READING MATTER ON EVERY PAGE.

By the explosion of a colliery, in England, on the 24th inst., 8 men lost their lives.

ONE hundred government cattle were run off, by the Apache Indians, from the valley of Decleto, in Arizona.

A LARGE machine shop was destroyed by fire at Columbia, on the night of the 21st. Loss $35,000; insurance $15,000.

THE return judges of the 19th Senatorial district, composed of the counties of Cambland and Franklin, have signed the proper certificate of Mr. Weekley's election.

A BOSTON colored preacher has brought suit against a Steamship Company, for not being served at the dining table of a steamer of their line, on which he was a passenger.

JENNY LIND's husband is about to sue a number of American newspapers for calling him a "spendthrift," and charging him with having squandered his wife's fortune.

JANUARY 11th 1872 is the day appointed by the National Republican Executive Committee for a meeting at Washington, to decide on the place for the next nominating convention.

A REPORT is in circulation that a man died near Scranton recently, of small pox, and in his dying moments declared that he and five others fired the Avondale coal breaker, by which more than a hundred lives were lost.

A STEAMER called the "City of New London," with a valuable cargo, was burned on the evening of the 21st, when three miles from New York, which city she had just left. A number of persons are missing, and it is supposed that they were drowned.

ON Monday a week, the Republicans of Bedford county held a large and enthusiastic meeting in the borough of Bedford. Among the resolutions was one enthusiastically recommending Hon. Francis Jordan—at present Secretary of State—for Governor.

THE Executive Committee of the "Woman Suffrage Association," that held sessions in Philadelphia last week, was instructed by the association to provide competent speakers to argue woman's suffrage before the State Legislature winter.

ABOUT five o'clock, last Thursday evening, a fire originated from an overheated stove in a hardware store on Commerce street, Philadelphia, and destroyed between one and two hundred thousand dollars worth of property before it was extinguished.

THE Press says that Hon. George W. Woodward, formerly of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court and now representative in Congress from the Twelfth district of this State, was married to Mrs. E. H. McAllister, of Lexington, Ky., in that city on the 23d inst.

THE medical corpse of the household of the Queen of England number thirty-two doctors. In the kitchen department of the same household, the five chief cooks receive salaries ranging from ten to fifteen thousand dollars. A lower grade of cooks receive twenty-five hundred to three thousand dollars each.

THE Philadelphia Inquirer of last Monday says "Mr. Montgomery Blair is out in favor of getting the Independent Republicans to make a nomination for the Presidency, and having the Democrats make none, but throw their whole strength to the support of any ticket to defeat General Grant." Mr. Blair says all the leading Democrats whom he has yet consulted are in favor of this policy, and mentions, as already pledged to it, Senators Stockton and Caserly.

THIS is a confirmation of the statement that our Greenwood correspondent makes on the National political situation. His Imperial Highness, the Grand Duke Alexis, visited Washington last week, to pay his respects to President Grant, as the head of the nation.

A committee of Philadelphians visited the Duke, at the Clarendon Hotel, N. Y., to tender him the hospitalities of Philadelphia whenever it would please his highness to enjoy them. Monday the 4th of December is the day appointed for the visit. A Boston committee was in waiting, bearing a similar invitation from the "Hub." The committee had an audience immediately after the Philadelphia delegation withdrew. The Duke will visit Boston on Thursday the 7th of December.

THERE are yet a few Johnsonite office-holders about the departments at Washington, but they usually keep quiet—Sometimes they are thrown off their guard, and of course then make mistakes. The latest case of this kind is referred to by Monday's Press, as follows:

A clerk, who happening into a restaurant, met a colored man partaking of some refreshments. The negro was well-dressed, sober, and well behaved, which is more than can be said of the clerk in question. He sat down at one of the tables, and gave his order, which was soon filled. Hereupon the Government clerk, who had watched the proceeding with rising indignation, remarked to a companion, in a tone loud enough to be heard all over the room, "If I had money enough to buy up the court, I'd take a chair and break that nigger's head!" The negro paid no attention to the remark, but finished his meal in silence.—He made some inquiries before leaving the restaurant concerning the belligerent young man, and ascertained that he was a clerk in one of the departments. The colored man, who was none other than R. B. Elliott, member of Congress from South Carolina, at once laid the matter before the head of the department in which the impetuous young man was a clerk. He was of course dismissed.

A DESPATCH, dated at San Francisco, last Saturday, relates some of the particulars of the murder of the Wichenburg stage passengers, by the Apache Indians recently. It says the stage was ambushed, completely surrounded, and fired on. The three outside passengers and the driver were killed at the first volley. The Indians then rushed for the stage. Loring and Hamill lost their presence of mind and jumped from the stage on the side next the Indians. Shepherd and Kruger were both wounded, but jumped from the other side of the stage and escaped. In an instant Loring was surrounded by savages, and, after being wounded, tried to escape, when an Indian fired two shots which passed through his breast. He fell and was dispatched by a lance. Parties knowing him here say there is no doubt of his identity.—The people of Prescott raised volunteers with the determination of killing every Apache on the reservation, but finally concluded to leave the matter with General Crook.

A DISTINGUISHED physician of West Chester informs the editor of the American Republican, on the authority of Dr. Hilburn Darlington, that the cow-pox prevails among the cattle in the neighborhood of Concordville, Delaware county. Dr. D. is using some virus in his practice taken from a heifer, and has also sent some of it to the physician in this borough from whom we received the information. Cow-pox is a peculiar disease among cattle, and it was through a remark made by an ignorant girl that she had "had the disease that the cows have," that led Jenner to introduce the system of vaccination. Cow-pox in this country is very rare. The history of the reception of Jenner's discovery is like the history of the discovery of the circulation of the blood, and many other steps in the progress of science, very curious.

WITHIN the past week the weather has been very cold in Montana, as a despatch from Helena, dated on the 25th attests. It says to-day, that two companies of the Seventh Infantry, Major Freeman commander, returning from Fort Browning were caught in yesterday's fearful storm, are now camped twelve miles from here with a number of men badly frozen.

LATER—Ten of the frozen men have been brought to the hospital. The worst cases still out are being brought in as fast as possible. They are frozen generally about the feet. The thermometer this morning was at 30 degrees below freezing point.

HELENA, S. P. M.—The thermometer is 15 degrees below freezing point. No stages have arrived from any direction for thirty-six hours.

THE arrival of Prince Alexis at New York was deplored to Russia, where it created an outbreak of joy. Fears for his safety had been entertained there.—A despatch from St. Petersburg, under date of the 19th inst., says "In all the principal cities of the Empire, especially here and at Moscow, cannons were fired, colors displayed, bells rung and services celebrated at the churches in honor of the safe arrival of the Grand Duke. At Odessa, Cronstadt, Riga and other ports on the Baltic and Black Seas the foreign and Russian shipping displayed their colors this afternoon. At Cronstadt the men-of-war fired salutes."

A KANSAS despatch, dated on the 26th says, the recent storm was one of unprecedented severity on the plains in Western Kansas. Large numbers of Texas cattle were frozen to death, and five bodies, supposed to be buffalo hunters, were brought into Hays City, last night, frozen stiff. Great anxiety is felt for other parties who were hunting buffalo, and who have not been heard from since the storm.

Wm. Plummer, of Tyrone, accidentally shot himself while out gunning. It seems that he was standing on a plank near Ocoola, with the muzzle of the gun under his arm, when the butt slipped off, and the hammer striking the plank, the contents of the gun were discharged into his ribs and emerged from his breast. A piece of his ear was also taken off. The recovery of Mr. Plummer was considered extremely doubtful at last accounts.

Not less than 15,000 barrels of lard have been manufactured in Fond du Lac county, Wisconsin, the present fall.

Letter from an Old Jacksonian Democrat of Greenwood Township.

NEAR SEVEN STAR TAVEN, November 25, 1871.

My Dear Mr. Editor:—I guess you didn't miss my letter last week. I didn't write because I had to attend to some things that I had on hand, and I'll just here say, so that we'll understand one another that I don't want you to consider me as bound to write you a letter every Saturday. I've got some other irons in the fire, and I won't burn them, you must take my letters just as they come, that's the way the Democrats had to take Andy Jackson. Though I am sliding over on to the shady side of life, on this clear beautiful Saturday night, I feel in my body as stout, and strong, and as full of life as I did thirty years ago, but then, what if a fellow has a mighty stout body and his head isn't contented, or if his head is contented, and his body sick, and isn't worth nothing, which, if you can, tell me is the worst, my body feels first-rate to-night, but my head or heart isn't feeling so good. I have a kind of a sorry feeling for our good old party, I can't just tell where I feel sorry, whether it's in the head or in the heart, I wish you'd write an article in the SENTINEL, telling exactly where a fellow feels. Well, I feel, I believe all over for our party, I feel glad, because the ring got licked; I feel sad, because we had to lick them, but we did it in a christian like way, we did it out of love for our party, I feel sorry because you fellows got into power, and I feel glad because you Republicans kicked the ring as hard as you could. I feel most confounded sorry that we haven't Andy Jackson now to lead us up to victory. I don't want you to stick it in that I feel sad, because, we haven't a grab at the leaves and fishes, for that isn't so. I know that you fellows said that Andy said, that all that a fellow grabbed belonged to the fellow that grabbed it. Mrs. Speak just now says, that is not the way to tell it, that I ought to say to the "victors belong the spoils," and there it is, if that makes it better. But I don't believe that Andy Jackson said that, if he did, and you fellows would follow up that doctrine in the South what would become of them. I don't believe them notions anyhow, let who may.

I never wanted any of the leaves and fishes. I never wanted any thing but an office once or twice, an I'll be hanged if the ring didn't gouge me out. It'll all be right though when the clearing is burnt, as we used to say, long ago. In my body I feel first-rate to-night. I feel strong enough to go to the woods as I used to do when younger, and fell trees, and clear the ground for the plough. That is patient work. Did you ever think that there are more jobs in the world—if we think of patience only—than the world knows, or will ever know? How we all pull off our hats and hurrah, and shout, a great man is he who can preach in such a way that will stir the people, and get them to quit their bad work, and do good work in place of the bad. We say great is the lawyer that can sift the grain of truth from a pile of dirty trickery, and so hold up the truth that all can see it. We call him great who wields a truthful and forcible pen. We call him great who is so well acquainted with the body, and medicine that he can save from the "jaws of death," as the preacher says, the people that do suffer with disease; but somehow we get to take off our hats and say, great is the man that has had the patience and honesty of Job to go into the woods, and there build a cabin, and with his axe fell the woods around him, and clear the land, and raise on it enough to feed himself and little ones, and more besides. I tell you that I know men that cleared 40 acres, 50 acres, up to 150 acres, with very little help. They cleared the way for others. The world is better off by their living in it, and if you are going to measure a man by what he has done in this world, then such men are great men, they mayn't have what you fellows call the polish, but they have the heart and pluck to stick to the right; that's what made old Hickory great; that's what makes every man who has greatness in him great; that's what made that member of the Speak family great, that went to the head of the Nile, in spite of the bad climate and savages, wild animals, and big snakes of Africa. "Be sure you're right and then go ahead," old Davy Crockett said.

Andy Jackson traveled on that line, and I believe the members of the Democratic party, is square on that line in every thing but their politics, their politics is a ring that doesn't touch the line anywhere. Why our fellows have got so far from the old path that they are tonguing it worse than they did at Babel, where you know the wicked tried to fix themselves for an other flood; the truth of the matter is, the old Jackson Democrats are nearly all dead, and the fellows of the school of James Buchanan, who old Hickory didn't call Pennsylvania's favorite son, but the Pennsylvania reptile, have got our party into what that dreamer of the Pilgrim's Progress, that I talked about in my last letter, called the "alough of despond." Yes sir, we're in an awful bad fix, our big guns are scared, and they are talking about not nominating any one for President next year; they want all your sore heads to hold convention, and count noses, and see how many there are; then they say, if your sore heads are pretty strong, that our party will let them nominate a dissatisfied Republican, and our party will vote for him, on the ground that the offices shall be divided among all hands concerned; that's a sort of a dove-tailing arrangement as the carpenter says, a good deal like the Andy Johnson, movement, but I'll be hanged if I'll stand any such a mix as that. Before I do that, I'll join the Republican party straight out; and then I'll know just what I'm doing, and I know others that will do just so too. The Angel of destruction seems to be hovering over our party. If I could just come the game the Spaniards once came over the Moors, it would be a joyful thing. The Moors overran almost the whole of Spain. After a while a Spanish King raised up and licked the Moors, just as often as he pleased, just as Andy used to lick you fellows and the British, but unfortunately the king died before the country was rid of the Moors, then the tide turned and the Spaniards were licked as before. The Moors brought an army to the city where the dead King was buried. The Spaniards raised their honored king, and put his body on a horse at the head of their army and marched out of the city to give battle. The Moors didn't stop to take a second look they thought the dead king had got alive, and they dug and left their whole camp in the hands of the Spaniards.

If we could only get up Old Hickory, in that way and scare you fellows out of the next Presidency, that would be rich, but I guess you fellows have too much common school learning to be gouged out that way. I can't help thinking what a hard time I have to reach the Fair. I earnestly ask your sympathy. Yours, truly, BARTON SPEAK. Meeting of Cavalry Company. JOURNALIST, Nov. 25, 1871. Meeting called to order by Col. J. K. Robinson, when the following names were added to the Company roll: H. J. Shellenberger, Isaac Sieber, S. A. Thomas, Lucian H. Doty, S. B. Allen, W. C. Kelley, A. T. Kyle, A. H. Hatter. Proceeded to drill one hour and a half, forty-two men mounted. On motion a committee of three was appointed to get price and samples of cloth for uniforms, viz: Joel Whitmer, A. S. Adams, G. W. Burchfield. Notice was then given that the minimum number of men required by law had signed the roll, and that at the next meeting there would be an election for permanent officers for the Company.—Also, a request that all members and all who wished to join would attend the next meeting promptly at 10 o'clock. On motion, and by a unanimous vote, the Company will hereafter be known as the "Juniata Scouts."

On motion a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. L. R. Beale for use of his field for drilling. Adjourned to meet in Mexico, on Saturday, December 2nd, promptly at ten o'clock. COL. J. K. ROBINSON, Chairman. G. W. BURCHFIELD Sec'y. Just as We Found Them. A pocket fire escape has been invented. Slavery in Siam is to be abolished in January, 1872. Three hundred saloons have already been rebuilt in Chicago. An Iowa man was shot dead with a load of patent pills. A Texas paper publishes marriage notices under the head of "Lost."

A Texas man got a newspaper for $12,000 and got sixty cents. A woman was imprisoned at Halle, Prussia, for talking woman's rights. The Indians throughout Pennsylvania have contributed $300 to aid Chicago. Paris boasts of a machine which turns a rabbit-skin into a hat with lining and trimming, in fifteen minutes. The woman's rights movements has spread to France, and is being discussed by the Paris journals. The Harvard college faculty have forbidden smoking in the yard of that institution. An immense co-operative iron and steel works went into operation last week at Danville. Worth, the Paris man milliner, has moderated his prices, and will get up quite a decent silk dress now for $300. Oranges and lemons are worth from six to eight cents a bushel in the Brazilian market. Rufians followed a cattle dealer from Pittsburg to Wooster, Ohio, waylaid and robbed him of $2,500. A malignant and fatal disease, closely resembling yellow fever, is prevailing at Gainesville, Florida.

A cynical lady, rather inclined to flirt, says most men are like a cold—very easily caught, but very difficult to get rid of. A lot of 144 hogs, averaging 344 pounds, were shipped from Rockville, Parke county, Indiana, last week. Fifty-two of these hogs averaged 362 pounds. A man died in New York from eating herrings brought from London, which had become impregnated with arsenic which was part of the cargo. When Horace Greely is asked what kind of music he prefers, he answers, "the song of the harvest; three beats to the measure."

The Harrisburg Telegraph says it is rumored that a band of incendiaries boast that they will lay the city in ashes during the winter. A Mr. Bennet, of Blackhawk county, Iowa, has invented a potato bug harvester. It goes on wheels, with a revolving broom, which brushes off the bugs into a tin trough or box suspended beneath.

Snow six feet deep, on the level, is reported from certain parts of Utah. Many farmers throughout Nemaha county, Wisconsin, have been compelled to sell their stock, on account of prairie fires burning up their winter supply of hay.

A paper says in an obituary notice, that "the deceased has been for several years a member of a bank, notwithstanding which he died a Christian, and universally respected."

Nearly all New York young gentlemen have their overcoats made with a pocket on one side, lined with flannel or fur, in which a lady may slip her hand when walking of a cold winter's evening. Farmers in Crawford Co. complain that mice are committing great depredation in their orchards. One gentleman, Mr. W. V. Morse of Haysfield, had one hundred trees garbled by the little pests.

While digging a well in Washington, Ill., the other day, at the depth of sixty feet the workmen came upon lumps of coal and chunks of wood, in a good state of preservation, imbedded in the blue clay. A man in Topeka, Kansas disgusted at the boat of a puffed up parent in a neighboring town that he has 22 children, settles him with the truthful statement that he himself is the father of 24 children, and has given 92 good educations.

The house of a Miss Dale, near Ticonderoga, was entered, while she was absent, the carpets cut to pieces, sofa tipped over, furniture broken, bedding and clothing torn so as to be unfit for use, and a general havoc perpetrated, causing a loss of $500. The laborers engaged in digging a trial pit for the water works at Harrisburg, have struck a fine vein of yellow ochre, twelve feet below the surface. The ochre is entirely free from grit, and is pronounced a first class article. It is worth five dollars a ton.

A married gentleman of Elizabeth, New Jersey, lost a valuable diamond pin which he advertised in the Herald, leaving fifteen dollars with the book keeper as a reward to the finder. His wife was the lucky person. She took the pin to the Herald office and got the money. The Emperor William, of Germany, is in his seventy-fifth year, but his hair and beard alone betray his age. His complexion is fresh, and his powers of endurance are still great. It is thought he owes his physical powers to his simple, soldier-like mode of living, although he comes of a strong and hardy family.

An applicant for the position of domestic in a Danbury family was asked if she understood how to use kerosene—Her reply exceeded the most sanguine expectations! "Use it, is it?" she exclaimed in a tone of reproachful explanation; "give me a can of karysane and I'd never ask for the life of a shavin'."—She was not engaged. Elk county has the largest tannery in the world. It is owned by M. M. Schultz, who last year had 37,000 cords of bark peeled upon his own lands for the use of the tannery, and turned out 200,000 sides of leather. He now employs over 200 men, and in the time of bark peeling increases the number to about 1,000.

Between sixty and seventy deer have been killed within two miles and a half of President furnace, near Oil City, during the last four weeks. They have not been so plenty before in the last twenty years, and sportsmen are taking advantage of their numbers. It is supposed that they have been driven in by the great fires in other sections. A burglar was caught at Somerville from the circumstances of meeting a young lady in one of the rooms in her night clothes. On seeing him she faint-ed and fell in his arms, and when the people of the house came in he was trying to bring her too with a bottle of camphor. He said no gentleman would go off and leave a lady in such a condition as that.
