

FARMER'S COLUMN.

LAMPASS IN HORSES.

When a horse, especially a young one, from two to five years old, does not eat well enough, the groom, quite naturally, looks into his mouth. The first thing he finds is the ridges or bars in the roof of his mouth on a level with the edge of the teeth, or in some cases even slightly projecting over the same. Forgetting that in every young horse these bars are on a level with the edge of the teeth, or what is more probable, never having examined the mouth of the colt before, the groom doubts not but that he has found out why he does not clean the manger—he is convinced that the swelling of these bars—the so-called "lampass" or "lampers"—very earnestly treated in almost every book in the English language on "the horse or his diseases"—causes the loss of the appetite.

The groom knows that lampass has been considered, from time immemorial, an obstacle to eating; therefore must be cured immediately, and so he either takes his pocket knife and cuts those ridges just behind the incisors, which he thinks are swollen, or he goes with the young horse to a smart horse doctor, farrier, or blacksmith, who burns down the same with a hot iron.

After the terrible lampass has been thus treated, the groom is satisfied of having done his duty, and generally has patience enough to wait till the appetite returns. If, however, that should take him too long, he examines the mouth of the colt again, and, finding that the sores have been healed, and the bars still being on a level with the teeth, he performs the same operation once more.

All the cutting and burning down of the lampass is not only entirely unnecessary, but also excessively cruel. It is true that in a young horse or in a colt especially between the second and fifth year, the gum and the bars in the roof of the mouth are sometimes a little swollen, but then this swelling has a good reason. It is generally produced either by indigestion, or, what is more frequent, by the shedding of the teeth, especially the molars, and the cutting of the canine teeth and tusks. This process always produces some swelling and irritability in the gum, not only of horses but of all other animals; in dogs, for instance, a great deal more so. It is quite a natural event, and can neither be accelerated nor retarded by such cruel operations. It seems to me to be very singular that the English veterinary authors had not the courage to condemn this malpractice in the strongest terms, and to fight a superstition because it is so common among horse men.

If a young horse does not eat well, and appears healthy in any other respect (in a sick horse or colt the disease, I think, accounts sufficiently for the loss of the appetite), our duty is to examine the mouth thoroughly, to look as well at the molars or grinders, as at the gum and the incisors, and to see whether one or more of the teeth are being shed, or whether a sufficient number of molars are in a proper condition to masticate the food. At a certain period, when the colt is in his third year, it sometimes happens that, though having thirty-two teeth, it can use but sixteen of them. The reason is this: The nippers are shedding and cannot be used; the middle and corner incisors are in full use; the tusks have not yet appeared; the first pair of molars have been shed, but the new ones are yet too short to be used; the second pair of molars are shedding; the old ones are still there, but are loose, and cannot be used on that account, or at least produce pain; the third pair are not shedding, and are in full use; the fourth are fully developed and fit for service; the fifth pair have cut through, and are yet too short, and the sixth pair are still wanting. In such a condition, I think the poor horse has ample excuse for not eating well, and we should, from no cause, give him more pain. All we have to do is to feed him such provender as does not need to be much masticated, and at the same time is nourishing. It will take but a short time till the second pair of molars falls out, and the fourth and fifth pairs soon will grow sufficiently to be able to perform their duties.

I think it is natural enough that the cutting of the permanent grinders, which have so very long roots, and are rather substantial, should cause pain and loss of appetite (the sixth pair of grinders are generally cut through when the horse is four years old), or that the cutting of a tusk, especially in the upper jaw, causes some swelling of the bars. Frequently also, a colt, or milk grinder, just before being shed, is loose, sits on top of the permanent one, and pricks and irritates with its partly absorbed and sharp and pointed roots the gums, thus causing great pain to the poor animal. In such a case, however, it is frequently very easy to hook the loose colt-grinder with a bit of a common door-key, and pull it out that way.

In older horses—very old horses are (on account of the length of their incisors, &c., if the latter, not unusually worn off) scarcely ever accused of having lampass—a diseased or irregularly worn molar is frequently the cause of refusing the food, or a part of it, or in some cases a foreign body has been found squeezed in between the grinders.

Sometimes a swelling of the gums and the bars in the roof of the mouth, and at the same time loss of appetite, is caused by indigestion. In such a case, proper diet, perhaps physic, and may be a little exercise according to circumstances, are all that are required.—American Stock Journal.

GROVER & BAKER'S SEWING MACHINE.

The following are selected from thousands of testimonials of similar character, as expressing the reasons for the preference for the GROVER & BAKER Machines over all others.

"I like the Grover & Baker Machine, in the first place, because if I had any other, I should still want a Grover & Baker, and, having a Grover & Baker, it answers the purpose of all the rest. It does a greater variety of work and it is easier to learn than any other."

"I have had several years' experience with a Grover & Baker Machine, which has given me great satisfaction. I think the Grover & Baker Machine is more easily managed, and less liable to get out of order. I prefer the Grover & Baker, decidedly."—Mrs. Dr. Wells, New York.

"I have had one in my family for some two years, and from what I know of its workings, and from the testimony of many of my friends who use the same, I can hardly see how anything could be more complete or give better satisfaction."—Mrs. General Grant.

"I believe it to be the best, all things considered, of any that I have known. It is very simple and easily learned; the sewing from the ordinary spoils is a great advantage; the stitch is entirely reliable; it does ornamental work beautifully; it is not liable to get out of order."—Mrs. A. M. Spooner, 30 Bond Street, Brooklyn.

"I am acquainted with the work of the principal machines; and I prefer the Grover & Baker to them all, because I consider the stitch more elastic. I have worked now in the house which was done nine years ago, which is still good."—Mrs. Dr. McCready, No. 43 East Twenty-third Street, New York.

"More than two-thirds of all the sewing done in my family for the last two years has been done by Grover & Baker's Machine, and I have no objection to its use, except those rents which frolicsome boys will make in whole cloth. It is in my opinion by far the most valuable of any I have tried."—Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher.

The Grover & Baker Sewing Machine Company manufacture both the Elastic Stitch and Lock Stitch Machines, and offer the public a choice of the best machines of both kinds, at their establishments in all the large cities, and through agencies in nearly all towns throughout the country. Price Lists and samples of sewing in both stitches furnished on application to Grover & Baker S. M. Co., 115 Market Street, Harrisburg. April 27, 1870.
