

THE LOVE KNOT.

Tying her bonnet under her chin, She tied her raven ringlets in. But not alone in the silken snare, Did she catch her lovely floating hair, For, tying her bonnet under chin, She tied a young man's heart within.

They were strolling together up the hill, Where the wind comes blowing merry and chill, And it blew the curls a frolicsome race, All over the happy peach colored face, Till, scolding and laughing, she tied them in, Under her beautiful dimpled chin.

And it blew a color, bright as the bloom Of the pinkest fuschia's tossing plume, All over the cheeks of the prettiest girl That ever imprisoned a romping curl; Or, in tying her bonnet under the chin, She tied a young man's heart within.

Steeper and steeper grew the hill— Madder, merrier, chiller still, The Western wind blew down and played The wildest tricks with the little maid, As, tying her bonnet under the chin, She tied a young man's heart therein.

O, Western wind, do you think it was fair To play such tricks with her floating hair? To gladly, gleefully do your best To blow her against the young man's breast,

Where as gladly he folded her in, And kissed her mouth and dimpled chin? Oh, Elery Vane, you little thought, An hour ago, when you besought This country lass to walk with you, After the sun had dried the dew, What perilous danger you'd be in As she tied her bonnet under her chin.

The Reports about Harlan.

Mr. James Harlan, late Secretary of the Interior, was too conscientious to retain a seat in the President's Cabinet when he was an outspoken opponent of the President's policy of restoration. But it comes to light that, on the very last day but one before his connection with the Cabinet ceased, he acted, apparently for the government, as party to a contract which was in no sense a benefit to the government, but a stupendous swindle for the benefit of certain Eastern speculators calling themselves the "Connecticut Emigrant Society."

It appears that more than thirty years ago the Cherokees purchased a tract of land for half a million dollars, or this land was assigned to them at that valuation as a part of the government dues to that tribe, and that lately the Cherokees have manifested a desire to dispose of the same. It was stipulated that these lands should be sold to no parties for less than one dollar and quarter per acre. Nevertheless, by Harlan's act, the Connecticut Emigrant Society becomes possessed (unless the contract is declared null and void) of eight hundred thousand acres of the best land in the State of Kansas for the sum of eight hundred thousand dollars. As the land is worth infinitely more, it is, of course, a ruinous sacrifice on the part of the Cherokees, whose necessities have thus been taken advantage of; and the Cherokees, the Connecticut Emigrant Society, Mr. Harlan, and the whole public know that it is a swindle. Why was not so important a matter confided to Harlan's successor, instead of being speedily and almost secretly consummated on the very eve of Harlan's retirement from the Cabinet? And as it was to the decided disadvantage of the Cherokees, and an actual abuse of trust on the part of Harlan, it is pertinent to ask if the ex-Secretary proposes to participate in the expected and enormous profits of the transaction. The conduct of Indian affairs and appropriations, under Radical rule, was a public swindle for the benefit of private individuals, second only in enormity to the general sponge upon the public treasury contemplated by the creation of the Freedmen's Bureau. When Mr. Harlan entered upon his secretaryship he was not worth five thousand dollars. It is currently reported that he is now the possessor of more than half a million. It becomes Mr. Harlan to state publicly this sum from his salary as Secretary, or from fees and participation in such enterprises as the Connecticut Emigrant Society. Meanwhile, measures should be taken to at once annul this particular contract. It is quite time that this peculiar kind of Torch and Tuppentine patriotism should be stopped.—N. Y. World.

A gentleman, whose lady was suffering from a cold, got up at midnight and went below to fetch a mustard poultice. In his agitation he mistook the room on his return, and went into one where there was a light burning as dimly as that he left—a room, altogether similar, and apparently his wife in bed fast asleep. He applied the mustard poultice to her chest, and sat quietly waiting at her bedside till it began to draw. It did draw, but it drew an infuriated scream from the young lady who had been the subject of his unconsented solicitude. At the sound of the unaccustomed voice, the nature of the accident which had befallen him and his patient was at once visible, and he rushed headlong from the arms of the mustard woman into the arms of his own. Both parties told their story the next day, and had to retire amid the laughter of all the occupants.

A little boy some six years old was using his slate and pencil on a Sunday, when his father, who was a minister, entered and said: "My son, I prefer that you should not use your slate on the Lord's day." "I am drawing a meeting house, father," was the prompt reply.

Ladies Bonnet's and Hats.

The milliners of Philadelphia held their annual autumnal exhibition last week. The Age, in its report of the opening says: We notice the following as among the specimen bonnets and hats exhibited that are destined to be most popular during the present season:

An elegant Chignon bonnet was much admired. This is a pretty novelty in the way of an evening bonnet, peculiarly adapted to the present mode of ladies arranging their hair. It is composed of black silk frame, with a net work of jet, and scarlet watered strings, with a surrounding fringe of jet pendants—the whole affair being about as large as the palm of a man's hand, requiring, say, a number ten glove.

The Lambelle is also an evening bonnet constructed of a white frame, with a white covering of morabout, the face being formed by a band of scarlet velvet, covered with coral.

The Tallier, a decided novelty, is a peculiar shape. The one we examined was made of black silk, ornamented with jet beads, a plait of scarlet velvet extending across the bonnet from back to front, and a scarlet flower in the face.

The Victoria—one of the most beautiful bonnets in the collection—was formed of blue velvet, with a fluting of the same material around the entire bonnet (no great distance), and a white willow plume falling from the side, with ribbons of the same color. The whole effect of the bonnet is decidedly stylish, and for full dress was voted to be just the thing.

The Empress is also a full bonnet, of entirely new and exquisite design, made of garnet velvet, a curtain of the same material, with a wreath of garnet velvet centres at the left side, the face being set on with white velvet band and a fall of white blond lace.

The Maza is a full dress bonnet of black velvet, with a puffing of green velvet on the centre, and a fine wreath of black and zone velvet flowers, extending from the back across either side into the face, forming the face trimming, with jet pendants at the side.

The Catalan bonnet in the exhibition was an exquisite gem. It was of brown velvet, with a lace face, and a plait of the same material extending around the bonnet, and a bird of Paradise at the side. The face trimming was formed by a wreath of zone velvet flowers. Having thus briefly referred to a few of the leading styles displayed, we will conclude with a similar reference to their new style French Hats, of which we will describe first.

The Lillian. This is a fine drab French Felt rolled up at both sides, with two ostrich tips of the same color, and edged with a heavy silk cord to match. This hat combines richness and neatness to perfection.

The Florida is a white French Felt, so cut as to form a hat front with bonnet face, and is gracefully trimmed with black velvet and jet fringe, black and white feather and white ornaments.

The Ristori (which thus precedes in Philadelphia the celebrated tragedienne whose name it honors) is a very jaunty little hat for misses, also of French Velvet, bound with a band of light blue velvet, and a trimming of the same material tastefully arranged, with a white beaded feather. In addition to these, the hats denominated, "Willis Turban," "Dexter," "Gladiator," "Catalan," and others, for misses, children, and infants, were much admired, and will all be more or less popular during the coming season.

A certain College Professor had assembled his class at the commencement of the term, and was reading over the list of names to see that all were present. It chanced that one of the number was unknown to the Professor, having just entered.

"What is your name, Sir?" asked the professor, looking through his spectacles. "You are a brick," was the startling reply.

"Sir, said the Professor, half starting out of his chair at the supposed impertinence, but not quite sure that he understood him correctly. "Sir I did not exactly understand your answer."

"You are a brick!" was again the composed reply. "This is intolerable," said the professor, his face reddening. "Beware, young man how you attempt to insult me!"

"Insult you?" said the student, in turn astonished. "How have I done it?" returned the professor, with stifled indignation. "No, sir you asked me my name, and I answered your question. My name is U. R. A. Brick—Uriah Reynolds Anderson Brick."

"Ah, indeed," murmured the professor, sinking back into his seat in confusion. "It was a misconception on my part, part. Will you commence the lesson, Mr. ahem—Mr. Brick."

CHASTELLAR'S WHITE LIQUID ENAMEL. FOR Improving and Beautifying the complexion. THE most valuable and perfect preparation in use for giving the skin a beautiful, pure and delicate tinge, is only found in youth. It quickly removes tan, freckles, pimples, blotches, moth patches, sallowness, eruptions and all impurities of the skin, kindly leaving the same leaving the skin white and clear as alabaster. Its use cannot be detected by the closest scrutiny, and being a vegetable preparation is perfectly safe. It is the only article of the kind used by the French, and is considered by the Parisian as indispensable to a perfect toilet. A few words of advice. Do not use the Enamel for more than a week or two, as it is so effective that a moderate use of it will produce a permanent effect. Price only 50c. Mailed post paid, on receipt of an order by BERGER, SHUTTS & Co., Chemists, 25 River Street, Troy, N. Y. my 17c 50p
