

THE DEMOCRAT FOR 1876.

We desire to express our obligations for the large and increased patronage the DEMOCRAT has received for the year 1875. We believe it has not been without its good effects upon the best interests of the county as well as upon its proprietors. Knowing that an increase of its circulation will bring a more than corresponding increase of its influence, we propose to send out a canvasser who will devote his time in increasing its subscribers, together with other business in its interest. This costs us money, and thinking that there may be others who would be glad to extend its circulation in their neighborhood, and also receive a remuneration for so doing, we will make the following proposition: To any one collecting a list of subscribers and sending the cash with the names we will allow them 25 cents for each such subscriber. This is 12½ per cent, or about what it will cost to do it by an agent. We do this in the interest of ourselves and also in the interest of our subscribers. The larger our patronage the better we can afford to make our paper. We know that none of our subscribers will feel at all aggrieved by the above proposition for we have had many of them, who have not only paid for their own paper promptly, but who have subscribed and sent it to their friends and thus have aided us in making such improvements as we have since we took charge of the paper. As we have said before, it is not only us, but all others of our political faith that are equally interested in the success of the DEMOCRAT, and we are free to acknowledge the many favors we have received. We hope we have merited the continuance of the same good will in the future, and if our friends will assist us in still further extending our influence and power for good, we hope to merit the same good will in a correspondingly increased degree.

"Peterson's" for January.

We thought the December number of "Peterson's Magazine" could not be beaten, yet here is the January number, even more beautiful still. There are two steel engravings, a man-of-war patterned plate and a splendid Berlin pattern in twelve colors; besides innumerable wood engravings of fashions, patterns, etc. The principal steel-plate, "A Little Tot of 1776," is after a celebrated picture by Sir Joshua Reynolds; and she is about the most charming, cunning little lady we have ever seen. A very powerful novelet, called "The Days of Seventy-six," is begun, by Mrs. Anna S. Stephens. All the stories are good, however, even better than usual. There is also an illustrated article on old Independence Hall, in Philadelphia, and the Declaration of Independence, which was signed there. It is the best number "Peterson's" has ever issued, and that is saying a very great deal. The price is only two dollars a year, with great deductions to clubs, and valuable premiums to persons getting up clubs. Specimens are sent, gratis, to those wishing to get up clubs.

Address CHARLES J. PETERSON, 300 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

How to Read the Bible.

A minister gives the following hints as to the best method of reading the bible. If you have a pocket bible, put it in your pocket and keep it there. Don't use it except when you go traveling. There is nothing that will disgust a child sooner than presenting a finely printed pocket bible. Get a bible with a good cheery print, such a print as the little ones find in their volumes from Santa Claus; then it will be read.

If you want to attain a good general knowledge of the bible, it must be read in course—that is beginning at the first and reading to the end. This if it has never been done, ought to be done first of all. Then it may be read with a view to one particular subject, tracing it through the book and finding all you can on that subject.

Again there is the devotional reading—or reading to lift up our affections and reverence to God. Just as in human relations you will sometimes take up the letter of an old friend and read it though you have read it a thousand times before, to bring him and you closer together and revive old feelings of friendship—except that in the bible reading you ought always to ask the guidance and influence of the Holy Spirit.

In taking up the bible to read it through, especially if it be the first reading or the second, my own experience has been that it is best to take it up and read it just as you would any other book—I mean continuously. Read all your spare time at it till it is completed, as you would a novel or a biography. If you are trying this plan for the first time you would be astonished to find how much more interesting it is. You had better not bother much with commentaries in this regular reading through the bible. While you are looking up some matter in the commentary you will forget the connection in your reading. I would advise then that you let commentaries alone at this point. They are well enough when you are studying a particular question or reading devotionally, but read right on, on, on, until you finish the bible. Don't let any other book come between you and that.

Building and Loan Associations.

Owing to the hard times some of the members of building and loan associations are suggesting the propriety of suspending the usual monthly or weekly payments until next summer to relieve them of the burden until they shall be better able to meet their indebtedness. A correspondent having stated that the man who has bought out, will be benefited by suspension the Building Association Journal says.

But how about those who have not bought out, and who may be equally as poor and poorer than those who have? People forget that these associations were organized for mutual benefit and not for the benefit of any one class. Of course, the purchaser of shares has his rights, but the non-purchaser has his also; and it so happens that the latter class are in a large majority in some associations. Would it be quite right for these associations to suspend in order to ease the few who have bought, while by so doing it will lock up every dollar that the majority have invested, and which they could not possibly realize upon?

At the inception of our building associations no one ever imagined the necessity of suspension; hence there has been no provision made in any charter we know of for such a contingency. Those charters say, that payments shall be made monthly, until each and every share shall be worth $200, and then the association shall cease to exist. If payments are not made monthly, then the delinquents are liable to fine, and at the end of six months to expulsion. And finally, wouldn't the right of suspension be a dangerous prerogative? If a fair majority, or even two-thirds of the members, could suspend the operations of an association for three months, why couldn't they repeat the operation indefinitely and thus break it up most effectually? We hold that every member of one of these organizations has separate, indefeasible and fundamental rights, which no majority, however large, can take away from him; and so long as that member is prepared to pay his monthly dues, so long under the charter of the association the officers thereof are bound to receive them. So much for suspension. As to liquidation we can see any number of reasons why that plan is a wilder one than suspension, and would be much more disastrous to the poor man, who, in short, would have to satisfy the mortgages held against him by the association for the sole purpose of paying off those parties who have not bought out—it would be in fact, the richer vs. the poorer.

The editor continues that if liquidation is reported to it should be, when times are prosperous.
