THE PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION.

From the N. Y. World, (Rep.) President Lincoln has swung loose from the constitutional moorings of his inaugural address and his messages at the opening of two successive sessions of Congress under his administration. He is fully aware of the current of radical fanaticism. We regret for his sake, which is for the sake of the country, that he has been coerced by the insanity of the radicals, by the denunciation of their presses, by the threats of their governors and senators that he should resign, into a proclamation which on its face violates the Constitution.

Republican Opinion of Lincoln's Proclamation. The New York Times, commenting on the President's Emancipation Proclamation, says: "From now till the first of January the day will be divided into three parts. What may happen between now and then, if the progress of the war, it is hard to say the military hand, and that the terrible element of slave insurrection may not be invoked."

No Party in Indiana County. The abolition-republicans of Indiana county have given another exhibition of the no-party patriotism which they are at present so heavily burdened. The democratic committee invited the republicans to forego all party meetings, but the republicans refused to adopt the plan.

Who are for "No-Party"? A fair example of what sincerity there is in the no-party professions of the republicans, has been noted by Michigan. The Democrats offered to join the Republicans in a union party convention, but the no-party party refused to have side party for patriotism. The basis of union proposed by the Democrats was as follows:

LOOK TO CONGRESS.

The elections for members of Congress, which take place this fall demand the undivided attention of the country. We regard the Congressional elections this year as of more importance than any which have been held for the past fifty years. Upon them depends in a great measure the integrity, the very existence of the country. The radical Congress now in power, through its last session, has shown the influence of Congressional action during a crisis like this. This Congress, during a single session, nearly accomplished the ruin of the nation. There never was collected a more wicked, silly, revolutionary body of crazy fanatics. When they at last adjourned the whole country gave a deep sigh of relief, and thanked God that the worst was over.

The Coming Election. Perhaps no more favorable opportunity than the present will ever occur for securing this government from the hands of men who are demonstrated to be ready for its guidance through the hands of the people now undergoing. The people awake to the danger, and are resolved to meet it. We have tried the radicals, agitators and abolitionists long enough. They have succeeded, by their foolish and impracticable schemes and legislation only in marring the South more fully against us, and dividing the North into parties, which, unless more moderate courses, we will promise soon to become as bitter in feeling to each other as the South can wish.
