The Tunkhannock Republican says that an ceident occurred to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Piatt, last Sunday, while on a visit to the farm of their son Robert, about one and a half miles from town, which resulted in the very serious, injury of Mrs. Piatt. It seems they were seated in a buggy, when the horse shyed at some object, the seat being improperly fastened, tipped over, throwing the occupants to the ground. Mr. Piatt was injured internally, but is able to be about. Mrs. Piatt lies at her son's home in a very critical condition. Being a large and elderly lady, the shock was particulary severe.

We see it stated that hanging branches of May weed or camomile, or flowers, about a it is then at its best for cooking and may be room, or even strewing the dried flowers there-in, well expel flies. If this be so, why don't somebody go into the "wild camomile" business, and let suffering humanity know where a sup pty of that plant can be obtained, on moderate rms? Electrical Phenomena.

During the heavy rain storm Monday after noon, about 33% o'cleck, something fell on the stone step in front of the office of the Reading Spice Mills, No. 446 Penn street, which explod ed with a sharp and loud report like a pistol with a crash of fire and a light smoke like that of a torpedo. A similar explosive soon after fell on the roof of the portion of Mishler's Hotel, and a third one in the middle of Penn street, between the Union and Farmers' Banks a distance too great for any such projectile as a torpedo to have been thrown by hand. The rain was falling in large drops, and there had been some thunder and lightning previously, but there was none at that time, . The last report was quite land, and caused some alarm. No fragments of any kind could be found, though a careful search was made, and is would have been almost impossible for any one to have thrown torpedoes in three different places, half a square apart, without being discovered. The explosions followed each other at intervals of about five minutes. What were these explosives? Can any of our scientists explain. Reading Ganette,

How Fortunes are Amassed.

It is a noteworthy fact that in all large cities O.Doud, Jr the vast majority of the men who have amassed large fortunes have done so by transactions in real estate. Here and there we find a merchant or a manufactuerer who from the profits of his business has won riches; but even in these cas es it will almost invariably be found that real estate was the foundation of it. We cannot at this moment recall a single instance to which majority of the old families was not the result of trade profits, but of the immense advance in
