What We Say at Montrose.

We were at Montrosc on Saturday and Sun day last. We accompanied Mr. Phillips and were entertained by everybody in a manner which was pleasing to all concerned. The court house was an attractive building, and we were shown through its capacious halls. We were in jail (only on a visit) for a short time. It is built on a solid rock. This jail boasts of nineteen cells and one dungeon. The warden has thirteen boarders—obliging sort of men, who never the present time the post-office has lost money way out late of nights. We were treated with the utmost urbanity during our stay, and have that the general public has not taken advanmade a resolve to again give Montrose a call. The Susquebanna County Republican Con-Messis. George Lambert and Birchard will accept our thanks for their kind entertainment.

Fatal Accident.

Mr. Levi Westfell says the Susquehanna mrnat, living on the west side of the river, one mile above this place, met with an accident at noon on Saturday Aug. 10th, which resulted in his death two hours later. Mr. Westfall went into the woods, nearly a mile west of his home, with a team to get a load of fuel. After loading his wagon with long poles, he started for home When coming out of the wroads, one of the wheels of the wagon struck a small stump, which caused the wagon and load to musel, and Mr. Westfall to fall directly beneath the whole Three men was following the load. They immediately ran to the rescue of Mr. Westfall and soon relieved him from his perilous position. Charles Beebe, his son-in-law, removed him to his home; On their way, he talked trucky and expressed the opinion that he was but elightly injured. An examination, however, revealed the fact that his ribs were fractured and blood ressels broken in his side. He soon began to grow weak and faint; and breathed his fast at

Mr. Westfall was nearly 75 years of age: He was born in this neighborhood, and had lived on the same farm since he was ten years of age. A Perilous Season.

Glorious and delightful as the Summer weather is tropical heat is a surere trial to the vital powers. Even the strongest are sometimes prostrated by its effects. The common phrase applied to this condition of the body is "general debility." Now, general debility arises from, and includes a variety of aliments. The liver is more or less affected, the bowels are either constipated or too much relaxed, the stomach but half performs the work of digestion, the appetite is poor, and the spirits depressed. This is what is called general debility. It is a general disarrangement of all the physical functions, and requires as a remedy a medicine that will regulate, them sil, Hostetter's thomach. Bitters is specially adapted to this purpose. Its epectal operation is not confined to a single organ. If the liver is affected, it resolvers its tone. If the stomach is torpid, it regenerates it. If the nerves are translons and weak, the case of the stomach is terrificated with the case of the mind, which ever the difficulty, is gloomy and deep mechanism of the body into harmony with the laws of the sine of the law of law of la
