

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

Suspicious Live-Stock Dealers.

We have before mentioned, says the Agriculturalist, that numerous cheats have been made of certain dealers in live stock in various sections, and letters come in to come relating to transactions which, as they are represented by one of the parties, appear to be nothing less than downright swindles. The gentlemen who complain have sufficient means to forward pay for high priced animals; why do they not bring these alleged swindlers into court? The latest letter received in relation to this matter comes from a postmaster in New Mexico, and we give an extract from it to show the general tenor of the charges against the firm: "In Feb. last I sent to one of these firms for five chickens. I sent them a draft for $20, and as yet have got nothing from them, only they acknowledged the receipt of the money. Then they wrote me that the Express Co. would not take them unless the charges were prepaid, and that I should send them so much (the amount of Ex. charges) and they would ship. I then instructed the Express to note express charges out of the money I sent them, and send chickens for the balance as per my letter. That seemed to be a deadener on them, and from that time I can get no reply whatever." The writer of this letter asks if we do not think the firm ought to be exposed for this kind of doing, and the best way to expose them is to bring a criminal suit against them for obtaining money under false pretenses.

Hints for Winter.

Give pigs a warm nest and plenty of straw. Feed horses according to the work they do. Remember that the more work a man does the more he can do. Make your hennery tight and warm, and feed poultry warm food. Better hire an extra man than devote your whole time to mere routine work. Shelter saves food. It consumes less more than that. It saves the life of the animal. Breeding ewes and store sheep will winter well on good straw and half a pound of corn daily. Chaffing hay and straw adds nothing to their nutritive value, but makes them more convenient for feeding. When feeding hay it is a bad practice to let the horse stand with a rack full of hay before him all the time. Machinery does not do away with the necessity for labor; it merely changes its character. It demands brains rather than muscle. Animals require daily care. Make them comfortable. Feed regularly and cautiously must be paid to the purpose for which they are wanted, whether for market or for home use. If for market, select such as are known to breed well in the immediate vicinity, with a fair proportion of early and late sows. When selecting for home use many can be planned which are of a higher quality but scanty bearers and poor keepers. Root grafting can be done at this season. Graft at the "collar," and never on the tips of roots. The best young material is waxed cotton twine. Agriculturalist.

To Purify Tallow.

In order to obtain a tallow quite free from smell, and to preserve it for a long time without becoming rancid, the following simple process may be used: The fresh tallow is melted in boiling water, and when completely dissolved, and completely hot, it is passed through a linen filter, then rendered solid by cooling and washing with water, and lastly separated from it carefully by pressure. It may be melted at a moderate heat and preserved in earthen vessels, covered with a bladder paper, or good closing lid. If the linen filter is not thick enough to keep other impurities from passing through, best is the liquid tallow and water, it is better to repeat the filtration. Tallow thus obtained may be used for ordinary food, for primades by the addition of pure olive oil; for salves and ointments, by the addition of white wax, and may be kept well preserved for a long time, as free from smell as when first prepared.

Trees.

If trees were not ordered early in the fall order at once, so that there will not be any delay when the time to plant arrives. If there is a nursery near by it will often be best to pay an extra price for the privilege of digging or selecting the trees one's self. In selecting varieties attention must be paid to the purpose for which they are wanted, whether for market or for home use. If for market, select such as are known to breed well in the immediate vicinity, with a fair proportion of early and late sows. When selecting for home use many can be planned which are of a higher quality but scanty bearers and poor keepers. Root grafting can be done at this season. Graft at the "collar," and never on the tips of roots. The best young material is waxed cotton twine. Agriculturalist.

Cheap and Good Boiled Pastry.

An excellent substitute for the common sort of boiled pastry for dumplings and rolls is made thus: Take one cup of sifted flour, a tablespoonful of salt, a pinch of soda, a few drops of yeast, and mix with water, stirring all the time, until it becomes a dough just stiff enough to roll, and to roll thin. Some say a stewed fruit having been previously prepared, proceed just as you do with other pastry. It is important that the whole process be expeditiously managed. A portion of water should be added to the dough, which is put in the roll. Allow an hour for the boiling. Baste with butter, and the end to be subserved. If this recipe is to furnish with a dessert delicate persons and children who could not digest richer food.

THE CURABILITY OF CONSUMPTION.

This is the attractive title of a very excellent article in the Deutsche Archiv für Klinische Medizin, June, 1873 by Dr. Massini. He shows, first, that true tubercular consumption is curable, as is innumerable of persons dying with other diseases prove. That it is consumptive is also attempts to prove, and hence he disapproves of consumptive marriages. The means of prevention are general and special. His enumeration of them includes nothing novel; but with most of the latest German authorities, he is strongly in favor of elevated health resorts in mountain air.

RUMORS.

A Danbury Album.

There is a sort of delicious joy in looking over a family album, especially if it is a very old album with a sprained back, which occasionally and unexpectedly drops through your fingers, having a couple of cousins in one band and three aunts in the other, and the chance of the family under the chair. The first picture is of an old gentleman with a expression of wary cautionness in his face as if he was engaged in dodging a wild bull, and was somewhat doubtful of the result. Opposite him is the grandmother, a patient-looking lady in a black dress, with a book in one hand and a pair of spectacles in the other. This is a feeble but well-meaning effort to look safe in her face. Next to her is a middle-aged man looking as if he had been suddenly shot through the rest of a starch factory and had landed in the middle of a strange country. Opposite is the picture of his wife, who, having heard of the catastrophe, has made up her mind to be prepared for the worst. Then follow the children—three girls looking so prim as to make you squirm, and little boys with an expression on their face of unearthy gentility. Then follow uncles, taken in their overalls, with a sprouting inclination for the worst. Next are aunts, as if they were bound to get and give as many of their warts on their noses, and aunts with warts on their noses, and aunts with warts on their necks. Then there is the beautiful young man peering opposite an aggressive young lady, who has just an air of some married woman having designed for each other. There are also the pictures of Cousin Aleck and his young wife, who stopped here on their tour, and no young man looks at him without retiring at once and registering a terrible vow never to get married. Besides there is the picture of the man who lived next door for eight years, at the end of which time his wife died, and he moved to Illinois with the children, and is now worth some fifty thousand dollars. He has been photographed in his hat, which is one size too large for him, and which gives him an appearance of having mired his aunt and concealed the body. Then there are two or three fine looking corsages of no particular identity, and several broken-spirited women with babies in their arms—directly or indirectly related to the owners of the album; and the exhibition closes.

A Guilty Conscience.

One day as a menagerie was entering a New England town, and the majestic elephant marching at its head was hearing a particularly muddy creek, one of the local deacons was seen to burst wildly from the throng of spectators, and to fly with a running lock and floating coat, uttering wild apostrophes to "good gods," of New England worship, and evidently anxious to escape anywhere out of the world. He was pursued by a committee of selectmen, who finally stopped after a chase of three miles. Then, with tears of repentance, he unfolded his terrible secret. It seems that when a boy, he had met that identical elephant at a circus, and given him tobacco instead of peanuts which the trusting beast expected. It is a well known belief of the small boys that an elephant once deceived in this way will for the rest of his life be in his natural life, and whenever he meets him will delight him with muddy water. Conscience and this common superstition had made the deacon a coward, and he had fled from the doom of dirty water which he feared had finally overtaken him.

An Irishman, newly engaged, presented to his master one morning a pair of boots the leg of one of which was much longer than the other.

"How comes it, you rascal, that these boots are not of the same length?" "I really don't know sir; but what bothers me most is that the pair don't down stairs are in the same fix."

"Unless you give me aid," said a beggar to a benevolent lady, "I am afraid I will have to resort to something which I greatly dislike to do."

The lady handed him a dollar, and compassionately asked, "What is it you want, that I have saved you from?" "Work," was the mournful answer.

Lady to Jeames, who has brought up a note—"Did you ask the young person to take a seat?"

Jeames—"Beg pardon, m'lord, she'd be'dently been eatin' of onions; so I us'd her to be good as to wait outside."

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring to Gray Hair its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is as agreeable, healthy, and effective for preserving the hair. It soon restores faded or gray hair to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair when the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new growth of hair is produced. Instead of forcing the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the scalp arrests and prevents the formation of dandruff, which is often so unclean and offensive. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume.
