Meeting of Dr. William Elder, of Philadelphia, and such Southern leaders as Breckenridge and Sibley, during the administration of General Pierce.

Col J. W. Forney in one of his articles on the "Anecdotes of Public Men," writes of the meeting of Dr. William Elder. Who if we have been correctly informed, once, practiced medicine at Oakland, this county, with such Southern leaders as Breckenridge, Sibley and others of the same class, at a dinner party given by the Col. during General Pierce's administration.

After the lapse of a time, during which the Dr. and the southern leaders became acquainted, one of them says Mr. Forney asked: "Pray, Doctor Elder, how is it that one of your tastes and learning should be so opposed to Southern rights and institutions?"

It was a common remark, especially with my political opponents, that "it is all up with Sumner; he has kicked the President's pet project down stairs." We had been good friends, and it was a cause for rejoicing to these men if I had, by my course in the Senate, ruptured the intimacy, and I did not know myself but that such might be the result.

At the proper time the carriage came to my door. I found Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln, and Mr. Coffey within, and I took the fourth and remaining seat. I took Mrs. Lincoln on my arm to the door, and then told Mr. Lincoln I would leave them and mingle with the throng, as the crowd wanted to look at him (Mr. Lincoln); but he insisted that I should sit with him, and seemed to take this very conspicuous way of assuring the Senators, Representatives, and people present that he still claimed me as a friend, and that a conscientious discharge of what I thought my duty, although directly opposed to what might be his favorite projects, would not sever or weaken our intercourse.

The War in France. A week ago intelligence from the "Old" informed the New World that the French armies had again been defeated, excepting the one under Bourbaki, who, it was said, had gained some advantage over the opposing German Commander, General Von Werder.

Protection. If Junata county were the possessor of manufacturing establishments of the magnitude of those located about Harrisburg, Johnstown, or Danville, not a pound of the produce raised in the county would be taken outside of the county, all would be consumed at home, and would command better prices than it does by sending it to outside markets.

Hon Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts, last week was re-elected to the United States Senate.

San Domingo, Grant and Sumner.

The attitude of the Republican party on the acquisition of San Domingo has been the source of infinite delight to the leaders of the Democracy. In the position taken by Mr. Sumner against President Grant's recommendation of the annexation of that island, they exultantly express the belief that a division has been created in the Republican party that cannot be healed.

We append an account from Mr. Sumner's pen of the courtesy and friendship that existed between the Senator and President Lincoln, during the time that Mr. Sumner opposed some of President Lincoln's wise schemes. Mr. Sumner says: "That which the country knows the least about, my constant intimacy with Mr. Lincoln, and constant pressing upon him of emancipation as the means to be used in crushing the rebellion, I did not take it then as a moral question, for whatever may be said of me I have always aimed to be eminently practical, and to weigh carefully all that I say."

There was a beautiful illustration of this, in February, I think, the last week of the last session, when I defeated Mr. Lincoln's pet project of admitting Louisiana, and my friends all told me I had made a great mistake, as the President had set his heart on this scheme.

It was a common remark, especially with my political opponents, that "it is all up with Sumner; he has kicked the President's pet project down stairs." We had been good friends, and it was a cause for rejoicing to these men if I had, by my course in the Senate, ruptured the intimacy, and I did not know myself but that such might be the result.

THE CONDEMNED.

A Horrible Murder Recited—The Condemned in his Cell—A Walling Death Tomorrow—His Appearance and Conduct—The Engine of Death.

[Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette.] LIMA, O., Jan. 18, 1871.

Through the courtesy of Sheriff Colbath, of Lima, Allen county, Ohio, I was permitted to visit Andrew Brentlinger, who is under sentence of death for the murder of his wife in Shawnee township, about nine miles from this place. The murder was committed on the 19th of October last, [at his residence outside of the log cabin, and is almost isolated, surrounded by woods, on other residence nearer than a mile], and for fiendish atrocity and cold blooded butchery, it has not its parallel in the annals of crime.

A HORRIBLE DEED. It appears that he and his wife had not been living very peaceably together, and parted at one time, but got together again some time since, but lived no better than before.

It appears that he and his wife had not been living very peaceably together, and parted at one time, but got together again some time since, but lived no better than before. Brentlinger was jealous of some of his neighbors who visited his house, and he thought they were criminally intimate with his wife. On Monday afternoon about two o'clock, on the 29th of October, he got into a quarrel with his wife in front of his house, when he tripped her and struck her on the head, knocking her down. He then turned her over and stabbed her several times with a small knife, from the effects of which she fainted, he supposing she was dead. He then went to the stable and saddled his horse and was ready to escape, when he saw her rise on her knees with hands clasped in the attitude of prayer, calling for his little girl for water. He prohibited the child from getting water and then told her to go in the house and bring to him his dirk knife.

He refused to do this at first, but she threatened to kill her also and she finally got it for him, and with this he commenced his hellish work. Approaching his wife he said, "G—D—n you, have you not got enough yet," and plunged the dirk in her breast and abdomen six or seven times in succession, on the blood spurting in his face; and strange to relate, she lived half an hour afterwards, feebly uttering her prayers till death released her from her sufferings.

THE CONCEALMENT. He then got on his horse and rode two miles to where his son-in-law lived, and to his two sons, nine and fifteen miles distance, where they were working, and informed them what he had done, and directed them to go home and told them how and where to bury the body, saying that if they refused or told of the murder he would kill them. The son-in-law, in the meantime, sent to the house and discovered the body weltering in blood and placed a wagon bed over it till the arrival of his sons. About two o'clock in the morning they commenced to dig a grave for her about thirty steps from the house, some two feet deep. They placed the body on a door and carried it to the grave and tumbled it, face downwards, and in the same clothes in which she was murdered, and all covered and stuck together with clotted blood. They then covered her up and ploughed, harrowed and sowed grain over the ground to conceal the place.

MURDER WILL OUT. It is said that "murder will out," and it is my impression that if it had not been for the following accident it would still have remained a mystery as to the disposal of the wife. The night following the interment of the body the family were aroused from their slumbers by the howling of a dog over the corpse, which was drawn there by the shallowness of the grave, and which so horrified the persons in the house that they remained in intense agony during the entire night. As soon as day made its appearance they at once proceeded to give the information which caused the arrest and conviction of Brentlinger. The case was immediately laid before the Grand Jury and a bill was brought against him of murder in the first degree. He was ably defended by two of the best lawyers in the State, who raised the plea of insanity, but the case was so palpable and the verdict of the jury was "murder in the first degree," and the Judge sentenced him to be hung on Friday, January 25th, between the hours of nine and one.

THE CONDEMNED. Brentlinger is a man of forbidding appearance, and has not borne a very good character heretofore, though, to my surprise, I was informed that he was a member of the M. E. Church, and held family worship on the morning of the murder. The clergymen of the several churches have, for some unexplained reason, never visited him, either before or after the trial, excepting the Minister of the English Lutheran Church, who has been in almost constant attendance upon him. It is surmised that prisoner caused the death of his wife by gross cruelty, and probably by violence, but as to the correctness of that story I am unable to say. It is the determined opinion, however, that such is the case.

PENITENCE. He stands about five feet six inches high, is fifty two years of age, was born in Licking county, Ohio, is of dark complexion and greyish eyes, deep set, low forehead, but broad at the base, is ignorant and superstitious, and cannot read or write. Phenologically speaking, the animal largely predominates over the reflective and thinking faculties. His demeanor in jail has sometimes amounted to levity. He does not appear to realize the awful position in which he stands. He often imagines and says that it is very hard that his wife should appear to him in his cell at night and plead with him that he should see their children properly cared for. He has eight children, five of them by his first wife. Three of them are quite young, and three his spiritual adviser has kindly taken charge of and placed them already in one of our charitable institutions, where they will secure a Christian education, and be well cared for. A great deal might be said as to his imprisonment, but as he is so ignorant, I do not think it would be of any interest to your readers to relate his every day life.

THE SCAFFOLD. The execution will take place in the yard of the jail on Friday in persurance to sentence. Workmen are already engaged in erecting the scaffold. The execution will be strictly private, none excepting the officials and his spiritual adviser, in accordance with the laws of the State will be admitted to the yard. I have been informed that the sheriff had ordered a number of muskets from Columbus, he being apprehensive of some difficulty arising from parties endeavoring to force themselves in the jail yard to witness the execution, but after consultation with the Adjutant of the State, he has determined to rely on the citizens of the town for support.

COLUMBUS, O., January 18.—Andrew Brentlinger, who is sentenced to be hung in Allen county next Friday, and whose sentence the Governor has commuted for eleven weeks, telegraphed to-day to Governor Hayes, through the sheriff, that he desired to be hanged on next Friday, according to the original sentence.

MR. ROBERT BONNER, of New York appears to be determined to keep ahead in the fast horse line. It is well known that he never races; his pride is to possess the fastest horses in the world, and at present he enjoys this celebrity. So far "Dexter" stands first; but he has other horses coming on which it is believed will equal him in speed if not surpass him. Pocohontas will hardly do this, though an animal of great speed and of surpassing beauty. But there is "Joe Elliott," who is regarded as one of the greatest trotters for his years that has ever appeared. But Mr. Bonner has another, and one in which he has still greater confidence; it is "Starkie," a three year old, and it is said by the best judges to be the most promising animal of his age ever "trotted out." He is a brother to Dexter, and can now make his mile in 2:25. His trainer says of him: "He is the world's wonder and no mistake." But right on the heels of this we have a Kentucky three-year old, who is claimed to be an equal world's wonder. He is a son of the great Leamington, and his name is "Longfellow." One who is familiar with all his good qualities and gives a long description of them says: "It is my opinion that Longfellow is the best race-horse in America, if not in the world, and is the best foal in this country." So it is seen that horse flesh has by no means degenerated in the United States, whatever it may be just now in Paris.—Germanian Telegraph.

On Friday, the 13th inst., the trial of Martin Harder, for the murder of Wm. Dall, was concluded at the court house in Clearfield. The jury found him guilty of murder in the second degree, and he was sentenced to spend eleven years and nine months in the Western Penitentiary, where he now is.

Two California officers taking a pair of Mexicans, accused of robbery of Sullivan, to jail, were stopped by a gang of twenty men, who took away the prisoners and hung them a little at a time, to make them confess where the bullion was buried. Failing in this they returned them to the officers, who safely committed them to jail.

A horse belonging to Mr. Isaac Henry, of York county, died of hydrophobia a short time ago. He had been bitten about eighteen months since by a dog supposed to have been mad. When the symptoms had fully developed themselves, the unfortunate animal commenced biting and tearing himself in a pitiable manner, until he died.

WITHIN PARIS.

A Dreadful Condition of Affairs.

The "Besieged Resident" of the London Daily News in Paris, in order to form an opinion as to the condition of the poorer classes, went into some of the slums in the neighborhood of the Boulevard de Clichy. His report is as follows:

The distress is terrible. Women and children, half starved; were seated at their door-steps, with hardly clothes to cover them decently. They said that, as they had neither firewood nor coals, they were warmer out of doors than indoors.

Many of the National Guards, instead of bringing their money home to their families, spend it in drink; and there are many families, composed entirely of women and children, who, in this land of bureaucracy, and apparently left to starve while it is decided to what category they belong. The Citizen Moltu, the ultra-Democratic Mayor, announced that in his arrondissement all left-handed marriages are to be regarded as valid, and the left-handed spouses the National Guards are granted to receive the allowance which is granted to the legitimate wives of these warriors. But a new difficulty has arisen. Left-handed polygamy prevails to such an extent among Citizen Moltu's admirers as a lady who has five husbands entitled to five rations, and is a lady who only owns the one-fifth of a National Guard to have only one-fifth of a ration? These are questions which the Citizen Moltu is now attempting to solve. A few days ago M. J. Hanelin was discovered dead in bed, in a garret of Belleville, of cold and starvation. Her husband had been under Louis Philippe, Ambassador at Constantinople. I went to see yesterday what was going on in the house of a friend of mine in the Avenue de l'Imperatrice who has left Paris. The servant who was in charge told me that up there they had been unable to obtain bread for three days, and that the last time he had presented his ration check he had been given about half an inch of cheese.

"How do you live, then?" I asked. "After looking mysteriously round to see that no one was watching us, he took me down into the cellar, and pointed to some meat in a barrel. "It is half a horse," he said in the tone of a man who is showing some one the corpse of his murdered victim. "A neighboring coachman killed his, and we saved him down and divided it." Then he opened a closet, in which sat a huge cat. "I am fattening her up for Christmas Day," he observed.
