Cincinnati, Louisville, and all the great cities of the West. By him I had a son, who is at present living in New York.—After a short and happy married career, my husband died, leaving me some property.

"When she went out to dinner, something possessed me to go up stairs to her room, No. 75. It was locked. A white man servant was descending the stairs at the time. I called him and asked him to open the door. He did so at once, and I entered, closing the door behind me.—I went to the trunks, and found the keys in them. Opening them, I discovered $10,000 worth of jewelry inside.

In the Tombs in New York city, at the present time, there is a woman held for a trial on a charge of stealing jewelry valued at $2,000, from Mrs. Bishop of Providence. The accused was "interviewed" last Saturday by one of the New York Star reporters, who, after detailing the preliminary introduction to the female in question, describes her personal appearance, and gives her singular narration as follows:

Very Late.—The Pittsburg Gazette is responsible for the following: "Over in Chester county, lately a clock peddler was tramping along, hot, dusty and tired, when he came to a meeting-house, wherein the Society of friends were engaged in silent devotion.

Rev. Hugh Mathews a Mormon preacher in Pleasantville, Chester county, has been converted to the faith of the United Brethren, and has entered into full fellowship with them.

These instruments have been before the public nearly thirty years, and upon their excellence alone attained an unqualified prominence, which pronounces them unequalled.

At this stage our reporter asked for the name of this exquisite criminal. Mrs. Miller declined to give it, saying, "I should be ruined if I told. All my chances would be lost and nobody would believe me if profited by her instructions, and in three months we stole and disposed of about $12,000 worth of jewelry, taken in hotels and other places. I used generally to negotiate the sale of the plunder, and the Unknown nearly always made the raid among her fashionable acquaintances.

At this moment a knock was heard at the door, and Pleasanton yelled louder than ever he gave command to a battalion, "Come in." The door opened, and the substantial figure and handsome face of our Commodore Alden appeared upon the entrance. So soon as he did this, the Commissioner chattered from the rear of his arm chair to the back of a sofa, and Alden, thinking that he was intruding upon some tender scene between the General and the female, beat a hasty retreat.

A fellow convicted in the Clarion county court last week of two charges of violating the law in regard to the sale of liquor, blandly requested the judge to suspend sentence for a few days till he could get married as he feared his "girl" wouldn't have him after he had been in jail. His request was granted.

Before giving way to Mrs. Miller's story, strange as it is, we must be allowed to preface it with a word about (1) her extraordinary fluency and purity of language—Anna Dickinson is far behind her; and (2) the singularity evidence, genuineness and sincerity of her tale. One, however prejudiced, feels involuntarily that this trembling, blue-eyed woman, in her neat dress, with her once comely face, her distressed aspect, and her nervous deportment, is telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

"I went to the Westminister Hotel to call on a friend, who was absent, but was expected to return shortly. While I waited in the parlor, a lady introduced herself to me and began a conversation, which we kept up. She told me that her name was Bishop, and that she was a sister-in-law of Gen. Burnside.

At this moment a knock was heard at the door, and Pleasanton yelled louder than ever he gave command to a battalion, "Come in." The door opened, and the substantial figure and handsome face of our Commodore Alden appeared upon the entrance. So soon as he did this, the Commissioner chattered from the rear of his arm chair to the back of a sofa, and Alden, thinking that he was intruding upon some tender scene between the General and the female, beat a hasty retreat.

There is a French girl of great beauty, living about forty-five miles up the Sioux river, from Sioux City, who possesses the agility of the most lively animal one can imagine. She is said to be able to put her hand upon the back of a horse and jump over him without touching a hair on his back save her hand. She has frequently scaled a rail placed at the height of six feet from the ground. She is also great on riding wild colts, bareback, and was never known to be unhorsed.
