Do the hard-working masses of Susquehanna County feel satisfied that the nobleness of the county, A. D. 1875, should be $18,000, and that they are paying 8 per cent interest on it? Do they think it worth their while to save to their Treasury nearly $3,000 per annum, by a reduction of the excessively high official salaries? Read the Democratic Platform. It comes right home. It gives forth no uncertain sound. It means just what it says.

Perishing and Piollet, and plenty of paper promises to pay with postponement of specie payments, is the new rallying cry of the Democracy of this State.—Reading Dispatch.

Just plugging it into the people in plain if you like, but the dose just as you have mixed it. The landlady who found out what her boarders didn't like, and gave them plenty of it, understood her business rather better than the house in order.

It anybody has supposed that the Republicans have won a victory in Maine let him read the all bill of Cameron's organ. If 6,000 of the Republican majority in Maine is lost on a vote of 114, how much would you vote of 100,000? Or if our memory serve us right, according to Pike's old system of multiplication, there would be some 45,000 short of the Vermont side to greet the all bill of the organ. It is probable that with a Maine victory in Pennsylvania the shout of the Telegraph would be either decidedly epithetical or feeble.—Pittsburgh Times.

The New York Graphic takes to itself the credit for that portion of the Erie platform which attacks the treasury corruption of this state, and at the same time grieves over the ignorance and unweariness of the convention in rejecting its coinage upon the currency question. The Graphic might learn both its vanity and its sorrow by ascertaining the fact that the Erie convention in adopting resolutions condemning the treasury frauds, acted without reference to anything that the World may have ever said upon the subject, and in agreeing upon the money resolutions there was no intention to establish in democratic doctrine, before the World came into existence.—The truth is, that the convention in its work upon the platform forgot the existence of such a paper.—Zanesville Courier.

The nomination of Victor E. Pollett, for state treasurer shows that underneath the surface there is a mighty ground swell of popular feeling that the old politicians do not comprehend and have misinterpreted. They do not know the times. They are out of sympathy with the people who take no stock in their squabbles and care not in copper whether they are in or out. There is something almost volcanic in the hearings and resolutions of a great body of people like this assembled, who refuse to be led by their old managers and take a new set of guides and adopt a new rallying cry on the eve of a presidential election. We call attention to the fact without expressing either sympathy or condemnation; but it is charged with vast significance, and may lead to far-reaching and momentous results.

something appalling in the spectacle of Morton amonging up all the ghosts of the war and exhibiting them on the rostrum. They could afford to tolerate his wild harangues on the campaign, because they would make about as many votes as he would lose; but they were rashing through the country and warning the folks that unless the Republican party was satisfied there would be another Southern rebellion, was a violation that he felt to be undesired. But they can't stop him now any more than they can head off a thunderstorm when it comes tearing across the corn-fields. They have got to let him thunder and lighten until he runs out of brimstone, and then when he is quite played out and reduced to his crutches, they may come out of their shelter and figure up the damage. So put up your umbrellas and get on your overshoes, gentlemen; there's to be a big blow in Ohio directly.—Pittsburgh Times.

Coh. Victor E. Pollett, our nominee for State Treasurer, is of French extraction and was born at Wisex, in 1812. His education was obtained at the ordinary schools of that section of the State, forty years ago. It was solid and practical, and fitted him for the occupation he chose for life, that of a farmer. Being a good speaker and early gaining the respect and confidence of the Democrats of Bradford county, he was elected to the Legislature in 1848, and again in 1847. During the last session John C. Knox and himself led the Democrats against the opposition with fearlessness and ability. This he believed was the only political office he ever held through the Democracy of his district thrice honored him with the nomination for Congress in 1864, '68 and 1872. The district being over-whelmingly republican he was each time beaten notwithstanding he ran far in advance of his ticket—in fact in 1868 his competitor Judge Mercer had but 311 majority, whilst the balance of the republican ticket had about four thousand. We make this reference to show his personal popularity at home and the estimation in which he is held by his neighbors—the best evidence that can be adduced in favor of his capacity and fitness for public trust. He is a man of sterling integrity, indomitable energy and high moral character. He is now engaged in farming and stock raising in his native county and is one of the most prominent and public spirited men in Northwestern Pennsylvania. If elected to the office of State Treasurer, of which we have not the shadow of a doubt you can bet your bottom dollar that Bob Mackey will have to hand over his portfolio clean and clear. No "dead duck" checks in the money drawer will be palmed on him as cash, and no alleged deposits of the Sinking Fund, in broken banks will be accepted. Robert may as well begin to set his house in order.

THE WORK OF MONDAY.

The Democracy of this County assembled by their delegate representation on Monday last, with the fullest and most enthusiastic meeting that has marked their convention for a number of years past. They manifested a fixed determination to follow out the principles laid down by the State convention, and to rally to the support of the honest and capable men who shall lead the people of this Ring-ridden state to a victory over those who have bidden it with taxation and official corruption, on the second day of November next. Their platform of principles emits no uncertain sound, but is plain and practical, and he who runs may read and when he has read he can understand just what it means. It is the cornerstone of that kind of reform which will practically carry out just what has been preached, theoretically, to the masses. The Democracy have proved by it, their full honesty in what they have professed, and that their advent into power means a return both to old time honesty and economy. That the medicine of reform and economy prescribed for their opponents is taken by themselves. That the first time, by a majority of the new constitution, that they have a positive position among the officials in the county administration, they demand that their officials as well as all others shall receive only a reasonable compensation for their services. That the officers shall seek the most for the honor they can bring to their positions, and leave behind them, instead of corruption and burdensome taxation, endorsed by a Radical scramble for such offices to clutch the money and the fortunes that may be gobbled by them. In our limited time and space this week we cannot particularize either upon the platform or candidates as we would wish, but fortunately for us we feel that they are both axioms of themselves and need no lengthy demonstration, and also, that we shall have another day.

We wish to say, however, that we have a ticket made up of a class of men that must appeal to the honest support of all who are so clearly convinced that reform is imperative and indispensable from the best interests of the people, and that this can only be brought about by the smashing of the "Ring" and the defeat of the designing politicians of whatever name or party. We have a ticket which every Democrat should support, with all his vigor, from top to bottom and the masses of all parties will be put upon notice as to their honesty in protesting against Rings and corruption. The ticket is headed by R. B. Little, Esq. for President, Judge of this county, a man who has grown gray in the most successful practice of law in our county and in our state courts. A man of whom it cannot be said that there is a question as to his being a resident of the district, but who is a large real estate owner and consequently, a heavy taxpayer; hence has a common interest with the tax-burdened masses. A man who has never been elected to any office and then turned his back upon his friends to be tossed and teased by Bradford county politicians for his own mercenary purposes to the great detriment of his own party and
