

Democrat-Editorial.

Circulation increasing TWICE as fast as any paper in Northern Pennsylvania.

Gold closed in New York, on Saturday at 110 1/2.

Under the law the prothonotary of the courts is the custodian of the ballot boxes of the people. A Democratic judge in Philadelphia named Block, has by his casting vote placed the ballot boxes of that city under the vigilant care of Wm. B. Mann.

Mark M. Pomeroy, better known as "Buck" Pomeroy, proprietor of the Democrat, in New York city, suspended Wednesday. Liabilities estimated at $140,000. His creditors are scattered widely throughout the country, and a meeting of them will shortly be called.

Election figures still possess some interest. Chairman of State central committee are generally supposed to be elected with reference to their ability in organizing and bringing out the vote of the respective parties. Governor can be the home of both the Democratic and Republican chairmen. Yet in that country 5,540 less votes were polled for governor in 1875 than in 1873. The loss is pretty equally divided between the two parties.

Col. McClure's great newspaper, the Philadelphia Times appeared on Monday greatly enlarged, in a new dress, printed on a new press capable of printing thirty thousand papers, on both sides, in one hour. It has been in existence but eight months, and has achieved success beyond that of any newspaper heretofore published in this country. Its head, Col. McClure, is a thorough newspaper man, and he has surrounded himself with a corps of assistants who make the Times second to no paper in the country, in point of interest and freshness.

It had evidently reached the end of his literary career, the courts have dismissed his appeal for the vacation of the order of arrest and his demand for a bill of particulars. The disorganizing of the founder is thus brought uncomprehendingly to an end. The action of the heirs to Watson's estate has had a good example. The affairs of the estate of New York would probably compromise on about a third million and drop the suits. Tweed's lawyers would have about a million more. We would still have about a million of the plunderer's heirs. Though greatly reduced in circumstances, he might manage to exempt the remainder of his existence on that fund.

We are surprised at the course taken by our Democratic contemporaries of the state of New York, in attempting to claim that the last election, when an endorsement of Governor Tilden, shows in fact he sustained a Waterloo defeat. We know that Biglow is elected but what will Biglow be worth to Tilden in his fight with the Canal Ring when the state Legislature is overwhelmingly in the hands of John Morriss and the Canal Ring, put there by the last election? It is the merest bush for electioneering to call a defeat a victory in order to keep the courage of the people up for they are neither fools nor children, to be deceived by "Giant stones."

Chairman Hoyt does not take the whole judicial party along with him when he writes the financial distress of the country to social causes. A republican whose opinion would fetch a higher price than his, says: "I do not believe that this terrible crisis, this wide spread distress which now oppresses every industrial interest of the country, is the effect of errors committed by the people in their domestic relations, but it is the legitimate and necessary consequence of a most unwieldy, most corrupt, most rascally administration of the government. That the people have too long confided their great interests in the hands of scoundrels, who, through the interests of party machinery and party discipline, have kept themselves in office at the expense of the vital interests of the country."

In a case brought before the Supreme Court from Schuylkill county, Judge Gordon—the other judges sustaining him—rendered a decision to the following effect:

- 1. If a national bank takes more than legal interest, it forfeits the entire interest.
2. Unwarranted interest taken by a national bank may be deflected against the amount lent by the banks.
3. The Pennsylvania Act of Assembly which limits the time in which unsecured interest may be recovered by, back to six months, does not apply to transactions with national banks.

Some curious results are ascertained from the treasury statements as to the condition of the currency sixteen months since and now. It is about sixteen months since the currency act providing for free banking, etc., was passed. It appears that in the sixteen months from June 30, 1874, to November 1, 1875, the total contraction of the currency was about $25,500,000. Nominally nearly $3,000,000 of this amount was in legal tenders, but practically less than $4,000,000. Nearly $23,000,000 of the amount has been in national bank notes. The people have had the opportunity extended to them to increase the bank circulation to almost any extent, and in the period that this opportunity has been afforded the existing banks have actually voluntarily withdrawn from circulation an amount greater by $25,000,000 than all the additional circulation called for. It is not at all to the credit of the financial ability of the late congress that the result brought about by the currency act is equal to the results attained.

The death of Vice President, Henry Wilson, occurred at Washington Monday last. This event was not wholly unexpected, as he has been in a critical condition for some time.

By the census of 1870 the negro population of Mississippi exceeds that of the whites by 61,305. Dividing the vote on the color line, as nearly all the whites are Democrats, this would give a majority for the Republicans of almost ten thousand. As the Democratic majority in Mississippi is almost twice as large it is evident a very considerable number of the negro-voters have escaped from the control of their carpet-bag masters.

The official vote for Senators by counties in the twelve senatorial districts in which elections were held at the late election the Democrats gain one in the Clarion district, where Thomas, Democrat, succeeds Mackay, Republican, thus reducing the Republican majority in the senate from ten to eight, and increasing the Democratic majority on joint ballot from nine to eleven. Senator Lemon, Republican, is re-elected in the Blair and Cambria district in the face of some 600 majority for Leisberg, but he has a way of his own, running that seems to defy all ordinary political majorities. Senator Allen, of Lycoming, received the highest vote above his party strength of any of the newly-elected Senators.

THAT TREACHERY AND FRAUD.

A Thomson correspondent of the Sun, in a recent issue, has pointed out the Ring organization upon the fraudulent ticket question.

Under the heading of "Treacherly and Fraud," the Montrose Republican of November 8th, vaunts over the substitution of White's name in place of Sherman's on the Republican ticket, thus: "We have good reason to believe that it was this last and most dishonest proceeding that defeated Sherman." Yes, that's just what did it, but if the Montrose Republican can derive any pleasure from the thought that it was not done unparaph, we are sorry to undeceive it.

The Republicans in Thomson, and we venture to say all in the county, who voted for White knew who they were voting for. The tickets were peddled openly, and the men who voted for White were among the most intelligent citizens of Thomson, and, to go out of Thomson, we believe the average Republican voter knows enough to read his ticket and can tell the difference between the printed names of "White" and "Sherman." And the fourteen Republicans in Lenox who, according to the Montrose Republican, were victims of fraud, voted for White, and were, we venture to say, intelligent men, and were governed by the same principle that governed their brethren in other towns.

Must a man before he votes call his neighbors together and tell them who he is voting for? According to the Montrose Republican, if he fails to do this he is an ignoramus and a victim of Democratic fraud. Those who have read the Montrose Republican for the past four months can appreciate it at its full value, the holy horror that fills its editorial bosom when it exclaims, "The amount of lying that was done against some of our candidates was frightful and unprecedented." No, Mr. Editor, your cry of "Treacherly and Fraud" don't go down. The tickets were printed for the accommodation of Republicans, whose determination to vote for White was well known before the tickets were printed, and a few Republicans saw fit to vote for him, without letting the fact be known at the polls until the votes were counted, their right to do so cannot be questioned. This move was not intended as a blow at the Republican party, for some of the soundest Republicans we have, voted for White, but the blow was struck at the system that has governed our Republican county convention for years. The "White" pill was administered with a view of cleansing that system. It was not opposed with sugar and smuggled down, but was given without sugar, and we all knew the patient would make up a wry face when he swallowed it. And, if it fails to have a beneficial effect, the dose will be made stronger and be administered again at the next county election.

A VIRTUOUS REFORMER.

In an effusion in the last Republican we conclude that Homer has so far recovered from the shock the Ring received at the ballot box on November second, as to be able to sit up and write the quill a little. Among the few incoherent articulations about the editor of the Democrat we find but one that is worthy of any notice. He adopts the Senator's position of attempting to reform the Reformers and after the recovery from his illness, attempts to repent and place himself upon a very high stool of virtue in the following paragraph. Homer says: "We presented at the Commissioners' office our bill for advertising the election proclamation for 1875, amounting to $64. You have no idea of the patent back-action extorter which is attached to the machine and terminate in Hawley's pocket. He charges us $10 for just what we charged $24 for. That looks to us like an extortionate charge, and in a Republican would cause a great deal of trouble to the taxpayers of Susquehanna county; yet we have no doubt that Hawley will somehow persuade a great many more that it is all right, as far as he is concerned, and that, if there is anything wrong the Republicans (commissioners) have done it." We might leave the matter here yet we have no secrets on this subject. The bill for advertising the election proclamation for 1875, amounting to $64, was presented to the Commissioners and they have no objection to it. The bill for advertising the election proclamation for 1875, amounting to $64, was presented to the Commissioners and they have no objection to it.

The last clause in the above extract fully answers the whole, when it says that we shall "peradventure a good many men that it is all right" so far as we are concerned and that if there is anything wrong the Republicans (commissioners) have done it. We might leave the matter here yet we have no secrets on this subject. The bill for advertising the election proclamation for 1875, amounting to $64, was presented to the Commissioners and they have no objection to it.

The Democrat office, we have no secrets that we are not willing to lay before every person in the county. We have a price for legal advertising which we have unvaryingly maintained which is $1.50 per square, of eight lines nonpareil for three weeks. We made out off-hand for publishing the election proclamation for 1875 which occupied forty four squares in our paper, which entitled us to $66, and we presented it as we have done before and the commissioners paid it. If this be treason let them make the most of it. How is it with Homer? He presents a bill for an advertisement the same as he published last year, for $12 less than he did then which gives the people this conclusion, that he robbed them of eleven dollars last year, or he has concluded to expend that amount this year in a puerile attempt to reflect upon the Democrat and the latter is the most respectable conclusion to us.

We have done nothing that we are not ready to meet in the line of charges for advertising or job work for the county and its officials, and our word to the "sick editor" of the Republican is, to "stay on McDaniel."

Homer could afford to deduct every year for several years to compensate for the amount he charged for publishing the proclamation in 1873 when he made such a blunder that the Democrat had not corrected it upon its own responsibility, the election would have been void and another proclamation needed for a new election. It would have been just like us to have omitted to demand pay in that case. Call your next witness, Mr. editor.

TELEGRAPHIC.

A Possible Clue to the Lost Child at East. NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 20.—The Charley Ross case in this community is unexplained. The Thomaston and Cheshire confirmed reports state that a strange woman, believed to be Moshier's sister, is wandering about from town to town with the lost child. The theory advanced is this: A few days after the abduction of Charley Ross a man answering to the description of Moshier was seen to cross the bridge over the Housatonic river, between Bridgeport and Millport, having in his arms a child which answers to the description of Charley Ross. Moshier then had a sister living in Millport; the next day a sister boat, belonging to Mr. Samuel Willport, of Bridgeport, was stolen from the harbor; that boat was the one which Moshier and Douglas used in their raid on Bay Bunta, when they were shot by the Van Buntas. It is conjectured that Moshier put the child in the hands of his sister with a sufficient amount of money to defray several months' expenses, with the injunction to keep the transaction a profound secret. Moshier was killed, the money which he advanced to her was stolen, and the child was obliged to seek other means of support. Such is the theory.

Some four or five weeks ago, a young lady visiting in Cheshire, in this state, was accosted on the street by a woman, who desired to know the way to the almshouse, with a boy apparently about the same age and appearance as Charley Ross. The lady was struck with the resemblance that she lysiated upon an investigation, but no one identified her, and the woman and child pursued their way.

More recently a Mr. Bunnell, who seems to be a right good specimen of an inquiring Yankee, found a woman and child in Thomson, on the borders of Lenox and Litchfield counties, whose actions were mysterious. By observation he learned that while the woman had dark hair, the child's hair was light. The woman told different stories about the child's parentage, and when pressed she admitted that she had not her own said she was from Hamden, Connecticut, and asked to be let alone. At times she addressed the boy in girl's clothes, especially when passing through a village. At times she covered his face with a handkerchief, and at other times she seemed anxious to divert attention from the child to herself. She never presented the appearance of a sane person. Indeed, the incongruity of her dress with her speaking always led her first set young Bunnell on her track.

He put himself in communication with Mr. Ross, but when he sought to find the woman, he was much surprised to find she had flown. For three days, he says, he has been trying to hear from her, and the boy in several towns, but up to today he had not been able to put his hand upon her. Those best acquainted with the affair say that Mr. Bradley is a bona fide resident of Hamden, and that from her former associations, and that he is believed to be the custodian of Charley Ross as any one living. She is described to be a woman twenty-four or twenty-five years of age, dark complexion and wholly mysterious. No one knows exactly who she is or where she came from. She is described to be unusually keen for one of her class, and her mysterious disappearance from Thomson, just when she was most wanted, is taken to be an indication of her shrewdness. The people hereabout believe that the child in her possession is Charley Ross. The woman was arrested to-night at Newton, but discharged. She was sharply rebuked by the Government Detective Force.

Washington, November 19.—The country is being treated to the regular annual accounts brought out by the Associated Press of the capture of counterfeiters with their plates and tools, by the secret service of the Treasury Department. This fare is gone through with every year just before the meeting of Congress in order that such a showing may be made as will induce that body to make ample appropriations for the maintenance of the force, while for all practical purposes it is not worth's mention. It is not believed that one-fourth of the stories told by the Associated Press of the capture of counterfeiters has any foundation in fact. In many instances the arrests are "put up jobs" of a similar nature to that which came to light in New York last week, where it was proved that a member of the secret service force had deliberately induced certain persons to pass counterfeit money, and then arrested them for doing so. The Judge promptly released the prisoners and severely reprimanded the Detective. The secret service force of the Treasury is, under Washington, more efficient than before, but in the last few years it has been a costly and useless incubator to the transaction of public business.

Terrible Railroad Disaster in Sweden.

COPENHAGEN, November 19.—A melancholy disaster has occurred on the railroad which runs between Stockholm and Malmo. Sixteen cars were completely smashed. Sixty persons were killed or severely wounded.

PHILADELPHIA, November 21.—Moody and Sawyer began their meetings in Philadelphia Wednesday. They are at the depot at the Pennsylvania railroad, (Nineteenth and Market streets, has been fitted up for their use. It is the largest building in the city outside of the cathedral and large enough to accommodate 10,000 people. It is newly and comfortably arranged, thoroughly heated, lighted and ventilated, and for eight service there are a thousand gas jets.

Thus morning a heavy pouring rain set in about seven o'clock and it rained steadily most of the morning. At an early hour a large number of people were waiting for the doors to open. At eight o'clock, when the doors were closed, there were nearly 10,000 people in the hall and large numbers were turned away, being told to obtain admittance.

Rev. Dr. Newton, of the Episcopal church, made the opening prayer. Mr. Sawyer sang, "What will the Harvest Yield." Mr. Moody preached from the Epistle to the Romans, "Every man should be prepared to die." At three o'clock an immense crowd was gathered about the building, and when the door was opened it was so full that many were turned away. Every chair on the floor being occupied and the door was closed three quarters of an hour before the service began. It is estimated that 20,000 people were gathered about the building and turned away. Moody and Sawyer were introduced by "Courage and be Strong." It was a powerful appeal directed to Christian people. Mr. Sawyer sang "Hold the Fort" and two other of the favorite songs. The choir of 100 voices led the singing, which was joined in by the multitude. Many prominent ministers and citizens of Philadelphia occupied seats on the platform.

Shocking Domestic Tragedy in Erie.

ERIE, Nov. 19.—A terrible domestic tragedy occurred here this morning. Jacob Wamoyko, a German, 60 years of age, shot and fatally wounded his eldest daughter, Anna. After committing the deed he fled to the city of Erie, where he was arrested by the police. The girl was shot through the right breast. The bullet glanced down and lodged near the pit of the stomach. She is not expected to live. Domestic troubles were the cause of the tragedy.

1440 German Exhibitors at the Centennial. BERLIN, Nov. 19.—The list of the German exhibitors for the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia numbers 1,440. The presidents of the provinces, the suggestion of the Empress, are collecting all articles connected with the treatment of the wounded in the time of war. They will be exhibited together. One of the objects of the exhibition is to show the progress of the art of surgery. The exhibition will be complete train fitted out expressly to transport the sick and wounded.
