Major General Sumner, U. S. A. died at Syracuse N. Y. last week at an advanced age.

A Harrisburg paper says the Legislative Investigating Committee appointed to examine the bribery and corruption alleged in connection with the last Senatorial election, will soon be ready to report.

The rebel force which has taken possession of Danville, Ky., is believed to be the advance of Gen. Longstreet's division. Our leaders have promptly arranged to meet them. Federal troops by thousands are pouring into Cincinnati, whence they are quickly sent to the field. We shall hear stirring news from this quarter ere long.

KANSAS CITY, March 24.—A gentleman just from Santa Fe states that a large body of Indians, consisting of Comanches, Navajos, and other border tribes, have returned from an expedition to Texas, where they captured 600 horses, a large number of cattle, destroyed much property, and killed many Texans.

LOUISVILLE, March 24.—The rebels, reported from 3,000 to 10,000 strong, more following them, have taken possession of Danville. They crossed the Cumberland river, via Null Spring, to Somerset. There are no rebels at Glasgow or Mumfordsville, or in that section of the state.

The Evening Post has seen a light on the way to Damascus. It has discovered that the "Copperheads" are fighting the battles of their country. A little while ago the arduous loyalty of the country was altogether "Republican." Yesterday in commenting upon a peace speech the Post explains to the orator.

If he does not know what a war Democrat means, let him look to the hundreds of thousands of Democrats in front of the foe."

And these "hundreds of thousands" are the men, whom, with their friends of the same mind at home, the Post proposes to excommunicate from all expression and assertion of their own opinions as to the policy of the war, on the penalty of high treason.

It is stated that G. B. Swan, a negro, was elected one of the trustees of the town of Pottsdam, St. Lawrence co. N. Y. at the recent election. That is a strong abolition region, and this election but foreshadows the ultimate result of the prevalence of abolition politics—negro equality.

Call on your Grocer for Herrick Allen's Gold Medal Saleratus. It is the only perfectly healthy Saleratus made.—After using one half the paper, if you are not satisfied return the balance, and get the money paid for the whole. It is much better to use cream tartar than soda. Try it. For sale by Grocers and Druggists, and at wholesale by all Dealers.—Depot 112 Liberty Street, New York.

Late news from the Mississippi states that the gunboat Diligent, belonging to Admiral Porter's fleet, had succeeded in entering the Yazoo river above Haine's Bluff, by way of the Cypress and Steele's bayous. She bore one regiment of volunteers, and was followed by four iron-clads and a large federal force. The position thus attained will enable our fleet to get between Yazoo city and Haine's Bluff, placing the latter between two fires and rendering the evacuation of Vicksburg certain. This intelligence, brought by a gentleman just arrived from above Vicksburg, is deemed authentic.

A report from Washington gives some rumors of the probable intention of the enemy to abandon the line of the Rappahannock and fall back toward Richmond; also, that the Secretary of War believes that the confederate seat of government is soon to be removed to a more southern city.

It seems to be very well understood that as soon as the provost-marshals are selected and an enrollment secured, that a draft will be first ordered in that States have not filled their quotas under the old allotment, for men enough to fill up deficiencies. This will put at least forty thousand men in the field, with prospects of a call ere June for two or three hundred thousand additional.

We have to record another disgraceful performance in the Army of Tennessee. A force of rebel cavalry attacked 300 of our men yesterday (25th) within nine miles of Nashville. The colonel commanding the latter, without making any resistance at all worthy of the name—surrendered, and these 300 men, with all the government property they had been set to guard, fell into the hands of the enemy.

The latest news from the Southwest is, that Admiral Farragut's vessel had recaptured the Indianola at Hard Times Bend. The Queen of the West is up Black river beyond our reach. It is reported that Gen. Banks had failed to make a land attack, and that Admiral Farragut passed the rebel batteries at Port Hudson alone at night under a terrific cannonade. The Mississippi was burned to the water's edge. Thirty of her officers and crew captured. It was rumored that Haine's Bluff had been flanked through the water rout.

The President's Responsibility.

The President has already assumed the responsibility for all the sins of his Cabinet subordinates—he has voluntarily made himself answerable for all the crimes and corruptions of the War Department, and all the mismanagement and nepotism of the Secretary of the Navy. One would think this weight enough to crush any man, even a rail-splitter of vast physical proportions, iron sinews, and grizzly bear endurance and tenacity of life. Mr. Lincoln apparently bears up under it, his elastic conscience and shallowness of intellect protecting him, in a measure, against the crushing effect such a load would have upon a more sensitive nature, and finer intellectual organization. But there is yet a heavier, a vastly heavier responsibility about to devolve upon him—one which he cannot shun if he would, and which will crush him to powder if he should blindly mistake or fail in his duty the responsibility of so conducting his administration as to restore peace and save the country from disintegration.

The wise man has said truly there is a season and a time for all things. We admonish Mr. Lincoln that the time for trifling and joking is not now, when the nation is in its death agonies; that now is the time for action, wise, Constitutional action, for the exertion in that direction of all the energies of mind which God has given him and all the power which his fellow-citizens have conferred upon him. If he is wise, or if he will listen to wise counsel and obey it, all may yet be well if it is not too late; but he must begin now—now while the opportunity is his. Procrastination, always dangerous, in his case will be death. We commend to his attention the remarks of that able and astute journal, the N. Y. World, which we subjoin. They are sound and pertinent, and ought not to be disregarded at a moment so perilous, by even the President of the United States. The World says:

"There is ground for the most serious alarm in view of the changes that must inevitably ensue shortly after the adjournment of Congress. The bad point for Mr. Lincoln lies in the fact that his obstinate resistance to the universal demand of the country has completely extinguished military enthusiasm among the people. A great part of the army goes out of service this spring, and he has rendered it impossible to raise a single new regiment to supply their place. The enforcement of a draft, in such a state of feeling, will prove scarcely less difficult than the voluntary enlistment of soldiers. The fact that the draft ordered last summer had to be virtually abandoned, although the military ardor of the people had not then become deadened, naturally excites the gravest misgivings as to the success of a new attempt. There is a most painful recognition of the extinct military spirit of the people in the new conscription bill, whose framers dare not intrust its execution to the State authorities, as was done in the draft ordered last year, but create a new machinery, entirely independent of State co-operation. This great innovation upon former usage is a short sighted expedient which will enhance the difficulties it seeks to avoid. It is bad policy for the government to make this confession that it has lost confidence in the people and the State governments to so alarming an extent that it dares no longer rely on the machinery which in sixteen months gave it upwards of eleven hundred thousand men. No intelligible reason can be assigned for the change except the recognized repugnance of the people to the enforcement of a conscription. But if this repugnance is too powerful for State authority, it is more likely to be inflamed than allayed by an innovation of which the probable effect will be to lead the people to demand of their State governments protection against Federal authority. The certainty that in the present state of feeling a draft will be unpopular is a strong reason why its enforcement should be shared by the State authorities, as a means of preventing a concentration of the whole odium upon the Federal administration. The certainty that no more men can be raised by enlistment, and the danger of wide-spread popular resistance to the conscription, cannot fail to convince Mr. Lincoln, within the ensuing six weeks, that he stands on the edge of a yawning gulf from which nothing can save either him or the government but a prompt and entire change of measures and of men. The change will be forced upon him; he can no more resist it than he can stop the revolution of the earth.

What is Mr. Lincoln going to do when three hundred thousand soldiers go out of service and he can raise no more men to supply their place? Will he stand like a man demented, and wait till this calamity is actually upon him? Will he stay in Washington, thunder-struck or moon-struck, while Lee and Jackson march into the National Capital and seize him and his Cabinet?—For in this way the Cabinet will inevitably go out of power if he does not summon courage to put it out himself soon after the adjournment.—But is it not too late to save the government even if he does? No!—most certainly no, if he should not make the blunder of attempting still further to conciliate the radicals. There are changes he can make—we will not state them—it is not our business to state them but there are changes he can make which will at once, and almost on the instant, render him independent of an unpopular conscription which, in the present dissatisfied state of public feeling, he will find it impossible to enforce; changes which will cause nine soldiers out of every ten whose term expires this spring to immediately re-enlist. One strong controlling mind in the Cabinet, and unity in its composition; one general in sole direction of the army capable of inspiring its confidence its enthusiasm, and its love; one purpose in the government, and that an invincible determination that there shall be but one government over these thirty-four States; give the country these changes before the middle of April, and the public hopes will immediately revive, and the General-in-Chief have all the volunteer troops he can profitably use.

That great changes are close at hand, and that his Cabinet will be swept away, is inevitable. But whether the result will be the ruin of the country or its rescue depends on Mr. Lincoln.

Not long since a couple of political aspirants—Johnson, of Tennessee, and Wright, of Indiana—were voted the use of the Senate Chamber by the abolition State Senators; and it must be noticed that on the same day the abolition majority refused to grant the same privilege to Gen. Geo. B. McClellan, the greatest Captain of the age. Citizens of Pennsylvania, it is your duty to probe this thing fully. Look to the men who voted against granting the use of that chamber to the man who has twice saved the National Capitol, who has reorganized two defeated armies, who stands to day, first in the hearts of his countrymen; and then calmly pass your verdict upon their action. Here are their names. Read them.—Observe them carefully. This is indeed a roll of infamy:

Amos R. Boughter, Lebanon county. Frank Bond, North'd. George Connell, Phila. Smith Fuller, Fayette Wm. Hamilton, Lancaster John A. Heistand, " Henry Johnson, Lycoming Wm. Kinsey, Bucks M. B. Lowry, Erie Chas. McCandless, Butler Jeremiah Nichols, Philadelphia John P. Penny, Allegheny Jacob E. Ridgeway, Phila. J. H. Robinson, Mercer Jacob S. Serrill, Delaware Alex. Sutzman, Somerset W. J. Turrell, Susquehanna Harry White, Indiana S. F. Wilson, Tioga G. V. Lawrence, Speaker, Washington county.

Soldiers of the army of the Potomac! there are the names of the Abolition whelps, who refused your gallant commander, George B. McClellan, a hearing in the Senate Chamber of the Keystone State! that state which gave him birth, and the State which can proudly boast to own "the noblest Roman of them all."—When you return to your homes, and exercise once again the elective franchise, we well know you will mete out to these Abolition hounds their just dues, and ever uphold the fair fame of "Little Mac," the idol of your army.—Clearfield Republican.

The Roll of Infamy.

THE ROLL OF HONOR. Appended is the list of Senators who voted to welcome McClellan to our State Capital. (They are truly a roll of honor: Geo. H. Buehler, Cumberland " Haister Clymer, Berks " C. M. Donovan, Philadelphia " A. H. Glatz, York " C. L. Lambertson, Clarion " H. S. Mott, Monroe " John C. Smith, Montgomery " G. W. Stein, Northampton " J. B. Stark, Luzerne " These men may well be proud of the votes they cast for which they are stigmatized as members of a "Roll of Infamy," by the abolition organs that hate McClellan, his country and his cause.

TELL THE TRUTH TO CHILDREN.—A gentleman of nervous temperament once called on Dr. Dwight, President of Yale College. One of the doctor's boys was rather boisterous and pestered the nervous gentleman somewhat—whereupon he said to him, "My boy if you will keep still while I am talking to your father, I will give you a dollar." Instantly the boy hushed down, gentle as a sleeping lamb. At the close of the gentleman's remarks, he attempted to leave without giving the boy the dollar; but Dr. Dwight was too fast for him. He put a dollar into the man's hands, saying, "You promised my boy a dollar for good behaviour. Give him that as you promised. If, sir, we lie, our children will be liars."

—Sunday morning March 22th, a scout of fifty men of the Fifth Cavalry, encountered 200 or 300 of Quantrell's guerrillas near Blue Springs. After a short skirmish our forces retreated, losing nine killed, several wounded, and five missing. March came in like a lion, goes out diute.

A CARD.

To the Chairman and Members of the Union League of Montrose and Bridgewater.

GENTLEMEN: I have been notified that at your meeting on Tuesday evening last, I was duly appointed one of a committee of five, to draft resolutions and submit the same to an adjourned meeting, to be held on Monday night next, (the 30th inst.) Now I take this way to inform you, that I was not present at said meeting, nor have I ever attended one of like import, and thanking you for your intended honor, must ask to be excused from acting on said committee, and will briefly give my reasons for declining. In the first place, I cannot fully understand the object of your League, and until I feel satisfied for myself, that it is calculated by its design and action to strengthen the government of my country, instead of strengthening merely an administration placed at its head by the sovereign people. I feel to stand as I ever have, since this terrible war began, supporting the government and its laws by word and action, and encourage all to do the same, ready to make every reasonable sacrifice to aid in bringing back to their former allegiance, all the States in revolt against the best Government a kind Providence ever allowed any people to enjoy. And allow me to say further that I am opposed to any peace measures looking to a settlement of our difficulties on any other basis than a restoration, which will allow our glorious, yet insulted stars and stripes to wave as formerly, over every port, city and town, East, West, North and South, territories and all, in one glorious Galaxy? Now gentlemen, did I believe for a moment, that your League, would hasten so desirable a consummation, in any constitutional way, I would not hesitate to be one of your number, but "I can't see it." It cannot add to my own loyalty or love and veneration for my country, or its constitution, for which my Father (now in heaven) fought and suffered to establish, and I must ask in conclusion, that as my name was used without my knowledge, and has gone out as part of the proceedings of your meeting, you allow also this declination to go along with the published proceedings of your meeting of next Monday night, and with the reasons for my conclusions.

I am, Gentlemen, very respectfully, M. C. TYLER. Montrose, March 28th, 1863.

A New Paper in Washington.

We have received the first number of the Constitutional Union, a Democratic paper now published weekly in Washington city, but soon to appear daily. The tone of the paper may be gathered from the following call and the leading article:

The madness and folly of abolitionism have not only involved us in a deplorable civil war, but they have brought us to the very verge of anarchy. It is the high and holy mission of the Democracy to rescue our beloved country from the fiery abyss into which blind fanaticism and mad ambition would hurl it. And the Democracy and will do it! Already, in State after State, the conservative Democratic masses have risen in the majesty of their strength, and swept from power the black-hearted demagogues who have prostituted high places of trust to subserve their own selfish purposes, at the expense of the life and blood, and treasure of the nation. Two years of abolition misrule have caused the scales to drop from the eyes of many a too-confiding constituency, and they now see, in all its naked deformity, this demon of abolition, which under the guise of Republicanism, lays violent hands upon the constitution, and threatens to subvert the liberties of the people. The conservative masses throughout the land have resolved to hurl the usurpers from power; the handwriting is already on the wall; like the mighty swell of ocean, the heaving tide of Democracy begins to move the political sea; and soon the good old ship of State, manned by a brave and sturdy Democratic crew, will be seen proudly careering over its placid waters, beneath bright and tranquil skies.

A funeral discourse was preached in Clifford, Feb. 8, 1863, by Rev. A. O. Stearns from the words, "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, from henceforth, rest they and will not suffer any more pain, neither shall they any more be sorrowed, neither shall they any more be hungered, neither shall they any more be thirsty, neither shall the sun be hot upon them, neither shall the dryness be upon them, neither shall any more affliction be upon them, neither shall any more sorrow be upon them." Mr. Ransom was a member of the company (Phinney's) not being organized, the deceased, with other, to Washington, where he died, of small pox.
