Ill-Treatment of The Inmate.

An investigation in Vermont brings to light, in an insane asylum at Brattleboro, the brutal ill-treatment of its inmates, such as Charles Reade, has described in his novels, and which facts too often prove to be no fiction.

The worst abuses were found to exist in the punishment of the insane patients. One process called "bathing" is in vogue and its enormity is best understood by remembering that the steady flow of cold water in the manner used under it is alone sufficient to produce insanity.

Several instances occurred where persons of sound mind were committed to the asylum as insane merely for the purpose of getting their property, and for similar reasons. In one instance a man of wealth is said to have been thrown into the asylum by his wife.

The true remedy lies in requiring some proper legal investigation to attend the confinement of any adult person in an asylum, and in the constant supervision of all such institutions by a body like our Board of Public Charities.

Evils of this class are greatly facilitated by the Vermont law authorizing commitment to such an asylum on the certificate of one physician.

The Farmer.

Facts About Fences.

The difference in cost between fencing a piece of land in an agricultural country and only that portion devoted to pasturage is immense. It has been proved by statistics, beyond all doubt, that it costs $20 a head to build the fences of the country, which is really more than cattle on an average are worth.

There is no remedy at present. The investment has been made, repairs must go on for there is no sentiment on the subject, scarcely an opinion. More than this, as farming is now carried on it is necessary to have all the land enclosed in order that fields now in grain may after a time be put to grass, when cattle are to graze or hay is to be cut.

It is to be noted, by the way, that in New York, some of the New England states, and in some parts of Ohio, farmers are not obliged to fence, and great damage has resulted while far less damage is done by cattle, and it is undoubtedly true in such places that the farmers have larger returns than formerly.
