Four Hundred Years Ago. Wild are thy plains Columbia.

Thy plains of evergroup: And ne'er before upon thy shore Were foreign foot-prints seen; But thro' thy groves the savage roy'd, Where mountain streamlets flow, When brave Columbus crossed the seas Four hundred years ago!

With heart of steel that feared no ill. With followers true and brave, He bade farewell his native dell, And tried the treacherous wave: He dared to roam the ocean fuam, Where stormy breezes blow, And to thy shores glad tidings bore, Four hundred years ago!

Faith was the guide—faith true and tried, That cheered him on his way, And pointed out the pathless route To where thine islets lay; Hope was the star that shone afar, With bright and dazzling glow, And steered his bark 'mld dangers dark, Four hundred years ago!

But change the scene since then I ween Thy savage chieftains fled; And where of old the grim wolf strolled Prond cities rear their head: And fertile plains of golden grain, In rich luxuriance grow, Where all was drear as autumn scar, Four hundred years ago!

On many a crag our starry flag Waves 'our the brave and free, And our navies ride in all ther pride On every sounding sea; And nations gaze in stark amaze, For well the nations know. Our name and fame was not the same Four hundred years ago!

And far away, while the wild winds play Through the forest's dismat night, An iron steed with lightning speed Darts like a ray of light; And steamers glide o'er the sparkling tide Where weary and faint and slow, The red man drew his light canoe, Four hundred years ago!

Then, hall Columbia, happy land, Home of the poor oppressed, May still to thee the exile fice, And find a place of rest; And may thy power, increase each hour, Thy sons in virtue grow, And die to save what Colon gave Four hundred years ago!

MY BIRTHDAY. Beneath the moonlight and the snow Lies dead my latest year; The Winter winds are wailing low Its direce in my car.

I grieve not with the mouning wind As if a loss befell; Before me, even as behind, God is, and all is well!

His light shines on me from above His low voice speaks within, The patience of immortal love Outwearying mortal sin.

Not mindful of the glowing years

Of care and less and pale, My eyes are wet with thankful tears For blessings which remain. If dim the gold of life is grown,

I will not count it dross, Nor turn from treasures still my own To sigh for lack and loss.

As sweet her voices call, As beautiful her mornings break, As fair her evenings fall. Love watches o'er my quiet ways, at our own neighborhood, and see if this liberties of all. In people accepted it as is not so.

Kind voices speak my name, And lips, that find it hard to praise, Are slow, at least to blame.

We are all acquainted with more or less poor men who have to depend upon hard daily abor, wherever they can pick it upolife followed its precepts with unton on the time the constitution. To carry on this inference of many years the chosen officers of the red and the rich man bonds was therefore the best the rich and are reported as no mation on the rich and aristocratic begaut to spring in that the respected as yet, and the most of the respected as yet, and the respected as yet, and the red and the rich man will be compelled to suffer the fartherest extent of the laboring class commenced; and for many long and weary years the struggle continued. But in time the aristocrats that they are related to suffer the fartherest extent of the labor related and the oppression of many long and weary years the struggle continued. But in time the aristocrats all times should be promptly punished, but let one of his wealthy neighbors, committant very crime from the day laborer, and it is scarcely heard of three miles away from home. The poor day laborer in the day laborer, and it is scarcely heard of three miles away from home. The poor day laborer in the day laborer, and the stone of his wealthy neighbors, committed the remainded of the rich and aristocratic bounds and we will make it a nice thing for you. Intest it in government, and they bead ad once away from home. The poor day laborer in the day laborer, and it is scarcely heard of three miles are raving for all they had at once away from home. The poor day laborer is the relation of the rich and aristocratic printing of the rich and aristocratic begaut to printing the respected. Let the matter in the constitution. To carry on this inference the first of the many very first, and the rich many in count time the rich many in the rich and aristocration beautiful to government to make it cannot be nicht in the opposition of the true Democratic printing to the true Democratic print aristocrat, or commit some other petty crime and he must languish in the stone prison, under bolts and bars, for weary perhaps sent to Congress or some other life of the geometry would be perhaps sent to Congress or some other rake up some pretext for a war—draw the life through the poor, making the cruel deed tell in thousand dollars from the straving families and he is looked upon as a gentleman, and it is declared upon as a gentleman, and it is declared by thousands that he is doing a noble of through they themselves stood back and took the swork.

The toiling laborer dies and his family is left in a destitute condition, the rich masses were imbrued with the spirit of the paper we offer him or have nothing.
