Larm and Household. Farming as an Occupation. Why is it that farming is considered menial occupation at the present day?— Is it for the reason that the life of a farmer is not seen in its true light? This I an era in which all things, or the greater part, are judged from appearances, not from their true worth, or I might say this is a gilded age—that is, position in society is graded according to the depth of a man's pocket. For instance, there is Mr. Shoddy, who lives in a fasionable part of the city, in a fine residence, with his retinue of servants and his fine turnouts. It makes no difference what his past life has been, or by what means he conminted his vast wealth, whether by defrauding the Government, or by the adulteration of food and the necessaries of life, or by the exercise of his muscle in the ring, or by the sweat of his brow. It is all the same; he has got the money It may be asked, in what way does this affect farming as an occupation? It has its influence in this way. Our young men see that it is the almighty dollar that give them position and influence in 80ciety, and consequently they are willing to risk their lives and honor, and will resort to almost any means, honorable or dishonorable, for immediate accumulation of wealth, rather than follow the life of a farmer, where fortunes are not made in an hour. They are not aware that the pursuit of agriculture can be made one of the most happy and independent, as well as progressive, occupa-tions that our Creator has placed before us, and as for comfort and happiness, it rests more in the hands of a farmer to make it so than any other profession in life. His cares are not equal to the trades man's, who, when he invests his all in stock of goods, takes his risk of fire, rob bery, dishonest clerks, bad debts. and frequent failures of his brother merchants and business men. He sees their skeletons in all branches of trade, and it is truly said that a man's health and happiness are easier ruined by mental care and toil than by manual labor. The question comes, what can be done to make the pursuit of agriculture more desirable?the first place, we as a general rule, neglect education. Let our sons and daughters be thoroughly educated, that our sons may be capable of assisting in revising our laws and asserting our rights in our legislative halls, and then we mat hope to see some of the canal, railroad, and other political rings broken up, and we shall not be unduly taxed to support an army of contractors and political jobbers in wealth and affluence. As we become better educated we shall be more refined, and our homes will be rendered more attractive. It require but little time and labor to plant shade and fruit trees and flowers, and by spending a few lessure hours in so doing we shall be doubly repaid. There is no reason why our homes and firesides cannot be made as pleasant and happy as thos of our friends in town. I do not mean as costly and extravagant as theirs, for we must not consider our happiness as de-pendent on these things. There are, too, some privileges that we as farmers do not fully appreciate. We can spend our evenings at home with our families. This is not so in many pursuits of life. Secondly, in the cold and stormy days of Winter many leisure hours can be devoted to reading and improving our minds. There is no reason why the head of every house A number of Alma (Wis.) sportsmen hold should not provide plenty of good reading matter for the amusement and

Butter-Making.

to the Germantown Telegraph the following interesting paper on butter-making. It contains many valuable hints which our dairyman should make a note of: Pennsylvania is the great butter-mak- ing around there. ing state, for which purpose her soil is well adapted. If rightly managed there is doubtless more profit in the manufac-ture of butter than any other branch of dairying taken alone, provided a first rate article be made and put upon the market in the best possible condition, and this will always be so from the fact that more than two-thirds of all the manufacturers of butter, even in Pennsylvania, fail to make a really first-rate article; and strang as the fact may seem to be, there are not one-half of the butter-makers who really know what a first-rate quality of but-ter is, or how to make it. Then again many of them do not care if they get within a few cents a pound of what the best of butter sells at; they would rather sell at a less price if they cannot convince the buyer that it is equal to the best, and if so they save a little labor, but the result in the end only shows that they were "penny wise and pound foolish." To have the credit of making the very best of everything which we manu-facture is worth more than a few pennies

Mr. Walker's family, who now pronounce it invaluable:

PROVIDENCE, R. I., 164 Transit Street. H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

I feel bound to express with my signature the high value I place upon your VEGETINE. My family have used it for the last two years. In nervous debility it is invaluable, and I recommend it to all who may need invigorating, renovating tonic.

O. T. WALKER.

THE BEST EVIDENCE The following letter from Rev. E. S. Best, Pastor of the M. E. Church, Naříck, Mase., will be read with interest by many physicians; also those suffering from the same disease as smitted the son of the Rev. E. S. Beat. No person can doubt this testimony, as there is no doubt about the curative power of VEGETINE.

NATICE, Mass., January 1st, 1873.
MR. H. R. STEVENS:

O. T. WALKER,
Formerly Pastor of Bowdoin Square Church, Boston

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sit—We have good reason for regarding your YEGENTENE a medicine of the greatest value. We feel assured that it has been the means of saving our son's life. He is now seventeen years of age; for the last two years he has suffered from necrosis of his legause by serohinous affection, and was so far reduced that nearly all who saw him thought his recovery impossible. A counsel of able physicians could give us but the faintest hope of his ever railying; two of the number declaring that he was beyond the reach of himan remadies, that even amputation could not save him as he had not vigor enough to endure the operation. Just then we commenced giving him VEGETINE and from that time to the present he has been continuously improving. He has lately resumed studies, throws away his cruthers and cane, and walks about cheerfully and strong.

Though there is still some discharge from the open-at littie, ..., .cine. Respectfully yours, E S. BEST, Mas. L. C. BEST.
