ABOVE THE GOLDEN STAIRS.

Put away the little dresses That our darling used to wear, She will need them on earth never, She is with the happy angels, And I long for her sweet kiss, Where her little feet are waiting,

In that land of perfect bliss. Lay ande ber little playthings, Wet with mother's pearly tears, How we shall miss our little pet, All the coming, weary years, Fold the dainty little dresses, That she never more will wear,

For her little feet are waiting

Kiss the little silken tresses, Cut from her bright golden hair. Do the angels kiss our darling In that realm so bright and fair ! O, we pray to meet our dear one For a long, long, sweet embrace,

Where her little feet are waiting. Where we'll meet her face to face Angels whisper that our darling Is in lands and climes so fair, That her little feet are waiting.

Miscellaneous Reading.

THE GENTLE SAVAGE. Who Ought Not to be Exterminated, Undertakes to Exterminate the Whites. [From the San Antonio (Texas) Express, January 18.]

From a letter received by a gentleman in this city, from Lieutenant A. A. in the upper country.

In Montague county, near Denton Creek, while the man of the house was from home, a party of nine Indians broke down the windows and doors of the house at about ten o'clock at night. where two women and eight children l'aschal, aged about thirty-five years -Johnny, was dragged into the yard, scalped, shot, and his bowels cut out, while his her. sister Mary, only four years old, was
