MONTRÖSE, TUESDAY, DEC. 10, 1867.

The President's Message.
No one should fail to read the message which we print to the exclusion of other matter. Its firm tone has been fully prompted by the people through the ballot box, and adds another pang to the dying agonies of the impeachment monster.

Death of Impeachment.
On Friday last the impeachment question came before the House for consideration, and its friends found themselves beaten two to one; and it was only by a resort to filibustering that they prevented it from being tabled. An adjournment only postponed the death till Saturday.

So dies impeachment, and the party that tried to keep alive upon it. Its worst and best success was to show the poisonous fangs and strike itself to death.

For The Montrose Democrat.

Monument to Rev. Hugh Monahan.
The announcement made from the various altars of the churches in this district, viz:—the erection of a monument to our late Pastor, Rev. Hugh Monahan, on Wednesday, Nov. 27th, attracted a large concourse of people to our little village. From an early hour crowds could be seen wending their way toward the beautiful church of the Holy Family anxious to gain admittance, and testify by their presence their affection and veneration for him who so well and faithfully, during seven years, ministered to their wants and consoled them in their afflictions. A magnificent monument, of Italian marble, standing about ten feet in height, was firmly set upon its base at 10 o'clock, and immediately after, Solemn Mass de requiem was celebrated by Rev. A. D. Filan, of Friendsville, assisted by Rev. Hugh Garvey, of St. Joseph's, and Rev. John Monahan, of Philadelphia, (brother of de'd), as Deacon and Sub-deacon. Rev. M. S. Hennessy, Master of Ceremonies. There were also present, within the Sanctuary, Very Rev. J. V. ORRILLY, of Susquehanna; Clarke, of Oswego; J. Hourigan, J. Tancy, and M. Griffith, of Albany diocese. An efficient choir from Binghamton, under the leadership of C. Callin, Esq.—Mrs. Gairy presiding at the organ—rendered the Mass to his best advantage.

After the Mass, Rev. Hugh Garvey ascended the altar and took for his text the 13th and 14th v. v. of 4th chapter of Wisdom:—"Being made perfect in a short space, he fulfilled a long time; for his soul pleased God. Therefore be hastened to bring him out of the midst of iniquities; but the people see this, and understand not, nor lay up such things in their hearts." He paid an eloquent tribute to the life and merits of the deceased, clearly showing there was no species of hardship, no inconvenience or discomfort he did not cheerfully endure. In his daily intercourse he was affable, familiar, and paternal—his eloquence in recommending virtue was surpassed only by his fidelity in practicing it.

He referred in well chosen terms to the exertions of his predecessor in the cause of education—that it was not exclusively in the door duties of the Sanctuary he wrought the most wished for consummation, though in those of the altar and confessional, he was indefatigable; but the great source of his virtuous popularity was the facilities his exertions afforded for the needy poor of the rising generation. The speaker closed by requesting all to remember the lessons of instruction which had so frequently and eloquently fallen from his lips—his memory should ever remain fresh in the hearts of his numerous admirers, and his virtues make a lasting impression upon the souls of his devoted people. The sermon, throughout, was full of pathos, and touchingly appealed to the most refined sentiments of the human heart.

The Absolution at the grave was then performed by Rev. John Monahan, when all dispersed, feeling that they had done something to perpetuate the memory of Father Hugh, of whom, with truth it can be said:

With eloquence innate his soul was armed,
Tho' harsh the precept, yet the preacher charmed;
With what he begged his brethren he relieved,
And gave the charities himself received;
The proud he tamed, the penitent he cheered,
Nor to rebuke the rich offender feared;
His preaching much, but more his practice wrought
A living sermon of the truth he taught.
May he rest in peace.

Tenure of Mortgages.
A radical change in the tenure of mortgages has been made by the late Congressional bankrupt law. It provides that where mortgages are given within four months before an insolvent debtor fails, the holder of the mortgage will be compelled to come in as other creditors. The effect of this will be to cause greater caution in accepting mortgages.

Selecting Jurors.
The Jury Commissioners—Daniel Brewster and W. A. Crossman, met with Judge Streeter, on Saturday, to select jurors for 1868. As each of the three, under the law, select names alternately, the Democrats get one-third of the jurors in future. The number placed in the wheel is 500.

Acknowledgment.
Permit me to express, through your valuable paper, my thanks for a surprise given me on the eye of leaving your pleasant town. A magnificent silver watch to myself, valued at $60.00, and other presents to my family, to the amount of $135.00.

Nov. 26—2

On Monday last, Justice Daniel Agnew, speaking for four out of five members of the Supreme Court, rendered a decision in a case where damages had been awarded in a lower court against a railroad company because one of its conductors wished to compel a negro woman to sit in the negro quarters of the car. A reversal was ordered, and the damages were denied to the negro woman.

PERUVIAN SYRUP—This valuable medicine has been silently making its way into public favor by the numerous remarkable cures it has performed. Its singular efficacy is owing to the protoxide of Iron, which remains unchanged in this preparation and is the "only form in which this vital element of healthy blood can be supplied.
