Notes About Town.

The people outside of Montrose talk of "stinging the bosom that nourishes" Homer. Homer says to the pure striped stocking them to be "raging," but we hasten to give him the benefit of an explanation. The following advertisement appears in the Lost on Nov. 3d, 1874, the celebrated "To-wanda Ring." The finder will be a second to the second to day evening, Dcc. 10th. The programme was handed us too late for publication. Homer desires to know why the DEMOCRAT is not conducted in the same way that the Republican is? Because the editor has never been a Knownothing. In the first place, we don't like to do so, and in the second place, we are no such kind of a man. It seems to be as much of a crime to stop at Cook and, in fact, nearly the whole Republican party had better change their quarters. Don't you let Homer see you on the street either, at there may be no truth in the report."

The Woman's Temperance Society will hold Had His Leg Amputated. a public meeting in the lecture room of the Baptist church, at 2 p. m., Wednesday, Dec. Woman's National Christian Temperance proceedings of the late Convention at Cleve-

Homer must have his reasons for so doing. If we were in the Judge's place we would ask him to explain why he did so. His paper must be as interesting to Judge Streeter this week as it was to ex-Sheriff Moxley last week. The Republican says that: "It is said that the new burners on the street lamps do not work well. Would it not be better to dispense with these boulevards entirely, and use instead pine knots, or candles, or lightning bugs !?

Does Homer intend at this late date, to infringe upon the patent of the DEMOCRAT and "ruin the prosperity of the town ?" Our observation of the new burners is, that they operate finely thus far, and we have watched them pretty closely. Now we beg of the editor of the Republican not to "roin our town" by attacking of this marvel was William Kupp. The young the street lamps at this times, "Muni" is his man's death was sudden, he having retired to watchword on the "Legal Association" and the "shylocas," except to give them a little encouragement by his anothemas upon the Demo-

We think he must have seen the above idea in the "Court House (Ring) window." We have never been nourished much in the "bosom" o the Montrose Republican. We never have been ourished much in the "bosom" of the "shy ocks," We never have been nourished auch in the "bosom" of the "Court House Ring." We never have been nourished much by the "Legal Association gobble." These are the only ones who have been stung. Now will Homer please tell us which "bosom" he means.

The report speaks of the mode of attack -Diptheria is caused by the inoculation of the air passages with the diphtheritic polson, which from this point intects the whole system. The local inflamation is extended with the formation of membrane (exudation.) The fever and general symptoms are the result of this local infection. Diphtneria is, therefore, a contagious disease, (not, perhaps, as markedly so as scarman is changed, the want of something to do let fever.) induced by contact with objects and persons infected. It may be diffused by the exhalations of the sick and the air surro all owing to the fact that human nature them, or directly by the exudation, as in the act cannot support a state of idleness. How to Admit Boneficial Air. In nearly all small dwelling houses ventilation is allowed to take care of itself, and while the occupants are not confined to one room, but move from one room to another, the ciculatio of air caused by the opening of doors is sufficient to keep up a supply of fresh air. During sickness, however and at nights, there is noth ing left but a Hobson's choice between foul air and a dangerous draught. A recent author treating of philosophy for practical use suggests a method of avoiding both. A piece of rood three inches high and exactly as long a the breadth of the window is to be prepared .-When ventilatilation is required raise the sash, put the strip of wood on the sill and draw the er part of the sash, but between the upper ba and the lower bar of upper sash there will be an opening through which a purpendicular current of air may enter or pass out of the room but not be felt as a draught such as would be
