And as the heart, or, as others would express it, the Sensibility and the Will, must share in any right or proportionable education (for what is intellect merely in a devil ?) the development of the moral feeling, the affections, the love of virtue and truth, will become an-integral part of the systematic cultivation.

In the department of the intellect there will be many changes. This is an age of condensation. Truth is assuming compacter forms and a narrower compass. Men live fast in a little space. The child of this meridian time opens its eyes on more facts in twelve months, than did its father in as many years. The next fifty years is to increase the ratio of this effect greatly. The sciences will be simplified and made more embracing. The abstract and difficult deductions of the Philologist, the Mathematician and the Philosopher, will be reduced to simple elements, so that the common school may, at no distent day, place within the reach of every child of the state, the rudiments of all val nable-knowledge and acquirements, and education will not be stinted, but a general and comprehensive effect, moulding and making the scholar, the citizen and the man. At such an epoch, the teacher's will be an important station. The question asked him then will be, not "have you studied?" but "do you know?" It is a fact, now overlooked, that the inprinciples, can present more truth to a probably explain that it is to be held at learner, and communicate more knowledge. #### President Lincoln Rejecting the Black Brigade.

In the history of this war, perhaps in the history of this republic, there is noth ing more sublime than the rebuke of President Lincoln to the traitors who attemp ted to coerce him to accept a black brigade for the war. The chief magistrate instinctively perceived that the radicals wanted to defeat the war for the Union, and to effect an everlasting separation be tween the white men of the North and South, for the sake of a parcel of niggers who only curse the fanatics for their pains Nothing Mr. Lincoln has yet done will so elevate him in the estimation of the publie as this, and give him such command ing power.. It will enable him to plant his foot on the neck of the abolition serpent which is plotting his destruction.— Let him stand by the people, and the people will stand by him, and put down all raitors, North and South. The greatest have ever received is the reply of the President to the deputation urging him to accept the negro brigade. The days of the abolitionists are numbered.

It is expected to raise a bounty of $50 for each man who shall enlist in these companies, to be paid before they leave the county. A large amount is already pledged for that purpose. This will be a free gift of the citizens, and additional to the bounty offered by the Government, Company No. 1 will be organized as soon as the minimum number shall have enlisted; the company in each case electing its own ofticers. In the meantime, squads will organized for drill, to be perfected in the "school of the soldier." Arrangements have been made for the subsistence of the
