(FOR THE MONTEOLE DEMOCRAT.) Harford Agricultural Society.

As the time approaches for holding an-ual Fairs throughout the county, I deem it due to merit and enterprise, to refer to those held in Harford; Having had the pleasure of being a speciator at the exhi-bition held there in the fall of 1863, I can truly say that I was greatly pleased and ow Soldlers Vote. On first page will be found a synopsis buildings, the stock, the products of the soil, the ornamental and fancy articles, including the neeful and beautiful, the products of mechanism and art, on exhibition, and the multitude of people that were there from far and near, all exceeded by far my highest anticipations. Constant bint at the great variety of the necessary, useful and ornamental articles that were there spread out to feast the eye and challenge admiration. Suffice to say, that the necessary expense and labor of get-ting up such an exhibition show a liberal ity and spirit of enterprise and energy on behalf of the citizens of Harford and vicinity, worthy of all praise and commendation. The ladies' department exhibited so many products of refined taste, indus-try, skill and handiwork, that no one could look at them without feeling a pride that the makers and contributors were the daughters of "our own dear native land." The Halls in which these pro-ducts were so lavishly spread out, attract-ed much attention, and deservedly so.— While the whole exhibition showed the zeal, the energy, and the liberality of the contributors, the multitudes that thronged the grounds showed by their presence and their looks that they appreciated the efforts that had been made to interest and benefit them. I need but add, that if you doubt the truth of my statements, go and see for yourselves. But while, Libus state the truth, I would not say one word in disparagement of our County Society and its Fairs. Their merit and usefulness is al District, composed of the counties of undoubled. They should be generously susquehanna and Luzerne, met at the St. patronized and sustained. The Societies should not be held as rivals, but as aids and helps to each other. The Harford Society accommodates many who, from distance, are out of reach of the County Society. No jealousies should exist be tween the two. They have one common object, and one common result. I would say to all, attend both if you can. Learn from each what you can. Help each other as you can. Each Society should emulate the other in the promotion and developement of the Agricultural interests so far as we can. How can we find a holiday that pays better, costs so little, and affords more pleasure and profit, than those on which our Fairs are held. ... We see each other and mingle our greetings. We are pleased and benefitted by what we see and hear. We have one platform on which we may all stand, with no ambition but a laudable one, and no reward but of merit.

The citizens of Harford and vicinity are certainly entitled to great credit for the degree of strength and perfection to which they have raised their Society. Let the County Society emulate therein their zeal and liberality, and high success will attend the effort. 2. 19: 2.
