We have not been among those who admired and approved the course of this talented and bold young Democrat and statesman. When we say we were not one of his admirers, we mean the measures he proposed, not the man; for who could help admiring the open, fearless, candid manner of the man—so far above the grovelling, sneaking, cowardly nature of his maligners? We did not approve the policy he proposed, and our readers will bear of us witness that our columns have neither contributed to the circulation of his views, nor to the ringing of the praises chanted by thousands of tongues and eloquently restored with their consent. Mr. Vallandigham is not made of the stuff that enters so largely into the composition of traitors. He is a bold, fearless, high-minded man, above stratagem and intrigue—which a traitor is not; and we should search the secret recesses of the White House, the stately mansions of some of the Cabinet his well officials, and other men high in authority, rather than the domicile of Vallandigham, for evidences of treason.

Such is our opinion of Mr. Vallandigham. As contrasted with his revilers he stands, in our estimation, almost spotless. Because we do not concur with him in opinion, it does not follow that we should-now that the hand of arbitrary power has fallen upon him, and he is a captive, in prison, and surrounded with bayonets-turn bitterly against him, and join in the general shout of abolitionism for his crucifixion. That is not our way. In the hour of his prosperity we gave him no aid, no encouragement because we did not think he was acting wisely. Now that he has been seized—not by the proty_not in the face of day, but in the darkness of night, and hurried away from his home under a process that should never be acknowledged by a free people as long as the administration of the civil law is unobstructed—we are free to say that we-feel it a duty incumbent upon us to stand by him, and see that he receives at least justice from the administration that has taken upon itself the responsibility of his arrest, as well as of the manner in which it was accomplished.

We have a right to ask, in the first place, "with what crime is Mr. Vallaudigham charged?" In the second place, "what was the necessity for a military ar-rest, at midnight?" And in the third place, "that he shall have a speedy trial, and by his peers, in a civil court."

The whole country is sick of witnessing arrests without charge, imprisoment with-out a hearing, and discharges without explanation or trial.

No administration, not utterly imbecile, cowardly or depraved, would be guilty of such proceedings, and no people fit to be free will long patiently submit to

If Mr. Vallandigham has been guilty of any offence against the laws of the Union, of the State of Ohio, or the military orders of the General commanding in the district, let him be tried, and if convicted on impartial testimony, let him be punished. If he has committed treason, if he has entered into any combination for un-lawful purposes, if he is a conspirator against the government, he should pay the penalty, whether it be death or imprisonment. But let him be fairly tried and convicted first. We would not screen him from punishment, if guilty, if we had the power to do so-we would not even crave the elemency of the government in his behalf-but in the name of Justice and Humanity, let him have fair and speedy trial and be pronounced guilty, under the forms of law, before branding him with crimes which he may not have committed, and asking for his immulation while there is a possibility of his innoby thousands of tongues and eloquently repeated by a large portion of the Democratic press. We have simply let him alone, to work out the salvation of the Union in his way, if he could, contenting ourselves with giving utterance to the doctrines and suggesting the measures we thought best to accomplish that end, and protesting against and combating what we thought unwise or imprudent. We are esteemed radical by many—Mr. Vallandigham was too radical for us.

But we have always believed his motive and his objects to be patriotic. However mistaken he may have been in his views, the charge of treason preferred against him by his political enemies is both malicious and absurd, and comes with a bad grace from men who advocate Executive violations of the Constitution and declare that the Union as it was, shall never be restored with their consent.
