Port's Corner.

An Idyl of the Period.

IN TWO PARTS.

I.

"Come right in! How are you, Fred?"

"Well, old boy, recovered yet?"

"From the Father's Jam last night?"

"Didn't dance, the German's old?"

"Didn't you? I had to lead—"

"Awful bore; but where were you?"

"Sat it out with Molly Meade;"

"Jolly little girl, she is—"

"Said she didn't care to dance,"

"Don't you know a quiet chat—"

"Then she gave me such a glance;"

"So, when you had cleared the room"

"And had captured all the chairs,"

"Having nowhere else, we two"

"Took possession of the stairs;"

"I was on the lower step,"

"Molly on the next above."

"Gave me her bouquet to hold—"

"Asked me to draw off her glove."

"Then, of course, I squeezed her hand,"

"Talked about my wasted life,"

"Said my sole salvation must"

"Be a true and gentle wife."

"Then, you know, I used my eyes—"

"She believed me every word."

"Almost said she loved me—Jove!"

"Such a voice! I never heard—"

"Gave me some symbolic flower,"

"Had a meaning, oh! how sweet;"

"Don't know what it is I'm sure—"

"Must have dropped it in the street,"

"How I spurned! and she—ha! ha!"

"Well, I know it wasn't right,"

"But she did believe me—"

"That I—kissed her—pass a light."

II.

"Mollie Meade, what I declare!"

"Who'd have thought of seeing you,"

"After what occurred last night,"

"Out here on the avenue."

"Oh! you awful, awful girl!"

"There—don't blush—I saw it all!"

"Saw all what?" "A hem—last night—"

"At Mother's, in the hall?"

"Oh! you home-body where were you?"

"Wasn't he an awful goose?"

"Most men must be caught, but he—"

"Ran his neck right in the noose."

"I was almost dead to dance—"

"Did I do it if I could—"

"But old Gray said I must stop,"

"So I looked up and saw—"

"That I'd rather talk with him."

"Hope he didn't see my face—"

"Luckily, the light was dim;"

"And he looked up in my face."

"With his lovely, great big eyes;"

"Really, it's a dreadful case."

"He was all but dead to me."

"But I thought I'd have to laugh,"

"When he looked at me—"

"Looking up—oh! like such a calf,"

"I suppose he has it now."

"In a wine glass, on his shelves,"

"It was all he could do to me."

"Why men will deceive themselves."

"Saw him kiss me! Oh, you wretch—"

"Well, he begged so hard for one."

"And I thought there'd no one know."

"So I let him—just for fun."

"I know it wasn't really right,"

"But I'll tell you, dear,"

"But men are such conceited things."

"They need a lesson once a year."

Miscellaneous.

A Clerical Anecdote.

Dr. Elliott, a noted clergyman of an old Connecticut town, being "well-to-do," and keeping neither locks nor bolts on his possessions, was frequently visited by burglars in a small way.

Coming home late one night from a visit to a poor parishioner, he heard on passing through his kitchen, a strange noise, in his cellar, soon followed by the sound of stealthy steps coming up the stairs.

Hiding behind the door, he saw emerge a tall man, bending under a huge basket, filled with salt pork, just taken dripping from the brine.

The doctor recognized a poor neighbor, and, stepping forward, said kindly: "You have a heavy load there. Allow me to assist you."

With a cry of dismay, the culprit dropped the basket, and actually fell on his knees, entreating forgiveness on the plea that it was his first offence, and that his family were suffering from want of food.

"But, my friend," said the good doctor, "you certainly knew you had only to get it, without damaging your soul with an and your coat with brine in this way. I forgive you, of course, but I do think you have taken more than your share of pork."

"I have a heavy load there. Allow me to assist you."

"But, my friend," said the good doctor, "you certainly knew you had only to get it, without damaging your soul with an and your coat with brine in this way. I forgive you, of course, but I do think you have taken more than your share of pork."

The Wonders of Montana.

Hon. N. P. Landford delivered a lecture recently at Cooper Institute, New York, upon recent wonderful discoveries in the vicinity of the headwaters of the Yellowstone River. Mr. Landford has been a resident of Montana since 1862, was originally from Oneida county, New York, and was appointed governor of the territory in the latter part of President Johnson's administration, but did not assume the duties of the office. The lecture was given in graphic description and was frequently applauded.

An expedition consisting of nineteen persons, including a cavalry escort of five men, commanded by a lieutenant, and assigned for the duty by Major-General Hancock, was organized at Helena, and set out on a six weeks' journey, last August. The adventure was considered a dangerous one on account of the presence of hostile Indians in the hitherto unexplored region which they were intended to visit. The ascent of the Belt range, including a valley as large as New Hampshire, with all its details of pine, spruce, peak, dome, rock and river, is comprehended in a
