GENERAL P. H. SHERIDAN.

The dishonorable attempt of that faithful Administration organ, the New York Times, to sully the fair fame of the gallant hero of Winchester, by suppressing a very essential portion of one of his despatches from New Orleans and publishing the remainder in a garbled form, is fully exposed by the New York Tribune, as follows:

THE GARBLED DESPATCH.

The publication of the correspondence between Gen. Sheridan and the President enables us to justify our expressed suspicion that the despatches of Gen. Sheridan had been tampered with for base uses.

THE TRUE DESPATCH.

[From the Correspondence.] NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1. U. S. Grant, Washington, D. C.: You are doubtless aware of the serious riot which occurred in this city on the 30th.

my absence, suppressed the convention by the use of the police force, and in so doing attacked the members of the convention and a party of two hundred negroes and with fire-arms, clubs, and knives, in a manner so unnecessary and atrocious as to compel me to say that it was murder.

henceforth to acknowledge these Yankee hybrids as countrymen, and it would be gratifying to Southern gentlemen to know that some of them had just claims to decency and respect. But one by one the leaders of the Northern army show themselves to be only blackguards and brag-garts.

[Signed] JNO. JONES (Barflyer.)

JNO. SMITH (Peck-Pocket), WM. WHITE (Highwayman) Committee.

To the citizens of Philadelphia—Having met in solemn convention, on Tuesday, August 14th, at the above named place (which delicacy forbids the more special mention of,) we herewith present to your earnest consideration this declaration of the principles we seek to promote.

In the first place, gentlemen of Philadelphia, we beg leave to remind you of the extreme liability of human minds to differ. This difference very often extends to important subjects. In religion the tenets which to one may be entirely orthodox, to another may be blasphemous and heretical. But we need not multiply illustrations. Sufficient to admit that at various times in the past, there have arisen between us decided difference of opinion and practice.

We have steadily maintained that when pressed by necessity there was an inherent right in man to require property wherever and wherever he found it. We have, beloved fellow citizens, supported our peculiar views. We have been rather summary in our treatment of human life, and perhaps, adventurous in respect to human property.

You have differed with us. You have steadily maintained that such views as ours required restriction of the law.—You have conquered. Through the organized channels of "Quarter Sessions" and "Oyer and Terminer," your ideas have been triumphant.

We accept the victory. We admit our defeat. We own our transgressions, but we claim our liberty. We claim it on the principle of the universal equality of man—without which no society can long endure.

Again: Consider what we have suffered. While you were feasting, we were fasting. While you enjoyed commodious homes, we pined in dreary walls. In short, for months, yea for years, all happiness has been yours, all misery has been ours.

Let us, dear fellow-citizens! live again in peace and harmony. We are all members of the same community, we all have a common God: let us trust, to each other, our pocket books: let us unbar to each other our houses; let us bear to each other our bosoms. Then, indeed, will the past with its bitterness be assuaged, and the honor and freedom of Philadelphia be forever secured.

[Adopted with tremendous applause, and loud calls for the reader, who is serving out a life sentence.]—Philadelphia evening Bulletin.

DISTRESSING DEATH.

John W. Jordan, originally from Rock-bridge Co., Va., for a while connected with the Riviere House, Lewisburg, as bar-keeper and co-partner, but more recently a resident of Wilkes Barre, came to the Riviere House last Saturday, laboring under the influence of liquor.

Being quite sick, Messrs. Hess took care of him called a physician, and did all they could for his comfort, and for the restoration of his health. But all efforts proved in vain for rum had done its work too effectually.

Wednesday night, about 11 o'clock, he died, of delirium tremens, after suffering the most awful agonies. He was interred yesterday afternoon, in the Lewisburg Cemetery. His age was about 24 years.

While living in Lewisburg, his conduct was not such as to indicate so early and awful a death; but the demon works quietly and effectually; and the only sure way to avoid ruin, is to neither touch, taste nor handle the infernal beverage.—Young men—comrades of John W. Jordan—take warning by his terrible fate!

The Southern papers do not like the way in which the rebel delegates were treated in the Philadelphia Convention. The Richmond press is particularly severe, and pronounces the affair a humbug and a cheat.

Gibson, the celebrated pedestrian, is executed a wager at Quebec, to walk seventy miles a day for six days. The first day he completed the distance in nineteen hours and a half.

Prentice says of a rebel editor who "smelt a rat," that if he did and the rat smelt him, the poor rat had the worst of it.
