ADDRESS OF THE UNION REPUBLICAN STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

COMMITTEE ROOMS, HARRISBURG, August 27th, 1867.—To the People of Pennsylvania: Fellow Citizens:—In a recent address from this Committee your attention was invited to sundry issues and principles involved in the pending canvass; and also to the political opinions and judicial decisions of George Sharswood. A short review of the principal occurrences, since the last State Campaign, is now considered proper. The contest of 1866 was fought, in the main, upon the amendments proposed by Congress to the Constitution of the United States. These were national issues; and on the one side were arrayed the Union Republican party and the "Boys in Blue;" and on the other President Johnson, the Democratic party, and all the rebels and their sympathizers from one end of the Union to the other. On these momentous issues Pennsylvania rallied in her strength; and polled over one hundred and forty thousand more votes than at her preceding annual election. Among the results, were the triumphant election of Major General John W. Geary for Governor, and the endorsement of Congress, by the return of a delegation more unanimous for the right than ever known before in the history of the Commonwealth. Other loyal States united with us, and the insane and wicked "Policy" of President Johnson, and of his new friends and allies, was overwhelmed by the unprecedented and magnificent majority of four hundred thousand votes! Every State which had been faithful to the national government and the cause of the Union during the war, approved the proposed amendments. Every rebel State, except Tennessee, rejected them; and under the rebel provisional governments created by President Johnson, rebel power resumed its authority, and became dominant in their executive, legislative and judicial departments. Vagrant and labor laws virtually re-enslaved the freedmen. Loyal men were outlawed and trampled under foot; and the revived spirit of the rebellion was everywhere triumphant. Riots, murders, outrages and assassinations were the order of the day, and security for either the lives or the property of loyal men was nowhere found. Traitors had front seats, loyalty had been made odious, and treasonable conspirators against the life of the nation were vindictive and rampant.

Such was the condition of public affairs in the South when Congress convened in December, 1866. This nation had solemnly resolved, and voted, that the Union should be restored on the basis of loyalty and justice; and to this end was the Fortieth Congress elected. Hence were passed the Reconstruction laws, in execution of the recent popular verdict. The President vetoed them, refusing to accept or abide by the decision of the people, to whom he had so often and so vauntingly appealed. Congress re-enacted them over the vetoes, by more than the required two thirds; and they are now the laws of the land. Under them, including the amendments of last session, reconstruction is rapidly progressing; and would doubtless ere long be successfully accomplished, but for the persistent obstructions by the President, in defiance of Congress and popular will. Justice is being done; loyal men, white and black, have been protected from the malice of defeated rebels; treason, in a measure at least, has "been made odious" and traitors have been compelled to take back seats—as Andrew Johnson, in a lucid interval, declared they should. Upon the better portion of the rebels admit the justice of these reconstruction laws, and cheerfully acquiesce in their provisions. General James Longstreet, a distinguished rebel officer, in a recent published letter from New Orleans, expresses himself as follows:—

"I shall set out by assuming a proposition that I hold to be self-evident, viz: The highest of human laws is the law that is established by appeal to arms. The great principle that divides political parties prior to the late war were thoroughly discussed by our wisest statesmen. When argument was exhausted resort was had to compromise. When compromise was unavailing, discussion was renewed and expedients were sought, but none could be found to suit the emergency. Appeal was finally made to the sword, to determine which of the claims was the true construction of constitutional law. The sword has decided in favor of the North; and what they claimed as principles, cease to be principles, and are become laws. The views that we hold cease to be principles because they are opposed to law. It is, therefore, our duty to abandon ideas that are obsolete, and conform to the requirements of law. The military bill and amendments are peace offerings. We should accept them as such, and place ourselves upon them as the starting point from which to meet future political issues as they arise."

Jeff. Thompson, another rebel General in a late letter to Geo. D. Prentice, Esq., endorses the reconstruction laws of Congress, thus:—

"The Confederate government wiped out States rights the first year of its existence, a bloody war wiped out slavery, and wiped out the confederacy, so they are obsolete ideas; and the plain question now presented is 'Will you accept citizenship under our terms, as contained in this law?' And I emphatically answer, yes."

It is greatly to be regretted that terms which are so acceptable to the fighting rebels of the South, should be so distasteful, and cause so much clamor, from their non-combatant sympathizers in the North.

The enemies of the United States having been finally defeated in battle, united their efforts to elect sympathizers from the North and to procure the admission of enough rebels from the South, to enable them, through Congress, to attain what they had lost in the field. The programme was frustrated by the loyal people at the ballot box, in the election of the Fortieth Congress. Defeated in open war, and again in Congress, these baffled conspirators, as a last resort, are endeavoring to save "the lost cause" through the courts. They deny that anything has been settled by the war; and boldly proclaim that "all these grave pending questions" must be decided, "just in fact as they would have been decided had they arisen eight years ago, or had no war taken place." (Philadelphia Age, July 8th.) They not only deny the constitutional power of Congress to impose terms upon the rebel States or people, but deny that Congress itself is a loyal body, because the rebel States are unrepresented. Hence, the recent application to the Supreme Court of the United States for injunctions, to nullify the Reconstruction laws of Congress in Mississippi, Georgia and other Rebel States. In the same interest, and of the same character, is the nomination of George Sharswood, a well known and life long State rights man, for the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. He judicially denies the power of Congress to issue paper money, to give it value by linking it a legal tender Borrie vs. Trent, Legal Intelligencer, of March 18th, 1864, page 92. Judges Thompson and Woodward, of the same court, not only announce these same doctrines in the case of Merritt vs. Sailer, et al. (Legal Intelligencer of June 16 and 20, 1865, pages 188 and 205.) but in the cases of Kneeller et al. vs. Lang et al. (3 Wright's reports, page 238.) denied the power of Congress, in time of war to draft men into the military service. The principles declared in these decisions were as hostile to the national existence and perpetuity as any assault ever made by General Lee and his armed legions at Gettysburg, or elsewhere. It requires no argument to demonstrate that if these decisions on currency and the draft had prevailed, and become the established law of the land, success in the war would have been more impossible than if the rebel army at Richmond had been reinforced with half a million of men! Is it safe, therefore, to place another man, entertaining these opinions, on the Supreme Bench of the State?

Forewarned I should be forearmed. These Superior Courts are now the "last ditch" of the rebellion; and the country calls upon the "Boys in Blue," and every loyal voter, to rally one more to the rescue! Complete your county and township organizations without delay. With this thoroughly done, victory is sure; without it, there is danger. Review at once everywhere the Loyal Leagues and associations which proved so vast service during the war. Let every patriotic man feel that he has something to do in the good work, and proceed forthwith to do it with all his might. Exclude all side issues, local quarrels, and personal aspirations, and labor only for the public good. Do not be deceived by the stale clamor about negro equality, and negro suffrage. These worn-out hobbies were supposed to have been ridden to death at our last two annual elections, when, as now, they were declared by our enemies to be the great issues of the contest. They are now raised up and brought upon the track again, mounted by the same riders, and destined to the same ignoble end. Be not discouraged by the vain boasting of our adversaries. They have been gloriously defeated in every contest for years, and cannot now prevail against us. The loyal and patriotic people of the State have heretofore nobly sustained us, and the cause of the country, under the heavy pressure and discouragement of drafts, taxation, bereavement and emigration; and when nothing but an abiding faith in an overruling Providence, and in the justice of our cause, enable us to the end. Surely there can be no faltering now, when the goal is almost reached! and when one more united rally for our principles and our flag will enable us to secure the ripe fruits of the late dreadful civil war, and to garner them safely for ourselves and our children.

We stand over the ruins of a gigantic rebellion, the most formidable enemy ever encountered by republican institutions.—We stand by the graves of three hundred thousand of our noblest men, who counted their lives well spent when offered freely for Liberty and Union. In the presence of their speechless but eloquent dust! in the presence of the doubting and sneering enemies of free Government, at home and abroad; in view of the oppressed millions, who from beneath crushing despotisms watched our flag with tears and hopes, and prayers, throughout the four long years of bloody conflict; before the rapidly coming millions of the future; before a God of justice, and in the name of all that makes faithfulness to Him, and honor among men, we stand pledged to secure and maintain forever the principles for which our brothers died.
