiously exclaim, "God has broken up the Union, and he will not renew it."

Having thus established the claim of the Abolitionists as having been the authors of disunion and civil war, Wendell and Alabama Regiments, made an attack proceeds to declare that they are determined to prevent all remedies for the rust that the proceeds to declare that they are determined to prevent all remedies for the rust that the proceeds to declare that they are determined to prevent all remedies for the rust that the proceeds to declare that they are determined to prevent all remedies for the rust that the proceeds to declare that they are determined to prevent all remedies for the rust that they are determined to the rust that they are determined to the rust
