

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.
Dogs and their Costs.
The St. Louis Globe has been making some calculations from recent statistics on this question, and sums up in reference to the State of Missouri as follows: "Our 400,000 dogs furnish one of the most important economic considerations now affecting the state. In the first place they militate against the cotton crop annually to the extent of at least $5,000,000; secondly, they cost an average of 25 cents a week each, $6,500,000—enough to run all our common schools and leave a large surplus; thirdly, they slay annually, through hydrophobia, at least 120 persons, which, at $5,000 each the average price paid by rail-roads for very poorest of brakemen—amounts to the further sum of $600,000. Here is a direct expenditure of nearly $7,500,000, for dogs, not to mention the fines, costs, and more remote sentimental damages resulting from lawsuits about dog fights and severance of friendship between the owners of the combative curs. Capitalized, our dogs represent a waste of $60,000,000, and invested at compound interest their worthlessness would pay of the national debt before 1900."

Cracking Peas.
A correspondent of the Gardener's Monthly says: Peas do not crack when the soil is sufficiently supplied with lime and potash; and they crack most where those salts are deficient. Common wood ashes contain these salts nearly in the quantity and proportions that peas require on such soil—forty per cent. of potash and thirty per cent. of lime. Reasoning from these facts, I applied wood ashes at the rate of 400 bushels to the acre, after the fruit had formed and cracked. Many of them healed up and made perfect fruit the same season, others not until the next season. A friend, at my suggestion, applied it heavily to a favorite butter pea tree in his own garden for several years in succession, and has had for several years perfect and delicious peas, and I will guarantee it to cure any case, where the ashes are fairly and abundantly applied. I was told by an experienced hand that I would kill the trees but on the contrary I cured them. Therefore do not be afraid; give one application will not suffice, give a larger dose next year. A moist atmosphere undoubtedly encourages the growth of the tree and fruit, while the insufficiency of proper food prevents the perfection of either; hence, cracked fruit and "rough, old bark."

Agricultural Experience.
Dr. E. M. Pendleton, Professor of Agriculture in the Georgia Agricultural College, in a recent elaborate report concerning the results of experimental farming, epitomizes some valuable information as follows: That the application of soluble manures in a liquid form is better and more efficient than when applied in the dry state. That lime will pay on soils abounding in organic matter; on other soils its application is of doubtful utility. That subsoil is not necessary on seeds, or grow plants, like surface soils. That early planted cotton will not produce as much as that planted later when the ground becomes warm, vigorous and healthy. That subsoiling cotton lands will pay for the extra labor of subsoiling. That one stalk in the hill will produce more cotton than two or more stalks.

Worth knowing.
Dr. Glass, living near Granby, who is clearing up a new farm, has been troubled with a large number of big oak stumps. He had heard that saltpetre was good for stumps. Accordingly, about a couple of months ago he sprinkled on the top of each stump about a tablespoonful of pulverized saltpetre. A few days ago he set fire to these stumps and says they commenced and continued to burn until every stump was totally consumed, roots and all, so that he was able to plow without the least difficulty over the ground formerly occupied by these large stumps. He says some of the stumps burned four or five days. Farmers, try the doctor's remedy; he says it will not fail. The doctor also says that if your cabbage plants are troubled with little black bugs you can save every one of them by sprinkling them lightly with cayenne pepper. Use an ordinary table paper box. This is dead shot. Granby (Mo.) Miner.

Oatmeal Gruel.—Mix a desert spoonful of fine oatmeal or patent groats with two table-spoonfuls of cold water and boil for ten minutes, stirring frequently. For a richer gruel, boil two table-spoonfuls of groats in a quart of water for an hour. Strain through a sieve; stir in a piece of butter large as a walnut and some sugar, nutmeg or ginger.

Brown Bread.—For a medium sized loaf, take five cups of rye meal, one and two-thirds cups of Indian meal, one cup of molasses, one-half cup of lively yeast, mix with warm water until it is soft enough not to stick to the hand. Put it into a pretty hot oven, let it get nicely browned on top, then cover closely, and bake slowly for nearly two hours.

Onions.—To raise onion sets successfully you must have poor land and then sow the seeds very thickly. Sow in spring as soon as the ground is in a suitable condition to work easily, and pull the sets when they ripen off in July or August. Ripen, small bulbs will keep as well as those of large size, only place them in a dry, cool place.

Elderberry Ink.—Take one-half gallon of elderberry juice, an ounce of copperas two drachms of alum, and twenty drops of creosote dissolved in a small quantity of alcohol. This makes a very good violet ink.

A farmer gives the following bit of advice which boys to be good hints: "If you want the boys to stay on the farm, don't bear on too hard when the boy is turning the grindstone."

To Make Jelly Cake.—One cup sugar, one of flour, three table-spoonfuls butter, three table-spoonfuls sweet milk, three eggs beaten separately, cream tartar and soda.

Muffin Recipe.—Two eggs, one quart of flour, a pint of sweet milk, two pounds of butter, a gill of yeast, a tea-spoonful of salt.

HUMOROUS.
A Puzzled Darkey.
Not a hundred miles from Crestline, a colored American citizen keeps a stand for the sale of newspapers, cigars, apples, and other knick knacks. Thither one day went a busy engineer, given somewhat to practical joking, and asked for a nickel's worth of peanuts. The elongated edibles were immediately measured and handed over:
"Dere dey are, sar?"
"Let me see," said the engineer, thoughtfully, "I don't believe I want these after all. Take 'em back and give me a couple of apples in the place of 'em."
"All right, sar," and the exchange was made in a twinkling.
The engineer still hesitated, fumbling the apples in an undecided manner. Finally—
"Durn my buttons, I dont believe I want these either. I'll trade 'em to you for a cigar."
The trader was made without objection, and the engineer, after leisurely lighting his cheroot, turned away.
"Hol' on, dar! you dou gon and forgot to pay for that cigar."
"Certainly I paid for it. I gave you the apples for it."
"Why, yes, I gave you the peanuts for them."
"You didn't pay for the nuts."
"Well I didn't keep 'em, did I?"
"Da' so! for God, da' so!" and while the puzzled darkey was scratching his wool the engineer made his escape. Before turning the corner he glanced back and beheld the darkey with bent head in humiliating attitude, evidently satisfied that as a commercial transaction it was all straight, but wondering where he had made anything out of the dicker.
An enterprising superintendent of one of the Sunday-schools at St. Albans, Vermont, was engaged on Sunday in catechizing the scholars, varying the usual form by beginning at the end of the catechism. After asking what were the prerequisites of the holy communion and confirmation, and receiving satisfactory replies, he asked, "And now, boys, tell me what must precede baptism?"—Whereupon a lively urchin shouted out: "A baby, sar."

A tall Yankee standing six feet three inches in his stockings, was suddenly seized with symptoms of fever. Having a violent pain in his head, his wife to afford relief, was about to apply draughts to his feet when he asked: "What are you putting them on my feet for?" Why says she, "to try and draw the pain out of your head." "The dence!" says he; "I would rather it would stay where it is than to be drawn the whole length of me!"

It is told of a man poorly dressed, that he went to church seeking an opportunity to worship. The usher did not notice him but seated several well dressed persons who presented themselves, when finally the man addressed the usher saying, "Can you tell me whose church this is?" "Yes, this is Christ's church." "Is he in?" was the next question, after which a seat was not so hard to find.

"Miss A., what is your opinion of the weather? I think it intends to clear. Do you agree with me?"
"I do indeed; and wish some folks would follow the weather's example, and clear too."
Mr. B. seized his hat and has not been seen in that street since.

Oh, Pa, Mr. Smith was here this morning, and when ma told him that you would not be home till late, he said her lips were just like honey, and he wished he was a bee, and then he kissed her. They gave me a stick of candy not to tell any one, but I don't think they'd mind, you, you're so well acquainted with ma.

"Faint heart never won fair lady" may be true, but when your girl's father wears a number twelve, with a Scotch sash, and takes particular care to show you his dog kennel and armory, and you feel your knee's giving away, your teeth begin to chatter, and your eyes roll to, then, in such instances, the saying is not applicable.

That Irishman had a correct appreciation of the business, who, being asked by the Judge, when he applied for license to sell whisky, if he was of good moral character, he replied: "Faith, yer honor, I don't see the necessity of a good moral character to sell whisky!"

A raw countryman, gazing at a garden in the vicinity of Boston, in which were several marble statues, exclaimed: "Just see what a waste! Here's no less than six scare-crows in this ten foot patch, and say one of them would keep the crows from a five acre lot!"

Some men are born to misfortune.—At a Fourth of July picnic, a Covington chap got his eye punched for speaking to another fellow's girl, and when he tearfully explained that he'd "known" her these thirty five years, he got all his hair pulled out.

A young lady who couldn't get leave to go to a picnic yesterday, said she was so mad she believed if she should bite anybody it would be a sure death from poison. A young man standing by remarked that he wanted to be a victim in a case of that kind.

A man in Hartford advertised recently that on receipt of a certain sum he would by return mail, "instruct any applicant how to make a fortune. His directions were:
"Feed" me cigars, half Havana and half home made, as I did, and always be ready to pick up a stray chicken."

A Cleveland youth of rather fast proclivities, fell in love with a parson's daughter, and, as a clincher to his claims said to the reverend gentleman: "I go my bottom dollar on matrimony, and I will pray you for stamps on the spot."

"Deserted by all except his aged bob-tailed dog, his life went slowly out as the shadows of the setting sun crept over the front steps of Darling's grocery," is the way they express themselves in Georgia.

An old veteran was relating his exploits to a crowd of boys, and mentioned having been in five engagements. "That's nothing," broke a little fellow, "my sister Agnes, has been engaged eleven times!"

Iron in the Blood
PERUVIAN IRON SYRUP
MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.
The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protozoid of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Purifying Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhoea, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility, or a low state of the system, or arising from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, increasing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.
Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and it will do the same for you. See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass. Pamphlets Free.
