Tour son has recovered," said James Whoodheld "but wou know, Dr. Heath, that whit I did was a faitful shing to do; that in nine cases states it would be fittal, and that if his constitution had not been of iron, and his health perfect, I must have billed him."

"You have saved my son," responded the doctor, " and it will make your fortune. I hope it will. I believe it will."

Dr. Heath was right. Twelve months after that the brass plate was removed from the little corner house. It shows up on shrubbery gate leading to Dr. Heath's old residence at the opposite end of the

There was a bay horse curveting in front of that gate, and upon him sat Mr. Percival Heath, looking as handsome as ever, and he was talking and laughing

But knowing this, I want you to do me this favor very much. You have been the agent of my better fortune and it will be a good omen to have you at my wedding."

" Šo be it." "And now," said James, "come and look at my new carriage. It isn't exactly the thing I once set my mind upon for my wife; but one must be moderate at first, you know. This will do to begin with, ch? Only for you I should nover have Dr. Sweet's Infallible Liniment had one at all."

FARM WORK FOX DECEMBER.

From the American Agriculturist: Animals.—Shelter and food, cleanliness and ventilation. The better the shelter for horses, neat stock and swine, the less food will they consume; if ventilation be provided, and they be kept clean, they will be healthier and more profitable. Pigs | DR. SWEET'S Infallible LINIMENT as well as horses show the good of clean bedding and dry pens in winter. Cows in our climate and in the system of farming usually followed, are during the Winter in a delicate condition : early preparation should be made so that an in- DR. SWEET'S Infallible LINIMENT ured or sick cow may be removed from the rest to the hospital (a box-stall in an adjacent department.) This is best even DR. SWEET'S Infallible LINIMEMT for slight injuries, for a cow may unexpectedly slink her calf and others "follow suit." Throw earth on slippery paths

Is truly a "friend in need," and every family should have it at hand. weather. Milk young cows to within five DR. SWEET'S Infallible LINIMENT weeks of calving, to fix a long habit of milking. Feed generously, for not only the size and character of the calf is affected, but the amount of the milk during the entire season following.

Fence Timber -- As fence mending and setting is one of the first duties after the frost is out of the ground, so a standing job for the winter is the getting out of a good supply of posts, rails and stakes. Let it not be forgotten.

Feeding-Reaks and Troughs should be substantial, sheltered, under roof if possible, always kept clean.

Grain-fields.—The wandering of cattle over the grain and grass-fields, particularly when covered with snow, and in thawing weather, is to be avoided. Snow-drift dams should be cleared away, and standwater drawn off.

Horses.-All horses, young and old, should have warm, comfortable shelter, be cleaned daily, and if used, blanketed, both in the stable and out of it—the stable blanket being the lighter, and not covering the neck. Colts and horses from which no labor is required, need no blankets in moderate weather, or in a warm stable. All horses should be kept well shod, and the calks sharp in winter.

Manures -- It is best to keep manure under cover and enclosed, so that a slow fermentation will be constantly going on. Too active fermentation is very injurious; it may be checked by packing it very close by the treading of animals, spread-ing level and keeping hogs upon it, or working it over. The latter secures evenmess of fermentation while it prevents burning or fire-fang.

Poultry.—To secure a supply of eggs, keep hens in a light, warm, airy room, feed plentifully, giving regularly some animal food-oyster-shells pounded fine, or some other form of lime. A little pulverized white arsenic in the whitewash will destroy lice effectually. Fowls choose the highest part of the house to roost in, and if there be not good ventilation, they will ometimes suffocate.

SHARP HINT. "Here's your Evening Paper all about the battle!" cried one of the newsboys, the other afternoon, ashe was rending his wares. An individual with shoulder straps, hearing the exciting announcement, bought a paper, and ran his eye hastily over the head lines of the despatches, remarked to the dealer in afternous literature, "Where is 'all about the harde? Ponu't see it." "Mo," and the bey, "and you never will see it as long as you have round the viry."

A NOTHER peculiarity of the Company is that their A Tea-Taster not only devotes his time to the selection of their Teas as to quality, value, and peculiar localities of country, but he helps the Tea buyer to choose out of their enormous stock such Teas as are best adapted to his particular wants, and not only this, has point out to him the best bargaine.

It is easy to see the incalculable advantage a Tea buyer has in this establishment over all others.

If he is no ladge of Tra, or the Market, i' his time is valuable, he has all the advantage of a well organized system of doing business, of an immense capital, of the judgment of a professional Tea Tayler, and the knowledge of superior salemen.

This enables all Tea buyers—no matter if they are thousands of miles from this market—to purchase on as good terms here as the New Yank merchants.

Partice can order Teas, and will be served by us my well as though they came thomselves, being sure to get original packages, true weighte, and teres and the Teas are warranted as epresented.

We issue a Price Lilst of the Company's Teak, which will be sent to all who order it, comprising
