

Quarrelling.
If anything in the world will make a man feel badly, except pinching his fingers in the crack of a door, it is, unquestionably, a quarrel. No man ever fails to think less of himself after it than before. It degrades him in the eyes of others, and what is worse, blunts his sensibilities on the one hand, and increases the power of passionate irritability on the other. The truth is, the more peacefully and quietly we get on the better for ourselves and our neighbors. In nine cases out of ten the better course is if a man cheats you, quit dealing with him; if he is abusive quit his company; and if he slanders you, take care to live that nobody will believe him. No matter who he is, nor how he misuses you, the wisest way is to let him alone; for there is nothing better than this cool, calm, and quiet way of dealing with the wrongs we meet with.

Nicely Caught.
A Western paper tells a story of a distressed agriculturist thus:
A farmer dropped in here on Wednesday last to pay his rent, putting on a long face to correspond with the times.— On entering the house he told the landlord that times were so bad that he could not raise the money at all; and, dashing a bundle of greenbacks on the table, said, "There, that is all I can pay." The money was taken up and counted by Mr. —, the landlord, who said: "Why, this is twice as much as you owe." "Dang 'ee! give it to me again," said the farmer, "I'm dashed if I hadn't taken it out of the wrong pocket!"

Overcoming Voters.
The following is an exact copy of a letter written to a Democratic voter residing at Bethlehem, the day before the election:
BETHLEHEM, Oct. 8, 1866.
Dear Sir: I under stud you Sopard Andrus Johnsons Pollecey do you know that Johnsan Remooes his Tenancy; who does not Sopard his Pollecey Now if you do go to the Polls and Sopard Johnsons Pollecey; you must look also to him for a Home Please do as you think best to so will I
I remain your Friend
WILLIAM LUCKENBACH.
It is rather novel doctrine that because one man happens to live in another man's house (and pays his rent,) he is under obligations to vote as his landlord dicates. Impudence could not well go farther. It is very evident that the gentleman who, in this instance, threatened to drive a poor man from his home unless he voted as he ordered, has never troubled the free schools much.—Doylestown Dem.

In the Wrong Room.
A gentleman of Wheeling, whose lady was suffering from a cold, got up at midnight and went below to fetch a mustard poultice. In his agitation he mistook the room on his return, and went into one where there was a light burning as dimly as that he left, a room altogether similar, and apparently his wife in bed fast asleep. He applied the mustard poultice to her chest, and sat quietly at her bedside till it began to draw. It did draw, but it drew an infuriated scream from the young lady who had been the subject of his unconscious solitude. At the sound of the unaccustomed voice, the nature of the accident which had befallen him and his patient was at once visible, and a mustard heading from the arm of a mustered woman into the arms of his own. Both parties told their story next morning, and had to retire amidst the laughter of all the company.

A day or two ago, says a St. Louis paper, John Morrissey, a relative of the famous prize fighter, was attacked with cholera and conveyed to the health office. Dr. Folsom told him he would send him to the City Hospital. "All right," said John. "I want the infernal thing knocked out of me with as few rounds as possible. I'll take all the punishment the doctors can inflict, but I don't want to go to grass yet, because I'm not ready to throw up the sponge." The last we heard of the pugilist he was on his pins, looking pale about the gills, but full of pluck and laudantium.

—Being short of "prog" the Crushmen negroes on the West coast of Africa recently made a raid upon their neighbors of New Calabar, captured about 100 prisoners, and after nicely dressing, spitting and cooking them had a grand cannibal feast. There were soup of Calabar, nice Calabar tit bits, tender steaks of Calabar, broiled Calabar bones, Calabar in fricasee and Calabar in every delicious style that Crushmen cooks could think of, and the next day Calabar remnants judiciously warmed over filled many a Crushmen belly and soul with delight. But the New Calabar men threaten to retaliate by eating a still larger number of Crushmen, and the prospect is that the whole of the residents of the Western African coast, if these skirmishes continue, will be well cooked, eaten and thoroughly digested before next Spring.

Mr. Greeley has made $100,000 out of the "Great Conflict." No wonder that he wants another civil war.

The Empress Charlotte, of Mexico, has become insane in Europe. Some think it is only assumed to draw husband Max out of Mexico.

—Unpopular Soldiers, private pique and Corporal punishment.

—Why is nibbled cheese like concluded treaties? Because it has been ratified.
