TTEASURE TROVE—Alexander ron Humboldt, it is well-known, died in a state bordering poverty. His financial embarrassments were caused by his loss, in 1843, of the sum of $9,000 or $10,000 in gold, which the King of Prussia had presented to him. At the time, it was believed that the money had beea stolen from the great saranit, but the police were nuable to find any clue to its dis-speasance. Strange to say, a short time since, the gentleman now living in the nones, formerly occupied by Mr, Hum-boldt, found the money in a small box among some old rubbish in the cellar. How is got there puzzles Humboldt's in-timate acquaintances exceedingly.
