CURING HAY.

With their carefully pressured toots and herbs, many of our mothers or grand-mothers could as well alleviate the ills of merbs, many of our mothers or grandmothers could as well alleviate the ills of humanity as can many of college-bred M. D.'s; but note with what care those roots and herbs were gathered and prepared. That they might retain all their virtues, they were invariably "fored int the shade?" Now we, as farmers, may karn from this a lesson of wisdom and practical utility, applied to the hay field.
Cure in the shade, versus make hay while the sun shines. Now the question arises, which of these two antagonistic principles,
or maxima shall we! follow; certainly,
after due reflection, all will admit that hay cured in the shade is superior to that cured in the sun, whereas the former method requires more labor than the latter. In answer to the above interrogations both the price of hay and the price of labor must be taken into consideration; therefore in general, we reply if labor is plenty and hay commanding large prices. tons both the price of hay and the price of labor must be taken into consideration; therefore singgingth, ye reply if labor is plenty and hay commanding large prices, cure in the shade; but if labor is limited in most excellent condition to store and yor two; then open the same, and after an hory sexposure to the sun it will be in most excellent condition to store and yor two; then open the same, and after an hory sexposure to the sun it will be in most excellent condition to store and yor two; then open the same, and after an hory sexposure to the sun it will be in most excellent condition to store and yor two; then open the same, and after an hory sexposure to the sun it will be in most excellent condition to store and yor two; then open the same, and after an hory sexposure to the sun it will be in most excellent condition to store and yor two; then open the same, and after an hory sexposure to the sun it will be in most excellent condition to some and after an hory sexposure to the sun it will be endical to this particular grass, but it is very easy to get surfed of two business.

Cracked wheat, better than oatmeal, is cracked wheat, better than oatmeal, is growing in favor among farmers, as it has long been highly esteemed by city people. It is good for breakfast, good for dinner, and good for supper. The more you cat of it the better you like it. It keeps the bowels in a most comfortable and wholesome condition. It is a simple dish, but fit for a king. Two coffee cups full will be quite enough to cook at one full will be quite enough to cook at one time. Pour on a cup of cold water, stir the wheat about in it, and then pour it off to be poured on again, as the wheat, in cooking, boils dry. The reason for so doing is that the water carries off much of the flour which would otherwise tend of the flour which would otherwise tend to burning. Cook in a tin pan or basin, throw in a little salt, and add water with discretion, so that when done, the mass will be consistent enough to moid. Turn into a dish, and when cold turn on a plate, bottom side up. Serve with cream or milk and sugar. Add a slice of jelly or fruit jam, if you like.

The Fowl-House.

The sweepings from the ponltry-house if properly saved, will prove the richest source of manure on the plantation.—Analysis of the droppings of domestic fowls shows more than sixteen per cent. Salin matter, and nearly six per cent. salin matter, indicating its value to the richest specimens of Peruvian Guano. Since the cost of it is nothing, the profit in the use of itsiggreat. How a Bloat of Over Two Weeks was Cured.

E. writes to the Rural New Yorker :-As our cattle were turned to pasture last spring, a nice yearling heifer was affected with bloat, which did not abate, but increased for more than two weeks. We afraid of that. And then, ma, I begin to creased for more than two weeks. We did not see her chew her cud, although she was not within observation except at milking time. We gave her a slice of salt, fat pork, sprinkled on both sides with ground, black pepper. She ate it readily, and soon made a spasmodic effort, as if to raise something into her mouth. Another slice of pork, well peppered, was given her, and she went to pasture with the other cattle as usual. When she was the dark comes, as it will, in a measure, next observed, she was chewing her end the dark comes, as it will, in a measure, bloat had not all gone down. The fowl-house should be swept out twice or three times every week, and all the droppings placed in a barrel, and while fresh, they should be covered with land plaster, charcoal dust, or fine woods earth. This will preserve it in good condition, and prevent any loss by evaporation.

The peculiar richness of the dung of fowls is supposed to be from the fact that the liquid and solid excrements are together. Its value as a manure is far more permanent than any guano, the strength of it being very perceptible for years.

For liquid manuring there is no better preparation than water, in which fowl-house manure has been leached. A barse manure has been leached. A bar- day to day, it tells me that God is near."

When the Dark Comes.

A litle girl sat, at twilight, in her sick mother's room, busily thinking. All day she had been full of fun and noise, and noise, and had many times worried her poor tired mother.
