Mn. Eprron :- An eloquent author has said, that "silence is vocal, if we listen well." The of the Republican, and little Charley his brother force and truth of which is understood and ap- are lie-ing quite ill. - Cause, overdone in attemptpreciated by those who look aright upon the ing an original editorial. Homer is a little betcoundless firmament, with its stars and consteller but little Charley feels real bad. lations and galaxies, street lamps of that upper and beautiful city. But as I am not a star, nor a constellation, nor a gallaxy, nor yet a street on Tuesday last, called on a physician to lamp, perhaps I might not amount to much as have dirt removed from his eye, and, as an object to look upon; therefore, as I have he was suffering pain, the doctor called in somehow heard that the "Pen is mighty," and a dentist from next door, and the two adsomehow heard that the Fren is mignly, which is my somehow heard that the Fren is mignly, in ministered chloroform. The man went through its median, break forth with more constituted into spasms, but they held him down and through its medim, break forth with more confidence than those who have none. Having thus applied the sponge to his nose by main as I trust, to the satisfaction of all, given some expression to my feelings in a kind of literary way, I will now, for the benefit of those who have a due regard for the value of things and wish to keep posted, impart a few words with tined on and after the 10th instant. reference to my geographical situation and political views.

I am sojourning in Ohio, which, as a State, is west of Pennsylvania, and other Eastern States, and is bounded all round by more, so-called States, which sltogether formed what was once Governor of New York, died last Friday known as the glorious "American Union," founded by the "Fathers" in earlier days, but which now, through the development of the 'Higher Law," and a refining, elevating and strengthening process of "Reconstruction," has progressed (?) into a kind of "Mongrel" condition, without any particular name, while being presided over, or rather set upon, by the "Government," or in other words, a sort of Usurping Shoulderstrap Grant, who says he has "no policy," which may or may not be correct, as an ing and never pays, yet, gentle wife, if other similar individual once spoke the truth. It is a well known declaration of Archimedes, that he could "move the world if he had a place sour or yellow alkaline bread or biscuit, cy," which may or may not be correct, as anthat he could "move the world if he had a place on which to stand." Now it would seem that be could "move the world if he had a place on which to stand." Now it would seem that Grant had either been informed of, or acciden-tally seen sail declaration, and thinking be had lor's Gold Medal Saleratus, if used as per discovered such a place, and possibly overrated his ability, is actually attempting to demonstrate the truth of Archemides' theory—that is, to nicer, whiter, lighter bread and pastry than each a produced from flour of second quality will produce nicer, whiter, lighter bread and pastry than each a produced from flour of first than each as per discovered such a place, and possibly overrated directions, imparts no alkaline flavor, and first than the produced from flour of second quality will produce nice. (Grant's) quondam triends, who is a large man | market. and quite heavy, says it "can't be done," and is supported in such assertion by more of the like. Now I am not, and never have been, an ardent admirer of Sumner, who appears to be a kind of Janus, two-faced, creature, assuming either black or white, peace or war, as occasion demands; neither do I wish to be egotistical, but allow me to modestly remark, that it does look mare to-day—they are death on worms. like a pretty big job for so small a man as Grant, from so small a base of operations, to successfully accomplish, and will probably, in spite of himself, finally result in perfect harmony with three times a day, will keep them soft and his "no policy" system. In this connection, I white. Fishermen, sailors, and others will would say that not long ago, I listened to a lecture by General Killpatrick, on "Sherman's March to the Sea," in the course of which he spoke of Grant as superior to Napoleon L. and the equal of Alexander the Great. That the invader and conquerer of unwarlike, effeminate Persia, is the superior of him, though ultimately Mary Weeks, and Mr. James Melhuish, both of Persia, is the superior of him, though ultimately overthrown, performed such military wonders agunst the skill and power of combined Europe, I, in my ignorance, could not but question, though coming from such authority. Grant, ! supported by the great North, arraved against the little South, who, at the head 'of nearly 300,000 men, succeeded, after a protracted struggle, in capturing Lee with about 27,000 men-to compare such a victor with even an Alexander, LLOYD.-Birchand.-In Forest Lake, on the much more a Napoleon, seemed to me like setting up a plaster paris dwarf by the side of a Rhodes collossus. But as Kilpatrick is evidently a deep re(a)d man, (in the face) and probably educated in the same school with Grant, it is but impartial justice to accord some meaning to words issuing from such an inspired source. Possibly, Thurston-Stephens.-In Bridgewater, April as the signs of the times indicate, the distinguished lecturer might explain that the triumph of Alexander and Napoleon, are about to have their parallel, in brevity, with the reign of Grant, however otherwise destitute of the glory that surrounded the one who fell at Babylon, or the dom regained. It is a very early Spring here, for this time of year, with the exception of some frost and ice, during a few days past, in consequence of which it is feared that the fruit may never get much larger than blowed out. Vegetation, however, is growing, and the crops, if they do well, will undobtedly be good, perhaps excellent. The weather is changalle, and looks very much as weather is changalle, and looks very much as though we might or might not have a spell, with more or less rain and sun, accompanied with breezes. But there is a difference of opinion: because think one way, some think another way; a few both ways, and many no way; consequently, it is difficult to determine with any certainty, unless by guessing or otherwise, No almana is alike; the climate is salubrious only when not afflicted with chronic ague. People is growing, and the crops, if they do well, will when not afflicted with chronic ague. People abound of several varieties and tongues, the abound of several varieties and tongues, the latter, as usual, monopolized by women, some of whom believe in rights, and all, of course, beautiful and lonely. As it is some ways here, and not a few may never come, the above statistics may be of use to inquiring minds. The most indifferent will observe that they are the result of labor and expense, but I make no account of that, in view of the common good, for what is crery body's business is nobody's. I kow it is customary for travelers to compare notes, but I beg leave to depart therefrom, as I am unprepared to say whether, throughout any similar circumstances, I have never seen no person in no place or not. But I must subside into a conclusion by saying no more at present, but you may hope to hear hob ounds of literature, you again. Youns, in the bonds of literature you again. Dr. C. F. BROWN'S TOUNG AMERICAN

LINIMENT

In offering this Liniment to the public, as we do in full confidence, that it must supercede all others now in use, as an internal remedy, for the cure of all diseases in the reach of that class of medicine, we can aciely assert, without the least fear of contradiction, that it stands unrivated in the list of medical compounds externally applied for the cure of disease. Feeling therefore that it is unnecessary to puff a remedy so eminently wonderthin it is effects, so mysteriously. Infallible in its powers of relief, causing the deaf to heir, the blind to see, the nervous, drawn and crippled ricumatic to walk erect and rejoice again in the power and vigor of manhood, this preparation is offered to the public on its own merits, and claims so roleanle origin or essential oils of the Arabi and deserts; but on the contrary is what its imports, and is a raw combination of the powers of North American products.
