

Death From the Sting of a Bee.
A very strange and we should say a very doubtful case of death from the sting of a bee, is reported to have occurred at Lyndonville, Ill. A Mrs. Strange, the wife of a blacksmith of that town, and the mother of several children, was stung by a honey bee while picking apples in the orchard, and died, from the effect so rapidly that the head was swollen to twice its natural size in less than an hour, and on the following day the whole body presented the appearance of being in the last stage of decomposition. We find, from our exchanges that several persons have lost their lives in different parts of the country during the past few weeks from a similar cause. In wet weather the sting of the bee is always increased in venom, and just at this time the hives should be approached with great caution.

THE MYSTERY OF A HAIR BRUSH.
A writer in the American Journal of Microscopy has been exploring the forests of bristles in a hair brush, supposititiously purloined from a ladies' toilet stand, and though it contained nothing which we are accustomed to regard with unqualified horror, the results of his investigations prove that there are mysteries ordinarily unrevealed of the toilet. There are concealed in the damp lint of hair brushes, unless kept clean, by the use of oil-carbonate of potassa or carbonate of soda, many living things, too small for collection by the naked eye, some of which, we are told, are more of than suspicious character, being known as the originators of scald-head and other diseases of the scalp. The author concludes this article by a caution against wetting the hair, recommending dry brushing instead. He also recommends the use of a weak solution of carbolic acid, or sulphite of soda, as a cleansing material for hair brushes.

ENGONIE.—The late Empress of France used often, when a child, at Granada, as Engonie Montijo, to dance upon the knee of Washington Irving. In a letter written in 1853, just after the elevation of Engonie to the high station she filled for eighteen years, Irving wrote the following, which now reads almost like prophecy:—"The last I saw of Eugenie Montijo she was one of the reigning belles of Madrid. Now Eugenie is near a thousand, launched from a returning shore, upon a dangerous sea infamous for its tremendous ship-wrecks. And I live to see the catastrophe of her career and the end of this suddenly sprung up empire, which seems to be made of such stuff as dreams are made of? I confess my personal acquaintance with the individuals in this historical romance gives me an uncommon interest in it; but I consider it stamped with danger and instability and as liable to extravagant vicissitudes as one of Dumas's novels."

George Whitefield was once preaching to a seafaring audience in New York, when, suddenly, assuming a nautical air and manner that were irresistible, he broke in with, "Well, my boys, we have a clear sky, and are making fine headway over a smooth sea before a light breeze, and we shall soon lose sight of land. But what means this sudden lowering of the heavens, and that black cloud arising from beneath the western hemisphere? Hark! Don't you hear distant thunder? Don't you see those flames of lightning? There is a storm gathering. Every man to his duty! How the waves rise and dash against the ship! The air is dark!—the tempest rages!—our masts are gone!—the ship is on her beam ends? What next?" This appeal instantly brought the sailors to their feet with a shout, "The longboat!—take to the longboat!"

THE MOUNT Cenis TUNNEL.—Modern engineering has achieved one more great triumph in the completion of the Mount Cenis tunnel. When it was first proposed to pierce the Alps with a railway passage through engineers smiled incredulously. Some advocated and proved the feasibility of the very difficult task more than thirty years ago; but it was not until 1857 that the mighty work was really begun. This tunnel is nearly eight miles in length, and its construction gave employment to two thousand men for fourteen years. Trains thundered through the rocky heart of the Alps on Sunday, accomplishing the entire distance in twenty minutes, without experiencing the least difficulty. No mephitic gases were encountered; the rails proved firm and steady. The ventilation of the monster tunnel is excellent; a current of air was experienced by the travelers, and this wind blew briskly enough to render an overcoat comfortable. This sets at rest the Swiss stories of intense heat and asphyxiating gases rendering the tunnel valueless. The railroad through the Alps is as complete a success as are our own Pacific railroads or the Suez canal.—Phil. Inquirer.

—A friend wrote to Scott, warning him not to attempt too much. "Do not rash," she said: "you are already popular, more so perhaps than yourself will believe, or than even I or other partial friends can fairly allow to your merit. You stand high; do not rashly attempt to stand higher, and incur the risk of a fall—for, depend upon it, a favorite will not even be permitted to stumble with impunity." To which Scott replied in the words of Monroe:

"He either fears his fate too much,
Or his deserts are small;
Who fears to put it to the touch,
To win or lose it all."

—A lady, impelled by the demands of fashion to seek recreation in the country during the summer months, writes back despairingly: "Did you ever revel in the gayeties of a half-grown, torpid village, where a walk to the graveyard was the only recreation, and where, if you indignantly refused to walk, you were shudderingly reminded 'Ah, poor child, you must have go there soon'?"

—A young wife in Detroit, Michigan, was discovered, three days after her marriage, to be a victim of kleptomaniac. She confessed to her husband, what he had never suspected, though he had known her for years, that she could not resist the temptation to steal whatever was before her. Subsequently she disappeared and, it is feared, has committed suicide. She had even stolen many things of not the slightest value to her, such as empty cans and bottles.

—"If I fail," he continued, "it is a sign that I ought never to have succeeded, and I will write prose for life; you shall see no change in my temper, nor will I eat a single meal the worse."
