headed "Bodies to be Exhumed," which a few years since would have been sufficient to have For Sale founded a half-dozen stories for Sunday School books, had it occurred in Hindoostan. A great deal has been written about heathen mothers throwing their children into the rivers, and widows burying themselves with the dead bodies of their husbands, and we have been horrified by the discriptions and illustrations of Cannibalism; while here in the United States, and in a section of country where people boast of enlightenment, who probably contribute to the support of Missionaries to enlighten the heathen we still find those who seem to be afflicted with the superstitious traditions of the darker ages, leading them to acts at which in this age of enlightement humanity revolts with a shudder. Who can imagine anything more revolting than eating the ashes of a corpse? and it the body of a near releative! Those who believe in it might well be compared to the heathen.

Mr. A. O. Warren has proven himself fully competent to overthrow superstition and Cannibal-ited Harford to witness an exhibition gotten up ers. It will appear at first sight to be perfectly by the students of Richardson's school. Here simple, and no person wishing to take an agency I saw Harriet Beecher Stow's ideas illustrated for any of the many patents, would hesitate to An ambitious young man, not satisfied with the sign it: unpopular Caucasian race, appeared colored to suit the occasion. This exhibition was intended to teach those present that the people of the Southern States were little better than heathen and barbarians. Since that time, I have resided in Louisiana and Texas, about seven years, and about five years in Missouri, and I have not seen or heard of such a loathsome, detestable practice or belief as that of eating the ashes of a dead body! even among the ignorant negroes You may think this too harsh to publish, but I do not think that such an abomination can be condemned in too strong terms; we still claim that the people of the United States are at least civilized. Very Respectfully, ALBERT CHURCHILL.

A Narrow Escape.
On Tuesday of last week Mr. Mark Compton, living at "Pigeon Roost," Berlin township, brought to the slaughter-house of Mr. Hart Freethy, butcher, of Tracyville, near this boro, a quantity of beef, with a view of selling it to him. Mr. Freethy at once pronounced the meat diseased, and requested Compton to take it away and bury it. This the latter declined to do, but finally concluded to give it to the hogs, and Mr. Freethy assisted him to throw it in the pens .-After handling the most Mr. Freethy remembers scratching a trifling sore on his cheek, which operation came well-nigh costing him his life. The next day, three out of the four hogs which fed on the beef were found dead, a dog belonging to a neighbor was also killed in the same manner, and toward the close of the week the poison began to show its terrible effects in the blood of Messrs. Freethy and Compton, the neck and the body of the former swelling to a fearful extent, and the arm of the latter being similarly affected. At this writing (Wednesday morning the 10th instant), we understand tha there are evidences of improvement in both cases, and strong hopes are entertained of their recovery. The escape from a terrible death, if indeed they do escape, must be regarded as almost miraculous. We have heard various rumors as to the cause of the death of the animal which Mr. Compton | Now, having read the above sought to dispose of as above, but in the absence and supposing it to be all right for $10, just cut of positive information forbear giving them to it in two between the word or, and bearer, in the public. Suffice it to say that it was not the the first line, and you will find that the left hand result of any disease brought from the West, piece is a perfect note for $275. Having in and that Mr. Freethy had no further connection | duced a farmer to accept an agency, as specified with the poisonous-beef than to urge and assist in the original note, and having attained his in what he supposed to be the harmless disposal signature, the sharper departs. He then cuts of it. We believe our butchers invariably exercise the greatest caution in the selection of their nearest broker or banker, to whom he offers to meats, and this very transaction, which may sell the note at a discount on the plea of needcost one of them his life, brings out the fact that ing the money. The signer is generally a rehad it not been for his experienced eye and desponsible person, well-known to the business esiste protest, we might now be recording a men of the village, and the note is purchased. wholesale slaughter of our citizens instead of When the note falls due it is presented for colthis less terrible, but still distressing, result. | lection, and as the signatures are indisputable, Honesdale Herald.

A Letter From Nevnda.

Mr. Editor: The Democrat is a welcome visitor, and its neat appearance, the well-selected articles and editorials, cause it to be read by many who have never seen the hills and valleys of Susquehanna, and I frequently hear those who read it, remark, that it is one of the best country papers they see. The local items are especially interesting to me. My earliest recollections carry mo back to Snake Creek valley, four miles north of Montrose, and although it is nearly fifteen years since I last visited that section of the country, it is a pleasure to hear strangers speak in praise of anything emanating from our old county town, especially when I consider it worthy of it.

In late numbers of the Denocrat, I find under the head of "Local Intelligence," a notice beaded "Bodies to be Exhumed," which a few years since would have been sufficient to have

The theory that the virus of discuss can be safely The theory that the virus of disease can be safely counteracted by doses of poison. Is false and dangerous. Within the last twenty-five years, not less that a score of virulent poisons have been added to the repository of the medical profession. They are given in small doses, otherwise they would destroy life immediately but even in minute quantities, they produce, ultimately very diseastrous effects. It is nawise and unphilosophical to employ, as remedies, powerful and insiduous drugs, which, in subjugating one disease, sow the seeds of another still more unmanagible. None of these terrible medicaments operates with as much directness and certainty upon the causes of disease as Hostetter's rible medicaments operates with as much directness and certainty upon the causes of disease as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a tonic and corrective without a single deletrious ingredients in its composition.
