An Error.

We are informed upon reliable authority, that the robbery at Great Bend, an account of which we copied from the Susquehanna Journal, was a myth, as no such thing happened to him at all.

Ripening Peas.

Joseph Hoopes furnishes some excellent directions on picking and ripening peas. After alluding to the common test of ripeness for picking, namely, gently raising the stem, he directs that the specimens be placed thinly and evenly on the floor of a cool room, on a blanket previously spread, and then covered with a second blanket.

Condition of the Roads.

No one can travel much about our country, without lamenting the state and condition of our roads. More than one farmer from a distance, has been turned off from purchasing a farm here, by the want of good roads, and the consequent additional expense of getting produce to market.

Enjoy the Present.

It conduces much to our content if we pass by those things which happen to our trouble, and consider what is pleasing to our spirits, that by the representation of the better the worse may be blotted out. If it be overthrown in my suit at law, yet my horse is left me still and my land, or I have a virtuous wife, or hopeful children, or kind friends, or good hopes.

The Rain and the Crops.

Whatever may have been the effect of drought and a backward season upon the crops generally in May and June the weather now seems to be making up for previous shortcomings. For a month past the rains have been frequent and in such a manner that the entire country is now covered with vegetation.

Death of Prof. J. F. Stoddard.

On Wednesday last week Prof. John F. Stoddard, the distinguished mathematician died at his residence near Newark, N. J. The deceased was born in Ulster county, N. Y. About the year 1851 he established a school in Bethany, in this county, which was conducted with eminent success, until the buildings were purchased by the Methodists, who had in view the establishment of a denominational school.

Hard on School Teachers.

Prof. A. L. Home, of the Keystone Normal School, says: "In different parts of Eastern Pennsylvania, both women and men are engaged in manufacturing cigars. He made it a point of inquiry, recently, to ascertain how those engaged in this business made it pay, and has obtained the following information: Women as a rule, work faster but not as well as men. Thus in one case, we heard that a man and his wife were both engaged in cigar making. The wife made one thousand cigars while the husband made only six hundred, but the husband received as much for his six hundred as his wife for her thousand, from the fact that his were made more neatly. The comparative earnings of men and women are thus about alike. An active hand can realize from $10 to $18 per week."

About Lightning.

The lightning that accompanies summer showers, is an object of terror to a large number of people, yet, in reality, the danger of loss of life from lightning is very much less than from drowning, or many other forms of violent or accidental death. The census shows that in the year 1870 there were only 292 deaths in the entire country from lightning strokes. Out of an aggregate of nearly 500,000 deaths from all causes, there was but one out of every 237 that was caused by lightning. Or putting the case in another form there was but one person out of every 199,833 killed by a lightning stroke.

Children's Rights.

The "rights of women" have had their advocates among us for a good many years, and now the "rights of children" have found an advocate who, among us, is a school teacher. At a convention of the school held recently by Worcester, Massachusetts, Superintendent Marble read a paper, in which he maintained that every child in school, however young, "has the same right to his opinion, his judgment, his will and way, which a full grown man would have if he sat in the same seat. The fact," said he, "that he is weak and ignorant does not alter the case. If the child's opinion or judgment be at fault, we should correct it, in the same rational way as we would an adult. If he be obedient, we should be just as just to him as to an adult, or others, we should first point him out the right way, and if he did not desert from his evil way, we should enforce both adult and child in the same manner. The qualities of reason and intelligence should always be recognized both in the young child, the adolescent, and the adult. The first right of every child, therefore, is to be treated as an equal, and as an inferior."

Keep out of the Mackerel.

When a woman puts three mackerel to cook over night in a dish pan whose sides are eight inches high, says the Danbury News, and leaves the pan on a stove, she has accomplished her mission and should go hence. This was what a Division street woman did Friday night standing on the steps of her house, and then left it standing on the next to the stove, while she went into the next house to get some more mackerel. She was required to go down the front of a red light, and a night's important talk was through the house in search of a mackerel, and not finding it of course. And then she rushed into the yard, wondering where on earth that woman could be, and started bawling that anyone could be so stupid as to leave it there. Of course it is stupid in it, at least, that is the supposition as the neighbors who were brought out by the crash that followed, saw a brilliant sun, and a high flash of light over three very demoralized mackerel shooting across the garden and bounding down the street. There wasn't a dry hand or hair, and his shoulders were full of bits of mackerel, and one of his shoulders was out of joint, and his coat was split the whole length of the back, and he appeared to be out of his head. He was carried in the house by some of the men, and laid on a bed, while others went after a doctor, and six or seven women gathered in the front room, and talked in a whisper about the incident, and what a Providence, and what a warning this was to people who never looked where they were going.

OUR CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM TUSCARORA. ERRORS OF DEMOCRAT—I know if I came here late, I should elaborate upon "burial customs," etc. for it is so jolly to be away in the country, where you are not ranked according to the number of ruffles you wear, the size of your bustle, or questioned to what church you belong. There are innumerable pleasures in remaining here a week or two—in taking a walk down the road, or in the little tongues we have had in the water. There's a willow chair drawn up before the store with its elevated over—a w. o. box near by, and a clock which is a real novelty.

Such is, in part, the kitchen where I am engaged, to-day. Lonesome indeed would it be were it not for the kindly souls who inhabit it. There are lives so pure and good, so full of love and charity, you will, I think, concede with me in saying, the world is the better for their having lived in it. But the kitchen is not broad enough for me. I wandered out in the yard from thence to the fields, and there personated Maul Muller, i. e., "Raked the meadow sweet with hay"—tested the first ripening choke-cherries, which caused my face to appear—I imagine—something like a baked apple, and (dare I confess it) actually rode upon a load of hay, that was jolly indeed! I also went fishing—dig my own bait, took caught just two fishes—I did not ascertain the kinds, but do know that they were rare. After indulging in this pastime for at least four hours—I wisely concluded that they could not be caught by chaff (or a girl either), therefore I decided, lamenting "There are good fish in the sea, but O! they won't be caught." After the above event, I concluded to devote a day to educational interests, so one bright morning found me domiciled in a school room. I was rather comfortably (?) seated between two boys, who glanced at me side wise, etc., etc. There were thirteen pupils in attendance that day—each doing his own task. I am sorry to confess that the reading of Tennyson's poem, "Charge of the Light Brigade," by a little girl aged ten years, did not interest me as perhaps it should have done, but I was truly pleased when a boy, questioned in regard to the location of Constantinople, asserted manfully that it was somewhere in the United States. It did not devote but half a day to that school affair. But the sun rays are striking awful in the kitchen floor. The west is beautiful in its sunset tints, which are indescribable, and ere the night shades creep on, I will sign myself, gratefully, W. A. P.

Now stands among the best of all the hair restorers of all articles for a similar purpose. The testimony of our physicians is conclusive as to its value, and we are personally acquainted with the scores of cases where it has been used with the best result. Try it, and you will not be disappointed. Lowell Courier.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CURE FOR COLDS, AND ALL AFFECTIONS OF THE LUNGS AND THROAT.

Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal experience of its efficiency. There may be remedies that are good, but in all our experience that has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.
