At Bost on on Saturday last, four small boys, from five to ten years of age visited the senshore on the Northerly side of Savni Hill, Dorchester, and heedlessly stepped upon a piece of floating ice. The tide was then on the ebb and floated the boys off some seventy or eighty rods from the shore into deep water, before their perilous condition was discovered. The alarm being given, several of the neigh-bors ran to the heach, but on their arrival they found the boys to far off to be rescued without a boat, and there was no boat near enough to be made available in season to save them. The little piece. of ice on which they stood - being not more than five or six feet square -- was rocking by the force of the water and the uneven balancing of the boys' weight upon it. In this emergency, Mr. Joseph S. Hil-lard—father of one of the youngest boys arrived upon the beach just in time to sce two of the smallest slip from their position on the ice into the water. With ad-
