WATCHING THE TIDE.

Poised for a moment in conscious power, From a far-off world of blue;

"Don't be so impatient, wave," cries he; "Don't break till you reach the shore!"

We have watched the waves roll grandly in From a far-off world of blue;

When the darkening waters, beneath, above, Hung over our helpless head,

The tides must ebb and the tides must flow, All over life's restless sea;

They move at the beck of a hidden hand, That careth for you and me.

Select Story.

MARRIED FLIRTATIONS.

The last dying cadences of a delicious dreamy waltz, across whose weird notes the soul of Beethoven had poured out its magic sadness, were floating over the crowd that filled the ballroom of the fashionable Washington hotel;

There were few more beautiful faces than her own, even in that festive crowd, where half the bells of the Union had brought their diamonds and bright eyes to dazzle the grave politicians and lawmakers of the land.
