There are few things that afford more pleasure for the expense of time and dron-ble than a good well managed grape vince. From considerable observation the editor of this Journalwas led to couclude that an erroneons practice was pursued in regard to grape vinces, and three yeurs ago deter-mined to try an experiment. The error in practice alluded to is this:' The Nome and Family allower and female, old and young, palitelians of the rest lange portion of wood has to be cut and thrown away. It occurred to the wri-ter that this waste of the power of the plant ought to and might be prevented Accordingly, in the spring of 1837, he ob-tained an leabelln vinc one year old from the layer, having a very good root, and planted it in an ordinary soil of a sandy quality, putting a wheelbarrow load of wood-yard manure and old lime mortar about the root. As soon as it began to grow he began to rub off all the buds but rest and the root of delivery. Payment required invariably in advance. off every bnd but two at the top of the vine, and trained these along the front of the balcony, having stretched a long wire along the posts for their support. He rubbed off every side bud during the sen-son as at first. Both shoots made about thirty-five feet of growth this senson. In the spring of 1840, every joint in the fork buds of every soft and grow numelested, fill the branches bad fairlyset fruit, generally antil they were about 18 inches long, then the juds of each branch were nipped off well of the spring of the fruit.
