Struck Down at Her Post.

[A French paper relates a touching incident of the campaign. While a Sister of Charity was Dead on the corpse-strewn battle plain Where war's dread work is done She lies amid the heaps of slain. The pure and holy Nun.

She saw the stricken soldier fall. And, e'er the strife was o'er,

To staunch his flowing gore; To gently raise his drooping head, To cool his lips of flame— To whisper, ere bis spirit fled,

The Saviour's holy name; And on from one to one to pass, Midst those who, living yet,

Lay groaning on the crimsoned grass Their streaming blood had wet: With saintly love and tenderness Their suffering hearts to aid,

Whate'er the color of the dress Through which the wounds were made And-in whatever form of speech They prayed to God above-

Unto their dying lips to reach The emblem of His love. But ah! the battle's thundering swell Had rolled not far away,

And still the murderous missiles fell Where dead and dying lay. Bullets, ill-sped, came whistling by, Huge shot tore up the ground-

·And shells, like meteors from on high, Spread fresh destruction round. She flinched not while they hurtled past

Nor turned her head aside : But when the death wounds came at last She bowed her head and died.

Nomansland.

I have been out to Nomansland. Which lies beyond the sea, From whence some day will come a ship To bring rare things to me.

And whom did you meet in Nomansland? I met King Arthur there, The nut-brown maid and Shcherezade And Bess with golden hair.

How did they treat you in Xamanaland ?

They scarcely opened their eyes; But Robinson Crusoe stared awhile In very faint surprise. And what do they do in Nomanshind?

They do not even play, But lie and dream the whole night long, And sit and dream all day.

Alive they always stay, And there they will remain until The dawn of judgment day.

A lovely place is Nomanstand; The skies are always clear ; The hills are blue, the valleys green.

They do not eat in Nomansland They drink no water there; They feed on fancy all the time-No banquet half so rare.

O carry me back to Namanaland Which lies beyond the sea . There, with the bards and knights of old, Forever let me be.
